OF DRESDEN RIBBON.

To protect the dress collar there is a valuable little gift made of Dresden ribbon about five or six inches wide. It will require a yard and a half of the ribbon, an interlining of wadding, of almost imperceptible thickness and a facing of white china silk, if used, he used the market touch.

The newest edge of the ribbon is lapped back and hemmed upon the raw edge of the china silk, and the two cut ends of the ribbon are folded back over

Crushed Coffee — what is it?

By a new process of crushing between steel rollers, instead of grinding, the skin, which remains in the eye of the bean after roasting, is separated from the kernel and removed by air suction, while the kernel is broken into small even grains. These grains when steeped, being free of the skin or chaff, settle quickly, leaving the liquid clear and bright, and give the true coffee flavor.

Estabrooks' Red Rose crushed Coffee is as easy to make as Red Rose Tea. Directions are in each tin.

It is strictly pure, not a particle of chicory or any other adulterant being used, and is packed in air-tight tins the same day it is roasted so to retain its full flavor, fragrance and strength.

CONVICT'S TRAMP ACROSS AFRICA

Leaped From Moving Train Heavily Ironed

Files Off Manacles With Sharp Fillets But Shortly After Reaching Civilization Was Captured.

ASQUITH WILL HAVE CONTROL OF SITUATION

Another Election Would Result In Deadlock

"Twentieth Century Will Not Tolerate the Divine Right of Lord Lansdowne."

LONDON, Jan. 25.—There has just died in an African prison a man who achieved one of the most daring escapes from custody on record.

Joseph Crewick was undergoing a sentence for forgery in Rhodesia, and was being conveyed from one prison to another by train when he resolved to escape. As his legs were heavily ironed the task was by no means an easy one, but Crewick was a man of infinite daring and resource.

His opportunity came one night when the train in which he was being conveyed was between Bulawayo and Salisbury. It was proceeding at a fairly fast rate, and he found that his guards were fast asleep. He quietly opened the carriage door and jumped out. Hampered as he was by leg irons Crewick seemed to be courting death. He stumbled and fell, but he was not badly hurt. During the night he shuffled along in the dark, his legs making every step short and painful.

At daybreak he found that there were no houses in sight. He could see the railroad, in the distance, and decided to walk in a straight line from it. Fortunately for him he had been able to conceal in his pockets some of the food his guards had supplied him with. His sleep, he afterwards explained, while he was lying on the open ground was disturbed by noises to which he was unaccustomed, and his dream was far from pleasant. Once he heard—or fancied he heard—a dog barking about half a mile away from him, and he gave himself up for lost, thinking that the animal must belong to a search party.

HE "FINDS" A GUN.

It was not until he had been walking for several days that he addressed himself to the task of getting rid of his leg-irons. As he had no file or a piece of metal of any description, the ironed man had to use his teeth. As he found himself growing somewhat weak, wild fruit being his only means of support after he had finished the food he had with him when he leaped from the train.

His legs had become chafed, and the slightest movement caused him great pain. Day after day, night after night, he rubbed his legs with the sharpest pieces of rock he could find, until at last his efforts were rewarded with success.

Thus freed he went on through to him an unknown country, without map or compass to guide him, his sole object being to get to some white settlement. He had no idea of the distance he had to travel, and he was not likely to be claimed by the British government.

Some weeks after his escape the wanderer had a wonderful piece of luck. In a hut, apparently belonging to a settler, he found a gun and some ammunition. He managed to shoot several zebras, and other animals, which provided him with many a welcome meal. The gun, an old-fashioned one, got out of order, however, before his ammunition became exhausted, and he again had to rely upon fruit for his sustenance.

Just when Crewick was coming to the conclusion that he had been wandering round without making much progress, he fell in with some natives, who treated him in a friendly manner. The wanderer made them understand that he was in search of a river, thinking that if he could find one and follow its course, it would lead him to civilization. The natives gave him certain directions as to how to find "a very long water," which Crewick concluded must mean the River Congo, and for several more weeks he continued his weary tramp.

NO MORE NONSENSE FROM MEN ON THE BENCH

Baseball Umpires Given Power to Fine or Eject Any Players Criticising Decisions.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 25.—The extended power given umpires by the adoption of a rule by the rules committee of the National League last night is an inspiration of President Lynch. This is the rule empowering the umpire to clear the bench of substitutes or any team who express their disapproval of umpire's decisions and indulge in rowdiness from the bench. Secretary Heydler said, "And these are the men President Lynch is after. Umpires Klem and Johnston were two of the president's advisers in this matter, having the last playing season. Up to last night there was no rule to cover this. New rules players will be warned and for a second offence fined $10, and for the third offense they will have to leave the playing grounds."

SENSATIONAL LIBEL CASE NEARING TRIAL

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Twelve jurors had been selected at the end of today's proceedings in the Panama libel suit brought against the Press Publishing Company, publishers of the New York World, by the United States government, in the United States Circuit Court, Judge Hough presiding. Tomorrow they will be sworn in, unless rejected by peremptory challenges.

At the opening of court today counsel for the defense characterized the suit as unprecedented in the history of the United States government. It was instigated by Theodore Roosevelt during his presidency charges were filed that President Taft, Douglas Robinson, brother-in-law of Mr. Roosevelt, Charles Taft, brother of the president, William Nelson Cromwell and Theodore Roosevelt were criminally libeled in publications in the fall of 1908 relating to the purchase of the franchise, machinery and other rights of the French Panama Canal Company.

PREPARED TO FIGHT FOR MORE MEMBERS

Premier Hazard Objects to the Coming Reduction

Insists That Maritime Provinces Should Have as Many as Ever and See Fun Ahead.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.—Premier Hazard, of Prince Edward Island, says that matters are quiet in his province but that there might be fun ahead, as the province would, in connection with Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, make a strenuous effort to have the original number of federal members restored. When they first came into the confederation after the union of the four original provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario and Quebec, Prince Edward Island had six representatives in the House of Commons, but the largely increased population of the western provinces, taking Quebec as the pivotal province, had reduced the number to five, and if things were allowed to drift the number of federal representatives from the far eastern province would be reduced to four, following the redistribution that is sure to come after the census of 1911. Being asked if the two other lower provinces would act in concert with his government, the Premier of Prince Edward Island answered in the affirmative, adding that it was a question of the same gravity to them as to the smallest province.

Nova Scotia had eighteen seats in the Parliament of Canada after confederation, and although that number was later increased to twenty, she now has but seventeen members at Ottawa, while New Brunswick has seen her representation reduced to fourteen. Both of these provinces would certainly lose one or more after the next census, so great was the increase of population registered by the western provinces. For all these reasons the Premier of Prince Edward Island says that action will be taken in the near future, and they hope to have the original number of representatives restored at least. Being asked again if he supposed Premier Hazard of New Brunswick would act with the Liberal premiers of the two other provinces, Mr. Hazard said he did not think there was any doubt whatever of that.
