CENOTAPH PLANS
LAUNCHED TODAY

Site May Be Chosen and Designs Selected This Afternoon.

COMMITTEE MEETS

Representatives of Local Organizations To Gather at 5 o'Clock.

With the meeting of the London cenotaph committee at 5 o'clock this afternoon in the chamber of commerce rooms, it is expected that the cenotaph campaign will be launched. Dr. L. H. Douglass and his special committee to make plans for the cenotaph scheme will make its first complete report to the general committee. A site will be suggested and designs for the cenotaph submitted.

Mrs. George MacDonald, chairman of the cenotaph committee, will preside over the meeting, to which representatives of the different men's and women's organizations of the city have been invited. It is confidently expected that some definite action toward the raising of funds and erection of a cenotaph will be taken at this meeting.

CHAPTER WILL AID
CHRISTMAS CHEER

Mrs. Butler Appointed by 7th Regiment Members To Convene Relief Work.

At a meeting of the Seventh Regiment Chapter, I.O.D.E., held yesterday afternoon in the officers' mess at the armouries, $10 was voted by the members toward the Christmas Cheer fund.

Mrs. Groshaw presided over the meeting in the absence of the regent. Mrs. Frank Butler, the regent, was appointed to look after the relief work of the chapter for the winter months. The mystery package, donated by Mrs. Harold Annundson, was won by Mrs. R. Mercer. Mrs. Earl Johnston was the tea hostess.

UNCLE WIGGLY AND JIMMIE'S

LETTER
Copyright, 1925, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

By HOWARD R. GARIS.

Jimmie Wiggles, the boy duck, came home one day from the Hollow Stump school, shuffling his feet lazily over the frozen ground, letting his wings hang loosely, and there was an unhappy look on his funny little face.

"What's the matter, Jimmie boy?" asked Uncle Wiggly, who was visiting at the duck pen.

"Aw, the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Stump school says we have to write a letter," quacked Jimmie.

"A letter—to whom and what about?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"She said we could write it to her or to anybody we liked, or to you," went on the duck boy. "It's a kind of composition, you know."

"Yes, I know," spoke Uncle Wiggly. "But that's easy. Write me a letter if you like, Jimmie. I shall be glad to get it."

"Aw, what's the use of me writing you a letter?" asked the duck. "You're right here with me—I could tell you anything instead of writing it."

"Well, then," suggested the rabbit gentleman, "write your Lady Mouse Teacher a letter."

"Yes, but what about—what about?" quacked Jimmie in a fretful voice.

"That's the trouble—I don't know what to write. She said we should put in our letter things that happen to us and nothing ever happens to me."

"I am not so sure about that," went on the rabbit uncle. "Perhaps more happens than you think. But forget about the letter for an hour or two. You will have time enough to do it after supper. You said, yesterday, you wanted me to go with you while you looked for some corn. I'm ready to go now."

"Oh, are you?" quacked Jimmie joyfully and he felt so happy that he tossed his strap of books up into the air, and when they came down the books nearly hit Lulu, only Jimmie pulled his sister out of the way in time.

"I'm sorry," quacked the duck boy, and then he and Uncle Wiggly went over the fields and through the woods looking for corn.

"The best place will be on some farm," said Uncle Wiggly. "Farmers in gathering their corn, nearly always drop a few ears in the field and forget about them. These we can find, perhaps."

On the way to the farm, Jimmie saw a little pond of water, with a thin film of ice on it. This ice he broke and put his yellow bill under water thinking he might get some sweet roots to eat. But a big rat lived under the edge of the bank, and nearly hit Jimmie's head off. The duck boy gave a loud quack and flew out of the puddle just in time.

"Be careful!" cried Uncle Wiggly as he hopped on with Jimmie.

A little later Jimmie stepped on a piece of glass and cut his webbed foot.

MRS. E. B. SMITH, president of the London hunt ladies' golf committee, who will preside over the official presentation of trophies at the club luncheon today. The quaint old English rose bowl, which is to be presented to Mrs. Douglas Weld, the club champion, is the gift of the president.

Trumpets of Dawn

(Locrine.)
Now with exultant clamor and acclaim
The golden-throated trumpets shake the dawn;
The lifted temple altars are aflame
With that rich fire that once in Zion shone.
And hear, O hear, ye mothers ye who wept,
And weeping, won redemption with your tears—
Through hope the faith inviolate have kept—
The New Immanuel of Peace appears—
The all-bright heralds their hosannas lend,
And all the hosts of Heaven in majesty attend.

From their high places let us sing today,
Down to the chasm of consuming fires,
Our heathen gods of passion-lust, nor say
Against the withered moans of our desires.
That beautiful morning, told of sage and priest,
Has broken on the hills of Babylon—
Behold, O Nations, on the impassioned East
Unutterable glory of the dawn—
The splendor from the hilltops floods the way,
And the great heart of God beats in the risen day.

Londoner's Story Appears
In Current Issue of Echoes

I. O. D. E. Readers Throughout London Are Delighted With I. O. D. E. Prize Story, "Life Has Loveliness To Sell."
Published in Official Magazine.

A Canadian and a Londoner figures largely in the current issue of Echoes, the official magazine of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire. In it is to be found the I.O.D.E. prize short story, "Life Has Loveliness To Sell," written by Mrs. J. W. Thornburn, of St. George Apartments, this city, known to the reading public as Amy Campbell. The story, coming into competition with stories from the pen of hundreds of other Canadian writers, had to be written under a pseudonym, and the author chose her mother's name, Jean Bartlett. It is under this name that Echoes publishes it.

