ST. JOHN, N. B., AUGUST 20, 1908.

AN INDICATION.

The Toronto Mail and Empire with characteristic unfairness in seeking to detract from the glory of Hon. Walter Scott's victory in Saskatchewan, says that it is evident that the people of the west are weary of graft and dishonesty and that what they want is freedom to manage their own lands. The criticism of the Toronto paper seems silly in view of the fact that only last week the people of Saskatchewan decided very emphatically in regard to what they desired.

Early in the campaign, Mr. Haultain upon the advice of his leaders in the Federal party, styled himself the champion of the people in what he called "his demand for Provincial rights." In his canvass of the electors he charged the Laurier government with gross injustice so far as the western lands were concerned. But his arguments were weak. The people of Saskatchewan knew what they wanted, just as well as Mr. Haultain or anyone else could tell them, and although every power known to political schemers was exerted to elect the "Provincial rights" party, the electors in no uncertain way showed Mr. Haultain that they did not believe him sincere. They emphatically declared that they were satisfied with the policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in regard to their lands in the west. They did not fail to see in the near future the great advantages that would be theirs when the Hudson's Bay Railway is built and they were not slow to observe that the prosperity of the west, in a large measure, depended upon their action in electing or rejecting the Scott government. In the meantime it does the Conservative journals more harm than good to rail in their disappointment. They are only attempting to ward off the inevitable. Saskatchewan has spoken for the West and the result in that Province is an indication of what will take place in the other Provinces when the Federal elections are brought on.

OUTSIDE OPINION.

Mr. E. W. Thomson, the representative of Ottawa of the Boston Transcript, and one of the ablest political writers on the continent, was apparently not favorably impressed with the silly criticism of Mr. H. B. Ames, Commons last season. It was scarcely credible, Mr. Thomson writes to his paper, that such a man as Mr. Ames would go into "affected transports of suspicion and insinuation over the merest mare's nest. Therefore, we listened too credulously while he was stumping the outlying regions with looks of sorrow and accents of indignation, telling what awful things he was going to expose. In the main they were that pretty much all the timber in the Canadian west had been given away gratis to friends of the Ministry at Ottawa."

Mr. Thomson points out that "when the evidence came it was clearly proved that Ames' whole fable of innuendo had been based on suspicion that ordinary business procedure had not been followed, whereas it turned out to have been followed every time." The correspondent's views of Mr. Ames are worth reading. He says: "In the course of his absurd campaign Ames slandered both Burrows and Turritt, men always as reputable as himself, and hereafter surely more so. Both are his fellow M. P.'s for Turritt resigned his Land Commission before 1904 to run for the House of Commons. Ames tried to mock the evidence which proved the two members perfectly guiltless of his abominable imputations against them."

"Ames certainly has deserved severe treatment, but his only punishments are: (1) To be cursed by fellow Opponents, whom he has incited into believing he could, and would 'make good,' and who had to back him up in order to try to save his silly face; (2) to be laughed at by the cunning Ministerialists who drew him on by reserving their defense and their evidence until he had gone so deep into the mire that he could not get out without a piece of it all over him. "Of course substantial justice has been promoted by the Ministerialists' adroitness, since the electorate watched the fun and cannot but discern not only the alleged Burrows-Turritt scandal, but every other urged by the Opposition, on like grounds. Hence the Opposition stands to be soundly spanked for the folly and meanness of Ames."

"He was the more blamable because if he had not gone into the slanders on the timber question, the Opposition stood to gain some deserved credit, inasmuch as they called the Minister's attention last session to the need for some amendments in administering the timber of the west.

"They might have obtained it had not Ames marred their whole timber case by his preposterous scandal mongering."

THE SOUL OF THE HOME.

Locust timbers, brick and stones Are its bones,
And I saw them wrought together
In the keen Autumnal weather.
Joint by joint and bone by bone, to fit a plan,
As sagas build of fables some un-remembered man.

Lath and shingles for a skin, Clad in it,
And I saw them wrought together
In the keen Autumnal weather.
Joint by joint and bone by bone, to
fit a plan,
As sagas build of fables some un-
remembered man.

My own soul-seed deep in earth At my birth Lay as lifeless and as hidden By the sun and rain unbidden.
Until Love had fed it smiles and tears And tears and toll—Then green and gracious buds of it Came forcing through the soil.

So my house there reared its head, Cold and dead,
With a chill to linger always—Till Love breathed along its hallways, Laughed and wept there, tolled,
And dreamt there in the gloam; Now those window-eyes are brimming With the wakened soul of Home—

"I remember once," says Prof. Grange "hearing two very ordinary men, a bricklayer and a plumber, discuss love in a smoking car."
"I told," said the bricklayer, "that if you are terribly in love the way to cure yourself is to run away."
"The plumber shook his head and smiled."
"That will cure you," he said, "provided you run away with the girl."

