Only a few intimate friends among whom were members of the families of the contracting parties were present, and there were no attendants. After the ceremony the party went to the Royal hotel where breakfast was served. The dining room and tables were elaborately decorated with flowers, pampas grass, palms, and there were pretty souvenirs of the interesting event in the shape of special menu cards. The storm did not prevent a most appropriate audience from attending the concert in Trinity church school room on Wednesday evening, and those who ventured out were well repaid for any personal discomfort they may have experienced by the real musicality which was given under the auspices of the Y. M. A. and Y. W. C. of the church. The concert was the third in a series and was certainly so far the best given. Encores were numerous, and lengthened the affair considerably, the programme proper being quite long.

A small party enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Sherwood Skinner at a sumptuous dinner on Wednesday evening. The table decorations were exceedingly pretty and artistic, and the dinner perfect in all appointments.

There were two wild parties arranged for this afternoon, one of which is to be given by Mrs. E. Smith, and a tea at which Mrs. Robert Matthews will be honored, for which quite a large number of invitations have been issued. A party also goes out to Frobisher this afternoon on a snowshoe trip I believe.

Most of the members of the Oratorio society will take part, as the proceeds of both will go towards that organization.
