interest centers on the inquest which will be held by Coroner Gaskill Thursday. While he will not express an opin on before the inquiry as to the cause of the accident, it appears from his statement made this evening that he is convinced the bridge on accident occurred is not as it should be and may have to be rebuilt. The offic ials generally want a most rigid investigation so that the responsibility may be justly placed.

The central figures in the inquiry on Thursday will probably be Daniel Stewart, the old bridge tender, and John Spiker, the tower man, who operates the signals. Stewart declare positively that he locked the draw properly after the schooner yacht Sir bad passed through and the railway officials say that in any event the signal for safety would not have been set when the train came along had the rails not been right. John Spiker, the towerman, when asked about this, said that he could not see the tracks clearly enough from his position to know whether the tracks were in line, but he said he got the signal from the bridge tender that they were all right and gave the train a clear track. As usual in cases of this kind, a wild his wife and son and arrange about canard was started today by some one the shipment of the bodies when the to the effect that the accident was the result of spite work on the part of Miller collapsed after crying out that river pirates, and the statement was carried to Chief Maxwell of the city police. He left for his work Monday morning and that is all that is known intil late in the afternoon driver Fred Jones of Engine 67 came speeding from Shelburne and saw his body laying by the roadside. He supposed it to be that of an intoxicated man, but in passing he noticed blood about the neck and immediately applied the brakes and brought the train to a standstill. The man was dead and the body was quite cold. It was taken aboard the train and brought at once to Liverpool.

An examination by Drs. Keddy and Trites revealed the fact that the right temple had been pierced by a bullet which had come out in front of the angle of the left lower jaw, shattering it badly and destroying several teeth. Behind the right ear, which was bruised, appeared a bad scalp about a half inch long. The back of the neck was much contused. On fron of chin skin was off, the tongue badly cut, evidently from the teeth, while the throat was full of blood. There was an abrasion upon the left while the neck was quite dark from hemorrhages.
