LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor Graphic.

Dear Sir:

In view of the fact that the casualty lists are now bringing names that are very near home, and also since this little town is so well represented at the front, I think more attention should be called to the fact that white is the mourning color approved by the Minister of Militia for those wearing mourning for our brave boys. If a scheme of this sort is to mean anything, we must all know about it, and agree together to wear it. What color so fitting as white, after all? Surely our dear boys deserve something more distinctive than the time-honored black. Of course, the older women would no doubt wish to wear black, but let us younger women wear white, with a white sleeve band on a dark coat, as suggested by the Minister. After all, white is a mourning color more appropriate to our Christian faith.

A SOLDIER'S SISTER.

LA BAIE DE CHALEUR.

Associated with the early history and discovery of Canada the name of Jacques Cartier will ever hold a commanding and unique position. It was he, who, nearly five hundred years ago, or to be exact July 19, 1534, sailed into this magnificent haven. An exceptionally hot day inspired the name, and it has borne that name ever since. La Baie de Chaleur—the bay of heat. Ninety miles long and from fifteen to twenty miles wide, this arm of the Gulf of St. Lawrence divides the Gaspé Peninsula from the Province of New Brunswick and the depth is sufficient to ensure a safe passage for the largest ships afloat. As the bay narrows into the estuary of the Restigouche, the scenery becomes bolder and more majestic, presenting one of the most superb and fascinating panoramic views in America. The whole region is mountainous, and almost precipitous enough to be Alpine; but its grandeur is derived less from cliffs, chasms and peaks, than from far-reaching sweeps of outline and continually rising dunes that mingle with the clouds. On the Gaspé side, precipitous cliffs of brick-red sandstone flank the shore, so lofty that they seem to cast their gloomy shadows half-way across the bay, and yavens with rifts and gullies, through which fretful torrents tumble into the sea. Behind them the mountains rise and fall in long undulations of ultramarine, and towering above them all is the famous peak of Tracadigache, flashing in the sunlight like a pale blue amethyst.
