The attacks I made on him would go to prove therefore that the party press has not improved since 1867. The system of hiring secondrate rib-stabbers to write so many columns a week of personal vituperation from Ottawa is one that must disgust all fairminded men, to whichever of the two factions they may belong.

The Globe, with even more than its accustomed recklessness, has fairly entered upon the role of ursa major-the greater bear. The little or lesser bears will shortly be heard from-say from Hamilton, London and Ottawa. A big growl is preparing, the first few growling notes from the Globe are but a slight foretaste of what is to follow. The Globe is on the warpath in the character of "Big Bear," and

On the occasion of a leading financial sort of thing, and it appears that a dead set at neutralizing the favorable impres sion produced is to be made. We have heard of an Indian chief called "Big Bear;" the Globe is about to usurp his name and place and appropriate his laurels,

However, bears are not always wise any more than bulls are. Just imagine such a contretemps as this to happen. Suppose the harvest of this year to be good or even no more than "from fair to middling." The indications are certainly pretty good, say up to the middle of June; that, we think, will be admitted. Sup pose, farther, that the season should turn out a particularly good one in Manitoba and the Northwest, a thing which is already almost among the certainties. There would be a change of feeling then we fancy, and "Big Bear" would not be quite so resplendent in war paint and feathers as he appears to be just now. It is possible that he might, under such adverse circumstances as those of prosperity to the Dominion, think it well to take a back seat and growl softly. However, just at present "Big Bear" is at the front uttering growls calculated to terrify ordinary mor-

The end of it all, with the Globe, is to be that the national policy, and the government that adopted it, are to be saddled with the blame and burden, of whatever financial trouble there may be in the country. And it is likely enough that some of the banks will get a rough wipe or two, should this be necessary to sustain-the "bear" view of matters generally. A certain contingency suggests itself however. Suppose that the country should is hard to find anything that will jump at a conclusion any quicker than a good might be said—and should obstinately persist in having a fair harvest, doing a fair business, and otherwise acquitting itself quite creditably from a business point of view? In that case where would "Big Bear"-alias the Globe be? We should say, somewhere away down below the the freezing point, in the estimation of

The business men of Canada may as well consider themselves notified of the fac that "Big Bear" is on the war path, and that he expects any number of little bears to follow him, without doubt. We have Ursa Major and Ursa Minor in the heavens above, and why not on the earth beneath But really there seems to be too much "bear" for the cold facts of the situation What appears to be wanted, to match the Globe, at all events, is a first-class, vigorous bull movement. Let the classic bulls of Thessaly, and Bashan, and Andalusia now come forward and "plant" themselves for the fight. If the battle comes off soon we fancy that "Big Bear" will retire to his den a sick and very much used-up animal.

The flight of Winans, the wool merchant, is the sensation in commercial circles His place on Church street was burned some weeks ago; he claimed $59,000 insurance; in establishing his claim he swore that he had certain wools in store; just how much he could only say by referring to the books which were very correct, but these he said had been burned; at all events he claimed that there was $59,000 worth of goods. The lawyer proceeded to ask him about the books and about certain entries. Winans answered so. The lawyer said, "If these books by any chance could be restored you would establish your claim?" When John Carling was minister of Winans replied in the affirmative. "Then here they are," said the examiner, and the books just as they had been found in a drain out at Lambton were produced. Winans was thunderstruck, conscience smitten. Recess was called and he went London brewery with his brother William. to lunch; he never returned to the court house, most likely never will. To the Editor of The World. SIR: Will some of your readers kindly answer one or more of the following queries, which were suggested by the reading of a report of Principal Sheraton's speech at the convocation of Wyckliffe college on the 15th ult? (taking it for granted that Wyckliffe college, as an educational institution, is specially designed for the training of young men in sound protestant, episcopal, evangelical doc-trines, so as to fit them for the ministry of will some one tell me what constitutes a protestant, episcopal, evangelical?

A Rev. Mr. Pitchie, who has lately been

What we believe of the blessed sacrament is, that in it the Son of God is present in the very flesh which He took of the Virgin Mary, His mother, and in the very blood which He poured out so freely for us upon the cross, and we believe that He will abide there under the sensible form of bread and wine as long as this world shall last.

We believe that auricular confession is a part of the preaching of God's ministers. I should be unfaithful to my trust if I held back from proclaiming by my words and by my practice that confession is necessary to salvation, and that God's ministers have the power to forgive sins.

