

CONTENTS.

VOLUME II.

(FOR CONTENTS OF VOLUMES I. AND III. SEE THOSE VOLUMES)

CHAPTER XXVI.

COMMON EMPLOYMENT AS A DEFENSE. INTRODUCTORY CHAPTER.

470. Doctrine of common employment stated.....	1304
471. Evolution of the doctrine.....	1305
472. Rationale of the doctrine.....	1307
473. Same subject continued.....	1311
474. Judicial criticisms of the doctrine.....	1319
475. General discussion of the doctrine.....	1323
476. Doctrine not applicable, where, at the time of the accident the servant was not acting as such.....	1328
477. Doctrine not a material factor, unless negligence causing the injury is established.....	1328
478. To what classes of acts the doctrine is applicable.....	1329
479. Defense not available where the dangerous conditions caused by the fellow servant's negligence were known to the master.....	1330
480. — nor where negligence in selecting the coservant is shown.....	1331
481. — nor where the wife of a servant is injured by the negligence of his coservants.....	1332
482. Rule where a stranger is being sued for an injury partially caused by the injured servant's coemployees.....	1333
483. Defense available against a servant beginning work after the
of the negligent act.....	1334
483a. of inferred from retention of negligent servant....	1334
484. of the doctrine in the case of seamen.....	1335
485. 	1335
486. ons performing forced labor.....	1335
487. — of employees of public bodies.....	1336
488. — of minors.....	1337
a. Generally.....	1337
b. In actions by a parent for loss of services.....	1339
489. Master not liable to his servant for injuries caused by the negligence of servants of a stranger.....	1339
490. Common employment not a defense to an action against a third person to recover for his servant's negligence.....	1339
491. Discussion of this rule.....	1344
491a. Rule where an independent contractor is suing the contractee ..	1347