"Life Has Loveliness To Sell" is a delightful little piece of prose with a human-interest story running through it. It is the unexpected ending which lends charm to the theme, and lifts it from the ordinary.

The story opens in a wrecked railway train, the scene changing to the beautiful northern Canadian woods before the tale is finished.

This story is but one of the many of Canada and depicts the wonderful mineral resources of the country, and how man and his marvelous machinery is making the native ore marketable.

This is a home and fashion section, a boys' and girls' page, a book review section, and a section for chapter news. In short, the magazine is filled with interesting material, is well worth reading, and is a credit to the I.O.D.E. It is published quarterly. Miss Carrie Fitchett is the local Echoes secretary.

STEAMER AT WIARTON
RELEASED FROM ROCKS

Owen Sound, Dec. 1.—After having gone to the rocks at the mouth of Collins Inlet on Saturday last, the steamer Edward Buckley of the Peninsula Tug and Towing company, Wiarton, has been released by the tugs Harrison of Owen Sound and Strathbogie of Midland. While the boat was very hard aground little damage was done. A party of hunters, returning to Wiarton comprised the passengers.

To Make Pine Cough
Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results.
Takes but a moment to make.
Saves about $2

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 25 ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It's pure, good and pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same, inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchitis.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "25-2 ounces of Pinex with directions" and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

I don't know what to write.

quacked Jimmie.

Jimmie was hit and away they hurried, over the fields and through the wood, back home, carrying two ears of corn, the yellow kernels of which Mrs. Wiggles cooked for supper that night.

In the evening Uncle Wiggly saw Jimmie very busy writing his school letter.

"I thought you said you didn't have anything to say," spoke the bunny.

"Oh, but that was before I went after corn with you," quacked Jimmie.

"I'm writing about how my books nearly hit Lulu, how the rat nearly caught me, how I cut my foot and how we were almost shot!"

"That ought to make a newsy letter," said the bunny, and the Lady Mouse Teacher said Jimmie's composition was the best in the class.

So now, when the gold fish sings like a canary bird, which I hope it will do tomorrow night, I shall tell you about Uncle Wiggly and Jackie's cave.

I. O. D. E. PROMISES
CENOTAPH $100

Princess Patricia Chapter Will Also Aid in Christmas Cheer.

The members of the Princess Patricia chapter, I. O. D. E., had a busy afternoon at the home of their regent, Miss Eula White, yesterday, when they voted several sums of money to various causes.

Outstanding among the donations was the sum of $100 toward the cenotaph. The Adam Beck memorial fund received a donation of $5, and the navy league the sum of $10.

The chapter, in the interests of Christmas cheer, voted $15 to the general Christmas fund. The members also decided to give $5 toward the Christmas cheer fund for the children at the War Memorial hospital.

Peter Rabbit
Watches Paddy

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Peter Rabbit has a wholesome respect for the soft-footedness of Yowler the Bob Cat, together with a great fear of that usually hungry person. So, when Peter suspects that Yowler is about, he has a habit of lying low, as the saying is.

"If you know where an enemy isn't, but don't know where he is, it is wisest to stay in the former place," says Peter. "It is the safest thing to do."

So Peter remained all night close to the hollow log in the alder swamp near the place where a new dam had been begun. He not only remained all night, but continued to remain after Jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun had begun his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky. Little Mrs. Peter would have to get along by herself as best she could over in the dear Old Briar Patch that day. Truth to tell, she could get along very nicely without Peter. It wouldn't have flattered Peter at all to have known how very nicely she could get along without him. But the fact is, Peter did not dare leave that hollow log. Not even after daylight did he dare leave. For then, though he did not fear Yowler so much, he did fear Reddy Fox. A wandering Merry Little Breeze had brought to him the scent of Reddy, whereby he knew that Reddy was somewhere near.

"Hi, Paddy!" he cried. "What are you doing over here in broad daylight?"

It was quite late in the morning when Peter was awakened. At first he could think of nothing unusual. Then he heard the sound of something being dragged right past that old log in which he was hidden. Very cautiously Peter peeped out. Paddy the Beaver was dragging a freshly cut young alder over to that newly begun dam. Peter almost doubted his eyes. There he had been all the night before watching and waiting for Paddy, and Paddy hadn't appeared at all. Now, here in broad daylight, was Paddy working as only he or Mr. Toad could.

Peter poked his head out. There was the sound of another small alder falling. He looked in the direction of the sound and saw that it was Paddy. A few minutes later he discovered on the ground the young beaver's chosen brush. Peter scrambled out of that hollow log.

Have the Moffat Roast
Your Christmas Dinner

THE Christmas feast will prove more enjoyable than ever, if roasted in a Moffat Electric Oven. Real cooking can only be achieved by retaining, in the things you cook, all the luscious juices that Mother Nature placed there to flavor your meal. You don't want your 10 lb., 15 lb., or 20 lb. turkey reduced to a shadow of its former self in the roasting process. You should therefore cook the Moffat Way.

There is less shrinking and wasting of valuable food in a Moffat Electric Oven than in other ovens. Why?

Because Moffats Electric Range is built right to bake right. Your Hydro Shop or Electrical Dealer will be glad to demonstrate Moffats Electric Ranges to you. If you cannot secure a copy of our new booklet "40 Years Range Experience" in your locality, write Moffats Ltd., Weston, Ontario
