CARDINAL GIBBONS WARNS AGAINST WORRY

MESSAGE TO THE MANY WHO ARE AGITATED BY VAIN HOPES AND FEARS-HURTFUL INFLUENCE OF EXCESSIVE ANXIETY. LABOR TO-DAY, TRUST TO-MORROW TO GOD

Preaching in the Baltimore Cathedral on a recent Sunday, to a congregation that filled every corner of that historic edifice, Cardinal Gibbons warned against excessive anxiety over worldly fortune and urged that more confidence be placed in God, as He would provide for the morrow if the most is made of to day. His Eminence said, in part:

"We cannot but admire the con of the multitude who followed our Lord into the desert, and who were so intent on hearing the word of life that came from His lips that they gave no thought to supply them-selves with food for the body. But our Lord, who bids us seek first the kingdom of God and Hig righteousness, and promises that all things else shall be added unto us, did not fail on this occasion to reward their piety by the miraculous multiplicapiety by the miraculous multiplica-tion of bread. Their conduct is an example for all of us to avoid excessive anxiety about the future.

"I do not pretend to read your thoughts, my brethren, but I venture to say that there is scarcely a grown member of the congregation before me who is not agitated by some vain hope or fear. Each of you has his round of cares, which flow and ebb like the tide. As soon as one care subsides another rises in your breast in endless succes

"Now, the religion of Christ, which was established to prepare us for future bliss in the world to come, contributes at the same time to our happiness in this life, as far as it can be attained in our present condition. And as cares and solicitudes are a bar to peace and tranquillity, our Lord suggests to us by His inspired writers and by His own voice the motive and means of banishing those cares, or of lessening their hurtful influence and of lightening their burden. If Christ will not subdue the storm that assails us, He will at least help us to ride upon the waves of adversity, as He enabled Peter to walk upon the Sea of Galilee.

'And for raiment, why are ye so licitous? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow. They labor not, neither do they spin. And yet I to you that not even Solomon in all his glory was arrayed as one of these. Now, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to-day is and to-morrow is cast into the fire, much more you, I ye of little faith.' Look at the flowers in your garden How rich and variegated in their dress! More beautiful to the eye are the tints and shades of these flowers than the Tyrian purple with which Solomon was arrayed in the days of his regal splendor. Now, if owers of the field which bloom to day and wither to-morrow, can He neglect to provide suitable apparel for your bodies, which are destined transplanted and to bloom for ever in the Paradise of God? BURDENS OF LIFE COME ONE BY ONE

"But perhaps you will say : Would it not be more merciful on the part of God and contribute to our peace of mind if the Lord were to reveal to us in our early days all the trials and the course of our lives? Forewarned, we would be forearmed. Quite the contrary. If the whole cloud of sorrows destined for us were set before us at one view, we would sink under the accumulated weight. And therefore Providence places before us the burdens of life one by one, so that we may have the courage to carry them.

"And I do not think that even Sir Thomas More, with all his Christian philosophy and playfulness of humor, would have exhibited his character istic cheerfulness if it had been revealed to him in his youth that his blood would be shed in defense of his faith by Henry VIII. Again you will say: 'I am discontented with my condition in life. I am devoured by the desire of possessing more affluent means. I wish to have a more capacious residence, better furnished apartments, a more elegant wardrobe. I would like to have the duxury of an automobile and indulge In an occasional joy ride. I cannot afford even the convenience of a telephone.' Most of our wants are artificial and imaginary. Queen Vic-toria never had the luxury of an automobile, nor even of a telephone And her predecessor, Queen Eliza-beth, ate her meat with her fingers and with a good appetite, for forks were not in use in England until the seventeenth century. WHAT ARE ITS FRUITS

"What good will all this fretfulness cent to your wealth, nor one jot to your happiness, nor one day to your span of life. That excessive anxiety to which you yield weakens the in-tellect, dissipates the energies of the will and incapacitates you for the due performance of your duties, while an abiding trustin God enables you to work with a concentrated mind and a hearty good will.

"Here is the most powerful argument against inordinate care. The heathens believed in the existence of many gods. Their gods, they admitted, rarely took any interest in human affairs, but were wholly in.

tent on promoting their own schemes and securing their own happiness. "It was not, then, a matter of wonder that the heathen should be so licitous for the things of this world ince he imagined that everything was the result of chance; that there as no God in heaven to interest Himself in human affairs and no future life to compensate the patient sufferer for the trials of this world.