GOOD PROGRESS BEING MADE

Frank W. Morse Talks About New Transcontinental Railway in the West

TORONTO, Aug. 20.—"Our work is progressing very satisfactorily." These were the words Mr. Frank W. Morse, General Manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific, in summing up the building of the new Transcontinental in the west.
Mr. Morse was returning to Montreal after a tour of western Canada.
"Our track extends from Winnipeg to Battle River," he added, "and the distance is some 675 miles. At Battle River a big bridge is being erected and the foundation have been completed. Another bridge is being built over the North Saskatchewan. We expect these bridges to be finished in three months. The end of 120 miles from Fort William to Lake Superior Junction is now practically completed.
We have the grading done for 120 miles west of Edmonton and for 100 miles east of Prince Rupert." With the grading done, Mr. Morse stated that the company's plans in laying out 2,000 acres in lots had been approved by the British Columbia Government. Speaking of the eastern portion of the Transcontinental, he said that this month the tenders would be let for the construction of the remaining portions and then the line from Winnipeg to Montreal would be all under contract.

"It doesn't seem to me possible to make any suggestion for any improvement in the west this year," he observed. "The country is in fine condition, and there will be results unless something unfavorable crops up."

A QUESTION ANSWERED.

Which school offers the quickest and most profitable results for a future career? Will be the question of hundreds of young people next week. The Currie Business University is willing to compare its records for the past four years with the Normal School, any New Brunswick University, or the combined N. B. opposition business colleges. There will be but one result—the Currie Business University will surpass all in the following points—Public efficiency of its certified pupils, number placed in responsible positions during the past year, amounts in salaries secured, and the quick and profitable satisfaction derived through perfect organization.

In order to relieve the strain on the staff, which will be caused by the rush at the end of this month, the Currie Business University offers its old rates one-half in advance and balance on date of acceptance of position, to all who close up contracts during next week, ending August 25th.

A card or telephone message will bring a representative to any city or outlying district address. One week's trial is offered free. Arrangements can be made on a ten dollar monthly plan.

COWBOY BARONET, SEEKING A BRIDE

Sir Gentile Cave-Browne-Cave Who Went to England Back

Talks of His Divinity and Is Incensed at a Butler In's "Lack of Form."

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—None of the passengers on the Lucania, arriving in New York Saturday, from Liverpool, knew that a rather stout man of medium height, square head, mostly bald and with a heavy reddish brown mustache, who was a passenger in the steamer, was the cowboy baronet, Sir Gentile Cave-Browne-Cave, owner of titles and a thousand acres at Stratton, England.

He was dressed in a checkered suit of light plaid. He had truckloads of luggage. Chained on his left wrist was a gold bracelet, secured with two tiny padlocks.

After going to England, whither he had been called to claim his estates after the death of his father, the combination of Englishman and western plainsman could not resist the call of the wild, and since the death of an American heiress, who, he says, lives in Denver.

With the price of hundreds of trans-Atlantic tickets in his fortune, still the cowboy baronet chose the steerage. In order that he might see human nature under the simple life.

"I am only Mr. Browne," said he, "I pitied the poor, firsty fellows down there, and it cost me $60 a day to keep their throats moist, and that's about $12.50 a day of American money."
"But, honestly, I've traveled the way I have to avoid notoriety. After spending 14 years punching cows out in Arizona and Colorado I'm trying to get used to being addressed as 'Sir Gentile-le.'"

"I've been to the place where I was born and where I'll live hereafter, but I confess to a more homelike feeling over here."

"I found my estate in pretty good shape. There are still some debts, but them, which I have got to pay, and the estate lies in three counties. The estates are in Warwickshire, the house in Derbyshire and most of the land in Leicester. That's going some, as we say out west."

"A man present wanted to buy Sir Gentile a drink. The man could make a showdown of only $1 cents for a brandy and soda and one plain soda, and the steward said the change was three cents short. Sir Gentile became very much vexed at this and showed a side of his western character."

"I'll pay for it myself," said he to the butter, producing a handful of gold.
You shouldn't buy drinks if you haven't the money to pay for them. As a justice of the peace I never fined a man who hadn't the money to pay.
You ought to have more money."

"I'd hate to use the decorations of this nice saloon for a frame for your face, but on my word, I've a mind to decorate the furnishings with your business and pay for it. You don't look as though you had many brains, any way."

"If you were in my country out in Arizona and ordered drinks you didn't have the money to pay for, you'd be tackled by the entire camp. There wouldn't be a man that would speak to you or recognize you."

"I think it is about time you left, and by my finger bones you're the left-out," as they say in this country.