E. church, which he, as an evangelical protestant professes and to believe gelical protestant professes not to believe in, constitute a protestant, episcopal, evan-gelical? Or does the fact of a man being able and willing to speak unkindly of any who may hold different be noticed in return. The Canadian hotel was kept by me during our first Scott act year in Halton, and was during that period a temperance house. Nothing that could intoxicate was sold on the premises. We never had to request any poor drunkard to swear that we did not sell whisky. Every one who knew us, knew that we meant temperance, lived temperance. We did not expect to make money there, but were willing to sacrifice a little to secure. of any who may hold different riews on points of doctrine or dis-cipline, sufficient to cause them to change their methods of working in a given cause, as Principal Sheraton is re-ported to have done in his speech, in which e charged such men with "cowardice," with a want of faith in the living power of christianity" or with being possessed of a "pharasaic spirit of separation?" If so, ow can such staunch protestant clergy nen as the Revs. Professors Caven, Grego and McLaren, or such prominent laymer as the Hon. Edward Blake, Professor Wil son, G. T. SIR: In following up this subject I am at all, but I wish to call his attention to the fact I notice in this morning's papers, that Mr. Chiniquay has been mobbed, stoned and disgracefully treated by the Roman catholics of Quebec for preaching the gospel. Mr. Chiniquay having been a priest himself knows too much about his late comrades to be allowed to speak plainly, but when I accused Roman catholicism of being intolerant I did not expect my statement avoil be so soon proved by an actual occurrence, in the very province nclined to change the heading and call it "Methodist Polity," as that is the subject I wish more especially to notice, the 'union" having been—thanks to the apathy of the burden-bearers-consummated. Let us then take the personnel of one "quarterlyboard", as a fair sample of what is usual throughout the connexion.

The class leaders, male and female, occupy their positions for life and are therefore entirely irresponsible, and nothing short of actual oriminality-and not always that—is considered a sufficient cause for their removal so long as they see eye to eye with the pastor. No member of the church has ever had anything to say as the church has ever had anything to say as to their appointment, nor have they anything to say as to their removal.

Then come, the stewards, always the creatures of the minister, nominated by him and bound, if they would remain stewards, to do his bidding. A very small sprat is thrown to the ordinary every day worshippers in that they are allowed by special grace of the conference to elect not more than seven stewards to represent special grace of the conference to elect not more than seven stewards to represent them on the quarterly board—and the number seven—the perfect number—remains the same, although the board of which they form a part may number fifty, and even in their selection the pastor has a good deal of influence.

relationships." In fact, they do a great many nonsensical and prosaic things, but they carefully avoid falling in love and sitting up nights and going down on their knees and yearning through six months of amatory probation to win the women of their hearts. One man of supposed great wealth feels great sorrow for sin! He has been living a double life and playing a double part all his days. Sometimes under restraint because of his known weakness of mind and because of his cases. because of his dangerous vagaries, sometimes holding cottage prayer meetings, and with the spirit of Mohammed, with the koran in one hand and the sword in the It used to be thought by our girls that for love-making all times and places were sacred. Now they have set seasons and assigned places. The summer resort is held to be the proper place. A hotel balcony, the deck of a yacht and a late supper at the seaside are allowable occasions. The ceremony must be carried on in diamonds and flounces. Its rhetoric is a comparison of resources, its title is a flirtation, its danger is an early divorce.

All this is in keeping with the scientific and commercial spirit of the age, which laughs at sentiment. The busy young other, compelling people in his power— not to "believe or be damned"—but to "pray or be discharged." Sometimes re-turning again to the "beggarly elementa" of the world when he sees a good chance to make a fat thing out of a questionable business. Sometimes preaching temperbusiness. Sometimes preaching temperance, but always holding on with a death grip to monies made out of the liquor traffic. Well, the church needs such men

It has been a query in my mind often how satan must have felt when he presented himself among the Sons of God and found he was recognized, but I have always felt that it was only because he was satan that he dared put in an appearance on that occasion, and on the same ground am compelled to account for the cheek of this mandaring to assume charge of a class composed of men any of whom were his superiors, socially, intellectually and religiously. This insult to the Almighty was perpetrated, and he is now continually being patronized by that humble follower as though his condecension in following the Saviour was greater than the Saviour's in dying for mankind. No member of that class had a vote as to his appointment, and some of them quietly left for the sake of peace sooner than submit to such an insult. —For constitutional or scrofulou Catarrh, and for Consumption induced by the scrofulous taint, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the true remedy. He loses the case however because of the forgery. He never was a methodist, nor does he believe in the doctrines of the church but the church needs money and the church authorities know that he has dishonestly acquired a fair income and the bargain is struck and he is established as a healer of sinners and a consoler of the doubting ones. Another man whose name is and has been a hissing and a bye-word, and of whom it might be said with truth varying the scriptural quotation slightly, "Behold an Ishmaelite indeed in whom there is no truth."