"But you have been taught a more consoling and a more sublime doctrine. You believe in the existence of a superintending Power that vatches over the affairs of men and of nations. You know that the same Divine Wisdom that numbers and names the stars of the firmament counts the very hairs of your head. You know that the same omnipotent God who supports and nourishes the angels in heaven feeds also the worms

"In fact, what is this earth but a vast storehouse containing all things essential to the wants of man? If you look above you, you will behold the mountains clothed with virgin forests. If you delve into the bowels of the earth, you will find an inexhaustible supply of coal and other minerals. If you cast your eyes around you, you will see there valleys smiling with harvests of grain and fruit. What God said of old to Adam He says also to you: Rule over the fish of the sea, and the fowls of the air, and the beasts of the field, and over all creatures that move on the face of the earth. "But you will say: 'If God has such an eye to our wants, if His Providence watches over us, may we not fold our arms, sit down idly and do nothing? May we not even squander what we possess, trusting in God to replenish our coffers?" Man is a reasonable being. Provision for the future is one of the attributes of a reasoning man, and this foresight requires a certain amount of mental labor

GOD HELPS THOSE THAT HELP THEM-SELVES

"God forbid that, while you are admonished to avoid the extreme of solicitude, you should fall into the other extreme of idleness and improvilence. If your Lord points out to you the care His Heavenly Father takes of you. He expects you at the same time to co-operate with Him. God helps those that help themsel-

"It is true, indeed that God feeds the birds of the air, but He does not deposit their breakfast in their nests. They must rise early to find it. I have watched the robin in the morn ing, and I believe he travels and labors more assiduously for his breakfast than the average workman "It is true that God crowns the mountains with forest trees and en riches the bowels of the earth with coal and other mineral deposits. But it is equally true that this wood and coal cannot be of service to man without hard and patient toil. "It is true that God gives fecundity to the earth, so that it produces grains of all kinds for the nourishment of man. But it is equally true that before the crops can be utilized man must cultivate the soil, plant the seed, reap it and gather it into barns. Christ multiplied loaves to point out the duty of human industry.

LABOR AND TRUST

"The upshot of God's teaching is this: You should be active and industrious without excessive solici-tude, diligent and laborious without anxiety. Labor to day as if all depended upon your right arm and brain; trust to morrow as if all depended upon the Providence of God. Use to-day, for it is yours; trouble not yourselves about the morrow, for it belongs to God; it is still in the womb of futurity, and may never be born to you. Sow the seed with provident industry; leave its growth to the hands of your Father.

"Endeavor to pass through cares as if it were without care. While it may be impossible to prevent the mists of perplexity and anxiety from hovering about the imagination and clouding the senses, do not permit these vapors to ascend to the higher and more serene atmosphere where the soul is enthroned and communes in undisturbed peace with its Maker."

THE LADIES OF THE SACRED HEART

In Monday evening's Advertiser appeared a statement to the effect that the ladies of the Sacred Heart were not "certificated teachers." We and gnawing care do you? It will have since learned that such is have since learned that such members of the community hold diplomas from the department of Education for the province of Ontario; twelve with A or B licenses are teaching in the Public schools at Halifax, whilst many members of the order, both in Europe and America hold Government qualifications as well as degrees of the University of London, England, Edinburgh, Dalhousie, Chicago, etc. A number

RELIGION SECONDARY

A prominent feature in the modern discussion of Religion outside the Church, is the effort to place the supernatural in a secondary position and to push bodily welfare always to the fore. This is also true of modern secular education. But in all true education the supernatural should he the salient feature. The force of revealed religion is impressed upon the young mind. He is taught to turn occasionally away from the things around him to a consideration of things belonging to a higher and nobler life. His religion is made the one great end and aim of his being He is urged to frequent and earnest prayer, in order that all his acts may be stamped with divine approval. He is taught that the praise or censure, the admiration or contempt of men is of little importance as long as his heart is right with God.

But up from the ranks of the un believers the cry has become more and more insistent that the future with its supernatural sanctions need concern no one so long as the life of the present be outwardly respectable and prosperous. Even men of religious affiliations, talking in a religious vein will calmly relegate Al mighty God and His Divine Son to an inferior place in the concerns of human life, and even contend that it does not really matter much if the thought of God never occurs to the

The world is already reaping the harvest of this teaching. The utter recklessness that mars human pleasure, the immodesty in dress, in the arts, in song, in the drama, the unnatural holocaust of human lives daily offered up to the idols of crime and murder, the excesses that make vice commissions possible, the paganism that has invaded society, crushing out of it every good instinct of law and order-all these must lie at the doors of those who set God aside. Against this chorus of satanic voices, sometimes chanting in hypocritical religious terms, sometimes ranting open blasphemy, the Catho lic Church almost alone takes her stand to-day. While the hordes of the deluded are crying out in anger against Christ, the Church stands in solitary loyalty beside the Cross. To her the body is indeed the temple of the Holy Ghost-but only the temple —a crumbling monument. The body shall die, but the soul never dies.-Pilot.

FRANCHISE FOR WOMEN

BALLOT FOR ST. ELIZABETH COLLEGE TYPES NOT TO BE FEARED

That there need be no fear of enrusting women with the franchise r with any other privileges enjoyed by men was a statement Bishop O'Connor made in addressing the graduates of the College of St. Elizabeth. The statement, however. was made with a qualification.

