Obituary

DONALD M. STEIN.

We regret to record the sudden demise, on August 29th, of Donald Morrison Stein, the chief engineer of the S.S. Santa Eulalia, of the American and Cuban Steamship Line. It appears that while Mr. Stein was descending a ladder from the ship to the dock, he missed his footing and dropped a distance of about forty feet. He was rushed to St. Catherine's Hospital, where he died shortly afterwards. The funeral took place from Fairchild Chapel, Brooklyn, to the Fresh Pond Crematory. He leaves to mourn him many relatives, including five brothers, Jack, the Port Engineer of Baltimore, Conrad, Gerald, Robert and Cecil, and one sister, Clara, who resides in New York. The Telegram extends sympathy to them in their bereavement.

Local Inventor is Victim of Own Invention

OIL REFINERS WERE EXPERIMENTING OVER OPEN GAS JET WITH DISASTROUS RESULTS.

R. G. Younglove, severely burned in an explosion of oil Sunday afternoon, died of his injuries in a local hospital at 11.30 this morning. He was badly burned around the head, chest and arms. The injuries coupled with shock resulting in his death. When the blast occurred, the young wife of the dead oil man was in a nearby suite. He ran to get her safely out of the building as the room in which the explosion occurred was by that time in flames and threatened the whole interior of the block. His clothing was then burning. He returned to the room and tried to fight the flames. Later he with C. Stone, engineer at the north side refinery, were taken to the hospital, where Younglove died. Stone will live.

KEROSENE EXPLODED.

As far as can be learned Younglove was a man about 45 years old and a Canadian. He was a married man. His wife and baby, a year and a half old, have been living with him in a suite in the Kirkham block. Two months ago he was employed by the Standard Refining company and since severing his connection with that concern has been working on an invention, a new pressure still. He had great hopes for the apparatus and invited Mr. Stone to see it tested out Sunday afternoon. A quantity of kerosene, presumably containing some moisture, was used in the experiment, the heat being supplied from an open gas jet. As the test proceeded the oil exploded fatally injuring the inventor.

Prior to coming to Lethbridge, Younglove was employed in the government elevator at Moose Jaw and from there went to the mills where he engaged in contract work for the mills. He came to Lethbridge from the woods.

An inquest will be held. Two men are in the hospital suffering from severe burns and the Kirkham block is damaged to the extent of $500 as a result of an oil explosion Sunday afternoon. C. Stone, engineer at the oil refinery, and a companion named Younglove, are the victims of the blast, both men being quite badly burned around the face, hands and chest. They suffered most of the injuries, it is understood, from fighting the flames after the explosion.

It appears that the men, both experienced in the refining business, were making some experiments in a little still with crude oil over an open gas jet. They had almost completed the test when the explosion occurred, burning them and setting fire to the interior of the room.

Other occupants of the building turned in an alarm and the fire department was soon on the scene fighting the blaze under control. The men were taken to the hospital. Younglove is a married man with one small child. NOTE:—The widow of the young inventor who lost his life in the manner described in the above clipping from the Lethbridge Daily Herald was formerly Miss Daisy Haddon, the daughter of the late John Haddon of the Customs Department. Her sister is Mrs. Stroog of Hill Street. Her mother is Mrs. Stroog of Hill Street. Her father is Mr. Stroog of Hill Street. Her mother is Mrs. Stroog of Hill Street. Her father is Mr. Stroog of Hill Street.

The Inside Story of Divorce

AT THE MAJESTIC TO-DAY.

"Reno," a Frank and Fearless Screen Feature.
 Roy Tappan in Reno gets a divorce from his wife Emily in the morning and marries Dora in the afternoon. Dora has just that day received a divorce from her husband. Emily Tappan finds herself left with two children and no money. Walter Health, who formerly loved Emily, asks her to marry him and she does, only to discover that the divorce is not good in that state and she cannot live with him. Tappan and his new wife find that each thought the other wealthy but they are penniless. He seeks money from his first wife who promises him all the money he wants if he will secure his two children and give them to her. He kidnaps the children and hides them in his aunt's home. After a frantic search Emily finds the children and with them and Walter, she goes to Yellowstone Park, where they are considered legally married. Tappan follows her and in a fight between Tappan and Walter, Tappan is thrown into the boiling pool of a geyser and then his body thrown high into the air by the force of the geyser and crushed on the rocks.
 "Reno" was late in arriving, but it was worth while waiting for. There is no extra charge, the admission continues the same, twenty cents.
