THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.¹

BY

THOMAS G. RODDICK, M.D.

You have been welcomed to the Dominion of Canada by the Noble Earl who is the worthy representative of our beloved Queen; you have been welcomed to the Province of Quebec, to which this city belongs, by our eloquent and justly-esteemed Lieutenant-Governor; the Chief Magistrate of our city has given you "Cæd mille faithe" in a manner in which only an Irishman with such a great sympathetic heart as he possesses can give; and now I rise to welcome you on behalf of the medical profession in Canada, and to thank you for the honour conferred on this city and country by your presence here to-day. Would that I could find suitable language in which to thank you also for the high honour you have done me in electing me to preside at this great meeting of the British Medical Association, an honour which is appreciated none the less by the consciousness that it is not a personal matter but a compliment to Canadian medicine.

This meeting of the British Medical Association in Canada is an event which will serve still more to impress upon the memory of our people the year 1897, the year of the Diamond Jubilee of our beloved Sovereign, Queen Victoria. In no part of her vast Empire—not even in its very heart—did her subjects celebrate the great event with more enthusiastic loyalty and devotion than in Canada, especially in this province, the home of the French-Canadians. We Canadians of both tongues love and honour our Queen. Long may she live! Deeply, too, have we appreciated here the splendid reception accorded in the old home to our Premier, the Right Hon. Sir Wilfred Laurier, whose distinguished bearing and grace of manner