"From every side," the bishop said, "come intimations that the scope of woman's influence in public and private life is steadily on the in crease. The question that agitates the minds of many men is whether that influence will be for the best and highest interests and civic welfare of the commonwealth.

The answer to that question pends on the nature and characteristics of the higher education which those women will receive who are to be leaders of thought and action in the new era that is dawning. be an era of greater freedom and wider opportunities for women. That freedom and those opportunities involve tremendous possibilities for good or evil.

"The surest guarantee that the results will be beneficial," the bishop continued, "is to be found in educa-

The bishop declared that if that education be such as the young women of St. Elizabeth's College have received, the franchise and other privileges of men could be exercised by women.

Touching on the education the young women had received, the bishop declared that it was proof of the harmony between science and faith and a vindication of womanhood in its power to receive and to impart the most difficult branches of knowledge.

Holding that culture is a great good in itself, Bishop O'Connor declared that it was preferable to wealth or social position. It is, he asserted, the perfection of human nature and of the powers of the soul the attainment of the goal towards which one's faculties naturally tend in their ascent to the possession of the true, the beautiful and the Culture, it was pointed out, has ever been the possession of the for-tunate few, but has been of inexpressible service to the many.

"The progress of the race," said the bishop, "has been the result of those who cultivate the spiritual and the intellectual in the confident trust that in these are to be found the best and richest sources of blessing, even to those who toil in the lowest planes of life.

'We sow in the present the seeds of the future. Knowing accurately the ideas that prevail among the thinkers and scholars of to-day, we can foresee with unerring certainty the events which the future will bring forth; for these thinkers and scholars though perhaps unknown to the world are really shaping the history of to-morrow.

"Against the power of ideas and principles material resources are vain. Material resources are subject to disintegration and decay, whereas ideas and principles are spiritual and indestructible, persisting like and nervading all human works, and eventually molding and shaping those works to their own unchang ing image or destroying them and leaving only the record of their rise and fall.

"Truth is mighty and will prevail, is the motto of the teacher; and the abiding place of truth is the cultivating intellect, safeguarded and fortified against the allurements of error by the supernatural aids which true religion affords.

Our hopes, therefore, rest on the success of such institutions as St. Elizabeth College, whose efficiency, thoroughness and successful achieve ments we are gathered here to-day to recognize and applaud.

'And if there is one thought would impress on the minds of the graduates it is this: that they prove themselves the loyal and devoted advocates of the progress and prosper-ity of their alma mater.—N. Y Freeman's Journal.

SOMETHING FOR OUR BOYS

Now that the scholastic year is over and with it the several test examinations that lead to a new course of studies for the coming year, a number of our boys will, no doubt, be considering what line of work to take up that will best fit them for future career. Indeed it is well that they should do so. Wm. Sheldon, Secretary of the Board of Education, Los Angeles, Cal., said recently in addressing a group of students: "If a young person wishes to give himself a square deal, he must have a purpose. This purpose should include choosing a vocation early, and preparing for it. Unfortunately choosing a life-work is often postponed too long. Very commonly young men even graduate from universities without having considered seriously what their permanent occu-pations shall be. Aimlessness in youth brings aimlessness in manhood and, if persisted in, consequent failure. Sensible indeed is the youth who directs his thoughts and acts to wards preparation for his chosen

The need of priests and religious teachers was never greater than to day. The great cause of Catholic education will possibly appeal to some of our boys and young men in a particular manner and to these the Christian Brothers' Training College and noviopportunity to fittingly prepare themselves for the noble calling of religious education.

The ten Bishops and their small but loyal army of priests and sisters could preserve the faith of the Filipinos if they were unhampered But five Protestant sects have clev erly divided the Islands into zones which to make an attempt to stamp out the faith. These sects are the Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists and a new one, called 'Campbellites or ' ' Christian

CALDEY ISLANDS

Caldey Island, South Wales, the home of the converted Anglican monks, was for a thousand years monastic property, broken only by the cataclysm of the English reformation, when it became secular property. Caldey Abbey was found ed by Celtic monks in the year 450. Among the great names connected with it are those of St. Iltyd, St. Samson, St. David of Dales; Dubric (475.560), he who crowded King Arthur; St. Paul of Leon, St. Gildas. It is consoling to Catholics to know that Caldey, Pershore Llanthony and Malling monasteries may once again become the property of the Roman obedience.

The high altar at Caldey monastery is built principally of stones taken from the ruined religious houses of Great Britain and Ire land.

The Catholic faith is as much the faith of the Philippines as of Ireland. It is being attacked as the faith of Ireland was attacked. But the generous aid of Catholic Americans already done much to check the onslaught. Bishop Dougherty is con ducting and extending a Catholic hospital, free of charge, at the very door of an endowed Presbyterian hospital that had been drawing Catho lic Filippinos from the faith. He has opened an orphan asylum, improved his seminary, rebuilt churches and sent out zealous missionaries to the isolated districts to strengthen the natives who are in danger from the insidious wiles of the proselytisers.
