An Unfair Arrangement

The manager of the taxi-cab company sat in his office interviewing with rare tact and judgment a sweet lady complainant.

"Yes," said the lady, "something broke, and we were delayed forty-five minutes whilst the driver tinkered with the machinery."

Her manner was very sweet and impressive, and the manager slowly abstracted the official cheque-book from its drawer in his desk.

"Madam," he remarked, "it certainly seems like a case of over-charging. The driver should only have charged you after the time for repairs had been deducted. By the way madam, what is your claim—precisely?"

"The man made me late for a bargain sale," the lady replied. "The sale opened at ten, but when I finally got there a blouse that was marked half a guinea was sold. I shall have to pay two guineas for another similar blouse, and I ask for the difference, please."

But by that time the manager had put away his cheque book.

Too Young or Too Old

From a youthful point of view. "What kind of a looking gentleman is your sister's beau, Master Tommy; is he young?"

"I should say so," replied Master Tommy; "why, he hasn't got any hair yet."

"I beg your pardon, sir, but you are the author of this play, are you not?" asked the lady.

"I cannot deny it, madam—I am," answered the man in the stalls.

"Well, sir," the lady continued, "before the curtain went up I took the liberty of cutting off a little lock of your hair. Do you mind now, if I return it to you?"

A Slight Error

Two tourists were travelling in Spain, but they could not speak the native language, and found considerable difficulty in making known their wants.

Eventually they came to a wayside inn, and decided that they would partake of roast beef with the usual trimmings.

"How shall we manage it?" asked one.

"Oh, we'll draw a picture of a bull!" replied the other.

The waiter was handed the drawing, and left them, apparently to execute their order.

Then he came back, but he had no steaming plate of roast beef and Yorkshire. Instead, he calmly handed them two tickets for a bull fight!
