THIS NEW BOOK is destined not only to reach all lands, but to be read, and re-read, so long as its leaves hold together. As an autobiography it is almost peerless. From the first page to the last the reader is enchained. Every line sparkles; every sentence is pointed; every page overflows with anecdote, wit, and humor, things grave and gay, earnest and eloquent in thought and expression, while the profound and fervent piety of the great-souled Christian man and minister of the Gospel, pervades and sanctifies it all. It is altogether vivid, keen, convincing, uplifting, as only GUTHRIE'S own can be.
