SECRET DOOR IN THE ATTIC

And William Smith Was Found Secreted Behind It.

Will be Prosecuted as Vagrant To-morrow.

Mixed Up Affair Between Hunter Street Families.

On Saturday evening last the police started out on a moral reform crusado and raided two houses, arresting the immates. William Smith, 127 Cannon street west, was accused of being the keeper of an immoral place and Emma Jackson and Violet Smith were charged with being inmates. The raid was made about 11 o'clock by Sergeant Pinch and a squad of policemen. P. C. Gibbs gained an entrance into the house in dain clothes and then proceded to hold the door open while the other officers entered. No trouble was experienced in entered. No trouble was experienced in catching the two women, but Smith was not to be found. After vainly searching the lower floors, the police ascended to the attic. No person could be found there and they were about to descend, when P. C. Gibbs noticed something suspicious about the paper on one of the walls. He investigated and found that it was a severt door, cumingly covered it was a severed toor, cumingly covered it was a secret door, cunningly covered over with wall paper. Gibbs rapped on the door, saying: "Come on out, Bill; we know you are in there." He got no response. He called again and threaten-ed to break down the wall with an axe if Smith didn't appear. One of the of-ficers was then sent for an axe, but be-fore he came back Smith had decided to clink himself. sliow himself rather than run chances of being cut up with the axe. He was hundcuffed, put in the patrol wagon and driven to the police station with the

At the Police Court this morning A. M. Lewis, who appeared for Smith, pleaded not guilty, P. C. Gibbbs, who watched the house previous to the arrest, told of aceing men going in and out individually and in pairs. According to a list he carried, from fifteen to twenty men risited the place every night.

The defendant swore that he had only been staying at the house intermittantly, and did not know that anything wrong had been going on there since his wife had been sent down a month ago. He said he paid none of the bills there, and received no money from the women

Walsh and a squad of police. She pleaded not guitty. Evidence was given by three policemen who watched the house. J. L. Schelter, counsel of the defence, called Mrs. Goo. Henderson, a neighbor, who testified that she had never seen anything wrong about the house. The Magistrate reserved judgment.

A mixed up case was that of Sarah Froman, 233 Hunter street éast, who was charged by William Digby with assault. The charge was a counter one to one laid by Mrs. Froman. The evidence was very contradictory. The trouble, said Mr. Digby, arose out of the fact that Mrs. Froman ill-treated his child. Mrs. Froman was found guilty, and fined Sand coats. #### BICYCLES FOR LAND OR SEA.

BICYCLES FOR LAND OR SEA.

The amphibicycle is equally at home in water and on land. It is the invention of a Frenchman of Lyons, and has a pair of cylindrical floats, a propeller and a rudder. On leaving the water the cylinders and nautical gear are lifted up so as to allow the wheel to run on the ground. The cyclist can then pedal his machine in the usual way. As the cylinders can be made of thin sheet metal, they need not be heavy. In the water the machine makes five or six mines an hour.

The floats, which end in a conical point, are attached to the bicycle frame by jointed supports so that they can be raised and lowered as desired, and can be fastened in place when the cycle is on the road. For operating a propeller a rubber covered friction wheel is employed, which is behind the tire of the rear cycle wheel, the small wheel's motion being transmitted by a bevel gearing to the propeller shaft. By using the proper combination of gearing the propeller can be reversed.

A certain street carnival company had been playing the medium-sized towns and so that big crowds were attracted. Invargood were their free outdoor aftractions is ally during the organization's stay in any town the police were deluged with complaints from persons who had been robbed. But no arrests were made, although, as is always the case, the word was passed on to the police of the next town. Finally, an unusually astute sleuth saw a man connected with the show picking pockets, but was cunning emough not to make an arrest at the time. The man was shadowed, however, until he led the police to a rendezvous of a round dozen of other shownen who were surprised while sharing up about a bushel of watches, jewelry and other loot. One of the dips weakened under the "third degree" at police headquarters, and the truth was out. The star attraction with the carnival company was a high-diver who plunged from a lofty trestle into a small tank of water. It was during his act that the dipping was done. It developed that the high-diver was actual chief of the pickpockets. Instead of receiving a salary for his hazardeus work, he turned over to the management of the company a share of the spoils under the arrangement that the latter were not to molest the pick were convicted, but it was impossible to get sufficient evidence against the show managers.—From "The Science of the Dip," in the July Bohemian.
