Che Weekly Monitor,

after due deliberation, and thereafter no combination controlling and trafficing in public necessities would have felt that degree of security which is necessary to the conduct of industries with capitalization of many millions of delivers. Describe the second of the of dollars. Depend upon it, the interests of other trusts had a hand in operators, would have had their char-ters revoked and the mines would have been expropriated and worked under government direction. Many laws may be violated with impunity because pub-lic opinion is divided in the consideration of their justice or necessity, but matter of the remuneration of the miners must result from an impartial consideration of the conditions of ac-tual mine work, and the finding will not affect the principle for which pub-lic opinion has demanded recognition.

-To give a local flavor to the lesson were operated by the govern-he have spoken of the matter shall come to pass when injustice in mine management has grown too rank for toleration. A few years ago when our bituninous coal properties were operated under competitive management, we paid little more than half what we are now compelied to pay coal nelds, we pay the price fixed by the greed of the profit sharers and not by any standard of competition. The by any standard of competition. The conditions of natural supply are such that Nova Scotia should furnish for her people the cheapest priced coal in the world. As a matter of fact, there are few localities, accessible to railway or water transportation, that pay as much for an equal or superior grade of mel. Notwithstanding that combination of interests and concentration of capital has cheapened the work of raising coal and multiplied the quantity for market, the price has been erditrarily advanced and may be marked up higher at the will of the coal combine. The people of Nova mines, the price at which coal may be mined at a substantial profit. We are inclined to believe that were the Dominion Coal Co. to advance the price of their mined product to say, tendolars a ton, the consumers would rebei, but a hundred per cent injustice is insufficient to disturb the equilibrium of a peace-loving people. The operators have gauged their customers and know the limit of tolerated extortion. In nearly every town in the province the wisdom of municipal ownership of public utilities is recognized and under practical test. It needs no argument to convince the nized and under practical test. It needs no argument to convince the average citizen that the water and lighting services are more satisfactory under municipal than under private direction, and it is easy enough to bring the larger subject into the range of comparison. Under municipal ownership we are assured of the cheapest service compatible with the actual expense of the undertaking. It is no part of municipal business to affect the money maker's role, the object being part of municipal business to affect the money maker's role, the object being sim, I, to create a self-sustaining condition and make the citizens the profit sharers. There is no danger of a sudden or unnecessary increase in the price of the commodity controlled, because a government with a satisfied constituency back of it need not be troubled by the fluctuations of the world's market. Suppose the provincial government should be awakened to a knowledge of the fact that the people of Nova Scotia are paying too people of Nova Scotia are paying too much for fuel and should expropriate much for fuel and should expropriate some promising property for a provincial coal yard, mining and selfing coal to the people at practical cost? The result may be calculated in many of its features quite readily. We would buy coal for less than three dollars a ton, and the private corporations would be forced to drop their price or go out of business. The government would lose its income from coal royalties, to be sure, but it would save, to its teach, many times that amount.

result of much practice on the part of the competitors, and each one has much to be proud of, whilst to the winners—Miss Frizelle and Mr. J. W. Leavitt—much credit is due. The prize in each case was a rubber-faced pingpong racquet, and with these the winners should be able to develop still greater proficiency. as they are acknowledged by experts to be the best playing racquets yet in the market. In connection with the tournament there was a "buffet" in an adjoining room, which proved a source of pleasure as well as profit, and it reflected great credit on those who had it in hand.

A short musical programme was also rendered during the evening. Mrs. Frizelle, as usual, delighted the audience with her pianoforte solos, and much regret was expressed during the evening that this would, in all probability, be the last time Mrs. Frizelle would play in Bridgetown, the removal evening that this would, in all probability, be the last time Mrs. Frizelle would play in Bridgetown, the removal of the family to Halifax being anticipated at an early date. Vecal solos were contributed by Mrs. H. Ruggles and Miss Bessie Ervin, and were much appreciated. Altogether the evening was as enjoyable as it was successful, and the committee who have the matter of raising this intermediate hundred dollars in hand, feel much encouraged, so much so that they are now endeavoring to organize a concert and endeavoring to organize a concert and entertainment on a much larger scale, particulars of which will appear in

Mr. J. Leavitt vs. Mr. Payzant, 6-3. Final Mr. J. Leavitt vs. Mr. E. Ruggles, 6-2 Disastrous Fire at Granville.

At an early hour, Thursday (Thanks-giving) morning, the house and stable of Mr. William R. Troop, of Granville, had just thrown down. Finding it impossible to control the flames, he cut loose the horse and cow and went into the house to arouse Mrs. Troop, who was the only occupant, and was still sleeping. Hastily dressing, Mrs. Troop began to try to save such articles of clothing and household belongings as she could, and by this time several neighbors were on the scene and lending their assistance. The flames spread so rapidly, however, from the stable to the house, which was in close proximity, that it was impossible to save much, and in less than an hour a smouldering heap of ruins marked the spot where the two large buildings had stood.

The barn was full of hay and grain, of which none was saved. A number

The launching of Mayor Shafner's new tern schooner, the Frank W. Pickles, took place yesterday afternoon, a day earlier than expected, the event being hastened by the falling off of the tides this week. Hundreds of people congregated to witness the launch, and patiently waited upwards of an hour in the chilling wind. The schooner is the finest and largest ever launched here, being of 400 ton register, 130 foot keel, 32 foot beam, and 32 feet wide, and valued at about $22,000. She has been purchased by Pickels & Mills for the West Indian trade.

—Mr. W. A. Black, of Halifax, and his two daughters have been enjoying an equestrian trip along the South Shore and through the Valley. They reached Paradise on Wednesday, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Troop took possession of it for the whret. They express deep gratitude for the appreciated assistance rendered by their neighbors.

Mrs. Brown's New House.

Mrs. J. W. Brown's new house on Church street is in the hands of the parameters for the finishing touches, and will be completed this week.
