DEATH OF REV. ISAAC MURRAY WORRY DRIVES HALIFAX CRAZY

"A Father of the Presbyterian Church" in Maritime Provinces Passed Away in New Glasgow

NEW GLASGOW, N. S., Dec. 7.—Rev. Isaac Murray, D. D., one of the "Fathers of the Presbyterian Church" in these provinces, died here today. Dr. Murray, who was 80 years of age, had been in declining health for some time, and his death was not unexpected. He, however, remains from among us a man of the most devoted piety, who had for more than half a century been prominent in Presbyterian church life in Nova Scotia.

Dr. Murray was a native of Pictou County and received the ministry on January 16, 1850. He received his education at Pictou Academy, Rogers Hill, and at Princeton University, and was successively in charge of churches at Cavendish, The Vale, Pictou County, and at North Sydney, the pastorate at the last named place extending over a period of 15 years, during which he won an abiding and large place in the love of the people.

He retired from the ministry several years ago, removing from North Sydney to New Glasgow.

Six years ago he celebrated his golden jubilee, an extensive sketch and tribute to his work appearing in the Presbyterian Witness at that time. In this celebration his former flock in North Sydney, who were thoroughly devoted to him, took the initiative, the celebration being marked by many proofs of their affection.

Dr. Murray's wife, who was a daughter of the Rev. John Sprott, survives him. So also do two daughters, unmarried and living at home.

HOUSE DISCUSSED COLD STORAGE BILL

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 7.—The house had a short session this afternoon. With the thermometer 10 below outside, Hon. Sydney Fisher talked about cold storage for two hours and a half. The members then decided they had enough and passed a resolution for the cold storage bill and adjourned the sitting. The senate did even better. They adjourned until January 16, 1907. It had been planned that the senate should stay until the end of next week to give the house an opportunity to put the Revised Statutes bill through all stages so the governor general could come down, give his assent to the bill and the new statutes could become law, at the beginning of the year.

The house was to have talked tariff. This could not be done because the finance minister was in Montreal endeavoring to bring the coal and steel men to a reasonable understanding. Therefore Mr. Fisher had the day to himself. He said that the $100,000 he was taking as the first ten per cent. aid to cold storage depots would probably be more than he would be called to give in the first year. But he wanted as many cold storage depots established as soon as possible, and hoped he would be called upon for the whole amount.

W. W. FRANK.

Captain Frank said that he had no cause of complaint against the engine house now. Before the painting was done it was harder to keep clean. As far as the Salvage Corps room was concerned, the men did their best to keep it clean.

Ald. McCordick—"Did you ever hear the men use profanity?"

Capt. Frank—"They had a good tutor."

Ald. Bullock—"What do you mean?"

Witness, continuing, said that the director did his part in an obliging manner. With regard to Mr. Blake's charges, they are simply ridiculous. Mr. Blake and Mr. Leonard are bosom friends and he thought Mr. Leonard was taking this way to get the men in a hole.

Witness—"I am not sure what he was talking about. There has been trouble in the engine house ever since Mr. Leonard came there."

COUNTER CHARGES MADE AGAINST MR. LEONARD

Wm. Cruikshank, of the Salvage Corps, Accused Him of Drunkenness and Repeated Neglect of Duty—Several Witnesses Swore Condition of No. 3 Engine House Was All Right—J.H. Pullen Tells About Bill

The investigating committee yesterday heard counter-charges to those which District Engineer Blake made at the last meeting of the committee. The charges were made by Wm. Cruikshank, a member of the Salvage Corps. A number of witnesses were on hand, some of whom testified that the conditions were about all that could be desired in No. 3 engine house. The adjournment was made until Monday, when Director Wisely, Chief Kerr and, if he himself wishes, Ald. Vanwart will be upon the stand. A large number were present last night, chiefly members of the fire and salvage departments.

DRIVER DAY.

Driver Day was recalled at his own request. Mr. Day denied that he had ever seen the situation running over. He denied that he had not done his duty when Mr. Leonard gave orders in connection with fire or house work.

Ald. Holder—"He said that you did not speak to him."

Mr. Day—"Business calls us to speak. Outside of that we have no conversation."

Mr. Blake could never, he said, have seen discord among the men, as he has not been on their floor, for two minutes, during the two years witness has been in the service. Mr. Day said that abusive language had been used towards him by Mr. Leonard.

W.M. DONOHUE.

Driver Donohue, driver of the Salvage Corps, was sworn. He said that he has been ten years in the fire service. He said that he had noticed bad odors from the bathroom at different times. At the time of Mr. Leonard's illness the painters were working around. The smell was from the paint and from the furnace, which was at that time in a bad shape.

Ald. McCordick, in examining the witness, said the investigation was chiefly in regard to Chief Kerr.

