All day, exhibitors and those in charge of the various booths, amusement features, etc., were busily engaged preparing for the evening's opening, and before the appointed hour, a large number of people had assembled in the building and on the grounds.

After an inspection of the varied and comprehensive exhibits, those taking part in the ceremonies, with the officers and directors, assembled on the large grand stand in the centre of the main building, where W. B. Snowball, M. P., President of the Association, called the assembly to order, delivered a short opening address and introduced the various speakers.

Mayor Loggie extended a hearty welcome on behalf of the town, to all patrons of the exhibition, eulogizing the efforts of the management and exhibitors in the success of their efforts as evidenced by the various displays now ready for inspection.

Mayor John Russell of this town extended greetings and best wishes from Newcastle for the success of the Chatham Fair.

J. L. O'Brien the next speaker, was introduced by the chairman as the youngest member of the Legislature. After referring to the splendid exhibits of the fair and comparing them with other provincial fairs Mr. O'Brien stated that the number of exhibitors could hold its own with any section of the province, and was proud to be a representative of such a county.

S. D. Heckbert, another member of the Legislature and also a member of the Managing Committee of the Exhibition, gave a brief address extolling the high merits of the live stock, agricultural and other features of the fair, and on behalf of the management extended a cordial reception to all in attendance with a request that should there be complaints, that same be brought to the attention of the management; while all information desired would be cheerfully given by officials.
