Burn This Letter.

One unique suggestion coming to the patent office recently is for a self-burning letter. Though the commissioners tried to keep the process secret, the story soon leaked out, and the suggestion was offered as a defense to the ardent swain who pours forth his soul in endearing and eloquent correspondence which later in the hands of some unsympathetic lawyer increases the damages in a breach of promise suit or in the divorce court helps to swell the alimony and excite popular derision.

Love letters have always played a conspicuous part in the affairs of nations and a still more momentous role in the history of hearts, but they generally possess peculiar features that make them "impossible" in cold type. Of course much depends upon the eyes that read them, but no matter how romantic the reader, if the eloquence is not intended particularly for him or her, the sentiments appear "stilted," "silly" or "distastefully sentimental," hence the advantage of the self-burning letter. So far as has been learned, however, the "novel contrivance" is but a sheet to which a certain brand of very flat match is attached for a suggestion.

Miss Braddon's First Effort.

When Miss Braddon, who lately celebrated her seventy-third birthday, was asked some time ago as to her first appearance in print, she replied, "To the best of my recollection, the first thing of mine that ever appeared in print was a song, in the seventeenth-century style, that was published in The Beverley Recorder in May, 1867." This first printed effort of the prolific and popular authoress, which was entitled "Rest," and signed "Mary Seyton," consisted of four verses, and opened thus:—

All joys on earth have we,
All fears on earth we see,
All cares on earth there be,
But never rest.

The Simplon Pass.

The Simplon Pass was a famous highway of travel long before Napoleon constructed the highroad. Milton came home that way from his grand tour, and so did John Evelyn. The latter traveler went in fear of his life, not only expecting avalanches to fall on him, but being apprehensive lest bears and wolves should issue from the caves in the precipices and assail him. The only actual harm which happened, however, was that his companion's dog killed a goat belonging to one of the peasants and that heavy compensation had to be paid. "A pistol," says the diary, "for the goat and ten more for attempting to ride away."

In Two Divisions.

Men are often divided into educated and ignorant, the rich and the poor, the famous and the unknown, but a division more marked than any other might be made between the strong and the weak. We meet them both in every walk of life. Their birth or education or general surroundings may be the same, but a sharp line divides those who govern their inclinations from those whose inclinations govern them. On the one side we see strength, accomplishment and value, on the other weakness, spasmodic and ill directed effort and inefficiency.

Not Sure About It.

"You'll be the happiest man on earth, I suppose, when your time's up," suggested the kindly old gentleman.

"Oh, I don't know," answered the convict. "I'm in here for life."

A Spare Diet.

The person who lives on hope is seldom troubled with obesity.

What To Do FOR Sickly Children

Letters from Mothers

"I wish I could induce every mother, who has a delicate, sickly child, to try your delicious Cod Liver and Iron Tonic VINOL. It restored our little daughter to health and strength after everything else had failed."—Mrs. C. W. STUMP, Canton, Ohio.

Mrs. F. P. Skonnard, of Minneapolis, Minn., writes, "I want to recommend VINOL to every mother who has a weak or sickly child. My little boy was sickly, pale, and had no appetite for two years. I tried different medicines and doctors without benefit, but thanks to VINOL, he is a well and healthy boy to-day."

C. Allen, of New Bedford, Mass., writes, "My two puny children gained rapidly in flesh and strength in a very short time after taking VINOL."

We positively know VINOL will build up little ones and make them healthy, strong and robust. Try one bottle, and if you are not satisfied, we will return your money.

HOW TO GET FREE

A 50c. BOTTLE OF PSYCHINE

(PRONOUNCED SI-KEEN)

The white corpuscles of the blood—the Phagocytes, as they are known scientifically—are the policemen or the scavengers of the body.

Not a germ of disease can invade the body anywhere but these white corpuscles get after it. And, if they are strong enough or in sufficient numbers, they devour it.

If they're not strong enough or in sufficient numbers, then the invading army of disease germs triumphs and disease holds the body.

Any preparation that strengthens these white corpuscles or that increases their number, will not only preserve health, but will build up its defenses so strongly that contagion or infection are impossible.

Herbs have always been great curative agents from time immemorial.

They have been styled nature's own remedies.

