TWELFTH YEAR.

DEAD PAST BURIES ITS DEAD.
THE SECTION BY SCANDAL COM.
FEBRUARY SQUABBLING.

By a Majority of 24 the House Declines to Take Cognizance of Mr. Lister's Allegations

Against the Postmaster-General.

Mr. Haggart Emphatically Declines to Investigate Section B.

Section B of the C. P. R. is the subject of a committee of investigation.

Mr. Lister made the motion which he had given notice charging that Hon. John Haggart was a member of the committee to investigate Section B.

Mr. Haggart said he wished to give the most explicit and most complete answer that he was able to give.

He stated before the C. P. R. committee that he never had any interest in any contract with the C. P. R. or from the Government and that he never had any interest in any contract in connection with the C. P. R. as a member of Parliament.

The contract was first let to Manning & Co.

and to the firm of Manning & Co. After the contract was awarded Fraser, Pittblado & Co. withdrew. Peter McLaren was taken into the firm of Manning & Co. He was financially. He and Mr. McLaren were interested in a number of business transactions together. At Mr. McLaren's request he arranged the terms on which Mr. Mc-Laren entered the partnership and afterwards he assisted in arranging the financial details of the settlement. The only money he got from McLaren was barely sufficient to pay his share of the debt.

Mr. Haggart asked for his knowledge of the section B contractor contribute anything for political purposes.

Mr. Thompson opposed the motion.

He said that the House should not be careful of adopting the motion, because members were interested in considering how far the jurisdiction of the House extended in matters of this kind. He asked what question of privilege was involved in the motion and he was told that there was no charge that the rights or privileges of any member were infringed upon.

The motion could come under the category of something which had recently occurred and which should be brought before the House. He said that the motion should properly be given notice and should be reached in proper time.

He waived this latter point, however, and asked the House to judge on its jurisdiction in leaving in the hands of the House the question of whether or not the House should not create any new disability or enquire into the private transactions of a member. The charge was that the independence of Parliament Act of 12 years ago was violated. He maintained that the jurisdiction of the House Parliamentary Act and had nothing to do with this Parliament. If any penalty for violation of that Act was to be imposed it should be imposed by the House and not by the courts. He said that the member secured his seat by a new title and that the House should not be concerned with the manner in which he secured his seat by another election and no stigma could attach to him because of the manner in which he secured his seat. He said that the pecuniary penalties provided in the Act were not to be applied for 12 months after the commission of the offence and he believed that a member could not use the money he had secured by another election. He said that the House should not be concerned with the manner in which a man was re-elected

election.

that there would be no bill, and not only that but that the Government and their followers would refuse to grant a committee to investigate Section B. The party will stick together like glue," said a private voice from the capital.

Great Rise for Further War Rumors—The McCarthyes Score One on the Parli-ment—France's Attitude on the Turkish Insurgent Successes.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The Daily News reports a steady movement of Russian troops westward. He says: "Temporary baracks have been provided in many places here and there and it is not known, however, where the troops will concentrate. The military officials are reticent and the local press is reluctant to allude to the matter." The movements are directed by General Vladimir Krieff and General Gourkov, at Warsaw.

Two of the ablest tacticians in the army. The Admiralty has ordered that all the large vessels of the Russian Navy be equipped with powerful torpedoes. These preparations have given rise to many war rumors.

The whole Russian press is opposed to Lord Salisbury's proposal to have the question of the Dardanelles settled by an international conference.

Germany in Russia.

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—The Kreuz Zeitung, in a warning article on the westward movements of Russian troops, says: "The disposition of the German frontier is three times as strong as formerly and new depots are being forwarded. Such measures speak for themselves.

The Kreuz Zeitung says it is believed that Russia is attempting to force a passage through the Dardanelles. The King of Roumania intends on his forthcoming journey to ask King William whether the Roumanians may rely upon the assistance of the Same Old Story.

MARLBOROUGH, Ont., Sept. 23.—William Polley, a youth of 17 years, working at the young woman's home, came over to John Stickle's on Oct. 22 to show a recent purchase of a self-cooking stove. He was seen by Stickle's employee, went up the lane towards the woods to try it. They fired each other's gun and he was seen to

THE MARKS OF THE STIGMATA.

A Young Catholic Woman Said to Have

Them on Her Hands and Feet.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 23.—Mrs. Mary Stackenberg, a young Catholic woman, of this city, is believed by her relatives to have the marks of the stigmata. The most notable of these marks is that of the crown of thorns.

She is believed to have had these marks since she was a child.

The first manifestations appeared in the form of a small, red, circular mark on the forehead, the first of blood from the five points described by the Bible in the history of the crucifixion, caused the great alarm in her family.

She remained in the trance for four hours. Then appeared in the palms of her hands, on the instep of her feet, similar to those upon the body of Christ.

These marks are of a dull reddish color, something like what are known as birch marks. The edges are irregular and the marks are not painful. None were heard of their appearance have been made at any time, but only on Friday, the day of the crucifixion.

Over eighty cases of stigmatization are recorded, although the marks in many instances are not permanent
