Stewart, private secretary to Thompson.

Representatives from the following Beards of Trade were in attendance:—
Toconto, Montreal, Hamilton, Kingston, Charlottstown, P. E. L., London, Othaws, Peterborough, Stratford, Victoris, B. C., Quabec, St. Thomas, Winnipeg, and Chambre de Commerce, of Montreal. Quebec, 54. Thomas, Winnipeg, and Ohambre de Commerce, of Montresl.

His Excellency rose to open the conference at 11.05 c'olock, and spoke for about 15 minutes. He offered the delegates the most cordial greeting. For the sake of the purposs of the conference, he welcomed them. He object none would regret having come. It was highly proper that Otiawa, the capital of Oanada, should have been chosen as the place of meeting because of the rest of the Empire, because of the scheme having originated here, and because of Canada's prosperity and commercial position. He was sure the continuous of Canada's prosperity and commercial position. He was sure the continuous of Canada's prosperity and commercial position. He was sure the continuous of Taylor to further trade-relations could not fall to advance the results all desired to secure. He dilated upon the advantages to accure from the conference, making special reference to the value of the exchange of ideas between representa-world. Sir John Thompson, in an eloquent speech, welcomed the delegates in the name of the Dominion. It was a matter of congratulation, he said, that the meet-

vantages of multini trade and interconsing of views.

Hon. B. Sotter moved that a committee the appointed to prepare an address of congratuation from the members of the conference to her Majesty the Queen. on the coession of having statemed the 57th anniversary of her coronation.

This was done, and a resolution on these lines adopted by the conference.

The meeting broke up by singing "God Save the Queen."

THE BARQUET.

The dining room of the Russell was crowded to its utmost capacity tenight and presented a magniflont appearance, helig most beautifully decorated with flags, banners, streamers and greenery. The stables were laid in the same manner as at the celebrated dinner to Lord Lansdowne, some seven years ago, that is, one long table extending the whole length of the room and nine cross tables. Covers were laid for 276. Hon. Mackenzie Bowell presided.

At 10:20 the toast of the Queen was most enthusiastically drunk, followed by that of the Governor General. Lord Aberdeen paid a graceful compliment to the visitors and said that he believed the meeting was already having, and was bound to have, a good result. He thought that 15 or 20 years ago such a question as the relations of the colonies to the Mother Country would scarcely have been discussed, but a Jersey as an Imperial delegate, because no one was so well acquainted as he with the wants of the Australian colonies. In concluding, he said that if even no practical results would follow the no presence, nothing her good could come from their having conferred together.

Hon. Thomas Playford, Bouth Aussalia, said that blood was thicker than water, and his idea of brotherhood was that you should etick to your brother closer than you would to a stranger. He had always admired the Canadians for sticking to Britain during the American revolution. Great Britain was wong, but he admired the Canadians all the more for sticking to her when ahe was wrong, but he admired the Canadians all the more for sticking to ner when she was wrong, but he admired the Canadians all the more for sticking to her when she was wrong. He hoped to ass a resolution passed by the conference in favor of Great Britain giving better terms to her colonies than to strangers. If the did that the colonies would be ready to give her a preference in their markets. Messra. Devilliers and Smith also returned thanks, while Mr. Fitzgerald groposed the health of the Parliament of Canada, presising the Oanadian Confederation and expressing the opinion that it would not be long before the Australian colonies followed the good example.

Bit John Thompson, in glowing terms advocated a closer union of the colonies and hoped that the day was not far distant when the people of the Empire was largely due to the fact that the Empire as well as Great Britain's. It was a simple daily he owed to his fellow countrymen to testify to the loyalty of the French Canadian recome would be no Canada to day. A people for market would be no Canada to day. Hon. Mr. Laurier said that for the information of the visitors he would say that Parliament of Canada was very much like other bodies, there was quantity on one side and quality on the other. There was no one he said, who witnessed the seene in the Senate chamber that forenoon without being deeply impressed with the oharscates of the gathering. For his own part, when he saw his Excellency calling upon delegate after delegate from the various colonies, some of them which the ancients knew nothing about except as a land of awe and terror, he was deeply impressed with what Liberal institutions, pinels, and courage had accomplished. (Cheers.) One thing seemed quite clear, and that was that there was a deeply control singistation in the colonies in favorof self-government in the colonies. There was also a feeling for a broader union of Imperial interests.
(Hear, hear,) "In Canada we were the pioneers of self-government, when Baldwin and Latourstine advocated selfgovernment there were many men, not entry in Bristing, but the colonies, who be lieved it might be attended with very different results than what all now knew was the case. Self-government brought sen "colonial responsibilities to Bristing and more attachment on the part of those in the colonies. From the very day the redocate loft Quebeo the attachment to Bristing grew stronger." He went on to speak of the benefits of Consideration and the federation of the Anglo-Saxon rovwhich, if brought about at all, would be by the influence of the laws of trade. As to the loyalty of French Canadians, his own presence, as one entrusted by one of the great parties of the courty-, was a guarantee as to that. (Cheers.)