Witness said that the chief treated the men fairly. He said that he did not know Mr. Leonard was ill until Dr. Christie arrived. He would have been quite happy to have done anything for him. He said that he had not been speaking to Mr. Leonard for nearly a year. It was Mr. Leonard who spoke to him. He said that he had not been speaking to Mr. Leonard for nearly a year. It was Mr. Leonard who spoke to him.

THE FULLERTON SALVAGE CASE

"And now—look at this!" and, pulling a letter from his bosom, he hung it towards Denham with an intensity of despair and bitterness. The superintendent opened it and glanced over the first paragraphs. He saw nothing in them to excite his friend. The gist of it came later.

"I see your mother often, Bob dear, and we talk together like the two lonely women that we are, telling each other again and again the story of your successes, and trying to find between the lines of your letters when you may return."

But the tears will come, Bob, at the uncertainty of it all—as we think of you in that distant country which is grim with roughness and dangers, as we think that perhaps you are as dreary and lonely as ourselves. We laugh through our tears, and try to cheer each other. But as the dreary weeks drag by without a letter, the dread thought stalks in that you may be ill and suffering."

"I cannot bear it, Bobbie boy. I want to be with you—to help you in your fight for success. It may be a long, long time before you get the opportunity to come for me. I know that good men are scarce out there, and of course that will make it harder for you to leave. So I have determined to come to you; and we will be married and rough it together. I am afraid, Bobbie, I want to have a little hand in the 'building up' myself."

Mrs. Seabright and Bessie are starting for Seattle on Wednesday, and I shall pack my trunk and start with them. So you ought to see me within two or three days after receiving this. Denham whistled softly as he folded the letter. Then he said: "Well!"

"Don't you see, Dick? She's coming on here—to marry me! Coming here, believing in me—believing in my lies—believing in my prosperity. And she'll find me a wreck—a miserable wreck! She must be stopped, Dick. I cannot see her! You will meet her for me, won't you?—and tell her just what kind of a man I am—how I have deceived her. You will do this for me, Dick?"

Denham chewed his mustache nervously. "Is it necessary?" he asked. "You are on the up-turn now. The past two years are turned down; you've made good here. MacDougall is going back East in a month, and you're to be chief engineer in his place. The directors settled that yesterday. Furthermore, Bob, they voted you a thousand dollars for saving the plant—said some mighty complimentary things about it. You'll hear it all before long."

"No, no, Dick! For heaven's sake, don't tempt me! She must know me—everything! There must be no more deception—no more lies. If it were not for this cursed smash-up, I'd do it myself, but I can't! I can't! I've neither physical nor mental strength to stand up to it. There's some money coming to me. Use that, old man, and send her home. It's the only way. Some day, perhaps, I can go back and square myself!"

Denham dropped his head on his hands and thought intently for many minutes. Then he said: "All right, I shall be as you say." And he went out with grievous trouble in his eyes. And Fullerton tossed about such anguish of mind as happens to men of few lives. The girl—the light of his life—would come close to him—and he would be lost again! Sick, broken as he was in mind and body, the solace, the delight, which was within his grasp, must be shut out! Her own hopes, her love, her faith, were to be turned to ashes. Through the night and on following his mind raged upon his folly and her pain. In utter weariness came faint sketches of sleep, bringing visions of the girl—oftentimes loving, never reproachful. Once he saw her figure glide to his bedside, and he looked up into her beautiful eyes, moist with tears, and full of love and tenderness. He heard her voice, low and trembling:

"Bob!"—it seemed so real that he opened his eyes wonderingly. "Bob!" said the voice again; and the figure dropped on its knees by his bedside and clasped his hand with convulsive tenderness. "My darling, it is I—Ethel! I have come, Bob, and I shall never leave you, dear! No, don't speak—you can't send me away—I know everything!" Mr. Denham had told me, Bob, but I knew some of it before. I had heard stories. That's why I came—come to help you, you poor old boy. We all start all over again, together, Bob; a new life, where you will work, Bob, and I will watch, and pray—and love."

LABOR MEN ANGRY AT EARL GREY

Toronto District Council Claims He is Working to Bring Cheap Labor Into Canada

TORONTO, Dec. 7.—"If our government is here officially in the interests of invested capital only, irrespective of our social advancement, the sooner the working people move to abolish that office the better it will be for us. If, on the other hand, he is here in the interests of all people the sooner we move to bring his office before the imperial parliament the better it will be for the country."

This was one of a number of clauses of condemnation of the governor general in a lengthy report of the legislative committee of the Toronto district council, which report was unanimously passed. The cause of the arraignment of Earl Grey was his leadership's advocacy in his address before the Canadian Club in Toronto last week of bringing cheap foreign labor to Canada for railway construction. The council took the ground that he was working along lines that would result in defeating the laws of the country so far as cheap labor was concerned.
