BIG AND TIMELY THEME SPLEN-DIDLY DEVELOPED BY CAB-ANNE IN DRAMA OF THE STAGE.

With his unique faculty for selectng and timely themes and developing them into powerful stories for the screen, William Christy Cabanne has achieved another triumph with his most recent R-C production, "At the Stage Door," for exhibition at the Nickel Theatre to-night. Mr. Cabanne not only directed the production himself, but he also wrote the story, taking for his theme the conquest of temptation by a young and beautiful girl from the country who goes to New York to seek success on the stage. There are two sisters, Mary and Helen Mathews, and they live in a small up-State village. Helen is the younger and is pampered by her mother from childhood, while often Mary sacrifices her own happiness for her smaller sister. When the girls grow up Helen wins Mary's flance and they are married, after which Mary, broken in heart, leaves her home and goes to the city to forget. She gets a job in the chorus and subsequent developments make a story of the most engrossing inter-

Mr. Cabanne presents a vivid pic-ture of theatre life in New York and the stage scenes are among the most interesting in the production.
"At the Stage Door" makes no pre-tention of being a big sermon or prob-

Forty-Four Years in the Service o the Public-The Evening Telegram. Ten Years

Among Eskimos.

Explorers Slain as Evil Spirits. Christian Leden, the well-known Norwegian explorer, is back in Norway, after an absence of ten years. His wanderings took him among the wild and little-known Eskimo tribes of the inland territory north and west of Hudson Bay. Some of these tribes had never seen a white man before, and were very primitive and superstitious in their beliefs.

A short time before Mr. Leden came among them they had killed two Americans, who they considered were evil spirits, and a month or two later a Canadian and a French mission priest suffered the same fate, the Eskimos believing them to have come from the underworld to avenge the death of the Americans.

In 1919 Mr. Leden started for anther expedition to the Canadian Arctic to collect for an American useum. His ship became a wreck between Hudson Bay and Repulse Bay, and he and his crew had to row 120 miles in an open boat to Chester-

Eskimo music is also to be studied, and any relations between their folk melodies and those of other primitive tribes are to be investigated. From his collection of Eskimo songs.

Mr. Leden has shown that there are many points of similarity between the folk tales of the Eskimos and those of many North American Indian tribes, and in one instance a North Greenland Eskimo song has its almost exact counterpart in one from Southern