Certain herbs more than others are noted for their curative powers.

And it has been found that these herbs that are most effective in maintaining or restoring health, do so by building up the white corpuscles or Phagocytes.

These herbs are incorporated in Psychine.

And it is the tremendous curative power of these herbs that is responsible for the unequalled record of this splendid preparation.

Think of it. In Psychine we have a preparation that has been in use a third of a century. That has cured hundreds of thousands of many kinds of diseases.

NOSEBLEED.

In Most Cases It Is Said to Do More Good Than Harm.

Epistaxis—that is to say, nosebleed—is an accident which will sometimes occur in the best regulated families and happily in most cases need occasion no alarm. In fact, it may often be hailed as an advantageous symptom, especially when it occurs in healthy, full-blooded young people. There are also certain diseases, such as Bright's or cirrhosis of the liver or typhoid fever, when an attack of nosebleed may do good rather than harm—when it is, in fact, simply a sign that Mother Nature is trying to relieve her child in one way because she is balked in another.

In these cases the flow is beneficial, but the subject of the attack should be watched in order that there should not be undue profusion, leading to a weakening of the vital forces or if too prolonged to a genuine anaemia.

When an attack of nosebleed seems to be doing no harm, as in the case of a young, healthy boy or girl, it is best to let it alone or at the most after a time to use some very simple remedy, such as the application of cold over the brow by means of a cloth wrung out of quite cold water or by snuffing a little cold water up the nostrils.

There are certain old-fashioned remedies, such as putting the key of the front door down the back, which do neither harm nor good, but which owe their origin to the same theory—the application of cold and shock.

When cold water is snuffed up through the nostrils the addition of some mild astringent—alum or tannin, for example—will make the treatment more quickly efficacious. Sometimes, when other slight remedies seem to fail, pressing on the nostrils will succeed in stopping the flow.

As to internal remedies, there is none known that is of any avail in a dangerous nosebleed, and when the danger point is reached there is nothing to do but plug the nostrils. When this treatment is called for the physician should be sent for to apply it, because he can by examination locate the exact point of bleeding and will know just where the pressure should come.

There are cases of nosebleed, fortunately very rare, where it is impossible to check the flow. These cases are caused by a diseased state of the system which prevents coagulation of the blood, so that it simply flows and flows away from the sufferer like water. It is well that these cases are rare, as they are generally fatal in spite of all treatment.—Youth's Companion.

So It Seemed.

The day after the arrival of his new sister (six-year-old Bobbie) crept into the room to inspect and pass upon the new member. He looked in awe about the dim hushed room, and then, peering behind a screen, he beheld a strange and uniformed nurse, who had just given baby its bath, vigorously besprinkling the chubby form from a box of talcum powder.

A moment's gaze, and then, wide-eyed with horror, Bobbie toddled hurriedly to his mother's bedside.

"Get up quick, mamma," he tremulously whispered. "That new nurse is going to eat the baby. She's putting salt and pepper on it now!"

Lost His Bearings.

It was an English skipper of the olden time, who, having knowledge beyond the seeming needs, as he could read and use the charts, was dispatched to Rotterdam. The skipper had never been to Rotterdam before, so after getting over the bar and well away to the east he produced his charts and made a learned inspection, but the charts had been a long time in the locker and circumstances combined to alarm him extremely. He went up on deck and called to his mate, "Put her about; the rats have eaten Holland!"

Past Help.

His arm laid it on the jeweler's showcase. "I wish you'd see what is the matter with this," he said.

The jeweler removed the dial, screwed his eyeglass into place and inspected the works of the ancient time-piece.

"Nothing is the matter with it now. Its sufferings are over."

"Well, how much do I owe you?" asked the man.

"Nothing," answered the jeweler. "This isn't a professional treatment. This is a coroner's inquest."

Why She Was Anxious.

"Have you fastened up all the windows and the door to the kitchen?" she inquired as they were about to retire for the night.

"Sure," he replied. "But what's the use? I gave you the last dollar I had day before yesterday to pay for that new dress of yours."

"Oh, yes, but the dress is in the lower drawer of the dresser in the front bedroom, just where the burglars would be most likely to get in, and they might ransack the drawers and get the dress all mussed up and ruined."
