To The World': Most of your readers are doubtless aware of the fact that during the past week the medical students of the city, aided by Drs. Richardson, Graham, Burns and others, have taken action against the policemen on the Yonge "street "beat" for unlawfully using their batons on several occasions during the past month or six weeks, and for refusing to divulge their numbers when asked to do so. It has been clearly proved before the commissioners, to their satisfaction, that the policers been clearly proved before the commissioners, to their satisfaction, that the policemen were guilty of both charges. Several of the policemen can be identified as having been present on those occasions, but as no one can identify the policeman who struck any particular individual, they all go free.

Now, sir, is this a fair state of things? The chief of police, Mr. Draper, must know the men who were on the "beat" the night named, and there can surely be no trouble in getting at the bottom of the affair. It a getting at the bottom of the affair. It looks very much as though the chief was trying to shield his men against the law, and this aspect is not lessened by the following fact:

On the night of Oct. 14th the students were attacked by the police and a young man named Bartlett had his head split open.

As soon as able to leave his room he was taken to Court street in a hack and laid an information before the deputy chief against P. C. Long, 110. This information was suppressed and the commissioners was suppressed and the commissioners never heard of it. Is not that fact alone worth investigation? There are about one thousand students in There are about one thousand students in this city and it has been proved before the commissioners that the police are in the habit of lying in ambush and on the approach of students rushing upon them and beating them unmercifully knowing their numbers to be hidden by darkness or by their rubber capes. The students contend that, even though they were disorderly, (which they positively deny) the policemen had no right to use their batons when not resisted. Are they not correct? resisted. Are they not correct?

Toronto, Dec. 2. PUBLIC OPINION.

London Advertiser: Sir John says he would prefer annexation to independence There's loyalty for you!
Galt Reformer: The book seizure was a very foolish and narrow-minded piece of ousiness in the first place.

Stratford Beacon: It is quite correct to say that Sir John A. Macdonald is the most successful politician of modern times. basis of mutual revenue tariffs, but in default of this arrangement we have no intention of allowing American manufacturers to kill our industries.

London Advertiser: Leading men in Great Britain speak of the future of Canada as unconcernedly as they would of the price of beef. Are they "veiled trators," or is it only Canadians who are forbidden to speak of themselves and their prospects? Grip: It is no wonder that the feeling in favor of Canadian independence is growing steadily stronger, as it unmistakably is. As an independent nation Canada would at least have the satisfaction of hearing her name mentioned occasionally—perhaps even with respect.