"Steward, bring us another drink."
Of the halcyon to which he is engaged, Sir Gentile said: "She lives in Denver.
She's the sweetest little blossom that ever bloomed. She's a perfect beauty on my wrist and she keeps the key, I'm going to see her now and I'll be back in England in two months."

The only person to whom Sir Gentile brings a letter is the correspondent of a London newspaper.

He says that the only scenes in which he has figured since he ran away from home because he couldn't get on with his father are those of the western plains and in Porto Rico, as a scout with Gen. Miles in the Spanish war.

After his soldiers had hunted for him the cow puncher reluctantly consented to return to claim the estates of his father, Sir Mylie Cave-Browne-Cave. It is said that the estates are worth, if they were not mortgaged, about $1,000,000, and they were very beautiful.
The buildings are much out of repair.

It is Peary's intention to reach the pole this time or drop out of the game. We should hate to see him do this. He is about the best midsummer reading we know.—Cleveland Leader.

Exhibitions Show Who Are Enterprising!

Exhibitions show something besides the Goods of the Merchant, the product of the Manufacturer and the Harvest of the Farmers.

Exhibitions show who are the enterprising men in the country. Look over the lists of entries in the Exhibition the last ten years and you will find the names of concerns who are wide awake, who are looking for business —and find it.

This is part of the work of Exhibitions. They afford business men chances to show what is in them — to show that they are alive — wide awake not only to their own interests but to those of their communities.

Did you ever think about it in that way?

The Bankers and the whole-salers as they walk the streets pass the business places of their customers — They are quick to note enterprise and eager for it's success whenever they see it.

The men who see what you are doing in the Exhibition may not be your bankers or those you buy from, but they are likely to be more important still — They will be the people who buy from you, and it's up to you to make good, to show that you have the spirit and enterprise to take part in a great public Exhibition — promoted for the benefit of business — the business of the manufacturers, the farmer and the merchant.

The St. John Exhibition—Sept. 12-19—will be a great success—a great unqualified success.

Are you going to help it along and get some of the benefit yourself?

"You certainly are!"
"Then," continued the prisoner, "I wasn't half so mean for me to run away as it was for the officer to run me back."—Philadelphia Ledger.

DEADLOCK IN BELGIAN HOUSE IS INEVITABLE

BRUSSELS, Aug. 20.—It is stated that a crisis in the Belgian cabinet is inevitable as the result of a deadlock between the majority in the chamber of deputies and the government on the subject of responsibility of Belgium for interest in the Congo Independent Bonds.

The chamber voted an article in the Colonial Bill in its second reading, as law is passed and rejected, the government bill empowering Belgium to assist to the Congo Independent states.

At a meeting of the cabinet, this morning this was discussed, but no decision was reached. One of the ministers, however, is reported as saying that the matter would be considered.

GOMPERS DECLARES LABOR NEEDS BRYAN

Says, He Controls No Votes But Will Support Democratic Candidate, Himself.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—"I am for Bryan in his race for the presidency of the United States," said President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor yesterday.

"Let me tell you that this convention of farmers is the greatest ever held by the agricultural workers and the real wealth producers of our nation. What I shall say I know not, and you will have to read my report.
If a correct one is made, and I trust it will be, because what I shall say will awaken the farmers of the country to a realization that laborers, mechanics and artisans are grieving in common to them."

"Labor day I shall deliver the Labor day address in Danville, Ill., the home of the genial Joe Cannon, speaker of the House of Representatives, and what I shall say will cause Joe to sit up and listen."

More than $5,000 has been turned into the Democratic national campaign fund up to date by William J. Bryan's political paper as the proceeds of subscriptions sent indirectly to it by individuals, clubs and newspapers. This amount does not include any personal contributions by Mr. Bryan or receipts from the publication of the paper over, and above the running expenses, which the candidate has promised to give to the national campaign.

For the past few days the hotels in this city have been crowded to overflowing. It has been noticed by a great many of our citizens that when the town is filled with strangers, Walter Irving's Jewelry Store, 55 King street, is packed with people who recognize the fact that the values he offers cannot be equalled elsewhere.

with indignation. "I never had no dealin's with that firm in my life, and I don't owe them or nobody else a cent!"—Chicago Tribune.

man sitting in a front seat, who appeared to be deeply interested—"all that you are, I repeat you owe to he-dity and environment." "What?" exclaimed the elderly man, going red with indignation. "I never had no
I don't owe them or nobody else a
cent!"—Chicago Tribune.

"All that you are, my friend," said the lecturer, singing out an elderly man sitting in a front seat, who appeared to be deeply interested—"all
that you are, I repeat you owe to he-
dity and environment." "What?" ex-
