

holy calling. Measuring our actual lives by this standard of holiness, we cannot but be filled with consternation. A voice greater than St. Paul's says—"Be ye holy, even as I am holy!" And while we stop to think of ourselves as we are, that voice sounds with awful distinctness in our ears. "But it is the voice of Him 'who hath saved us,' if indeed we will be saved, of Him who so loved us that he laid down His life to open a way by which we may reach Heaven. Let us then look away from ourselves, and fix all our thoughts on Him. "Consider the Apostle and High Priest of our profession Christ Jesus." Dwelling upon His Holiness will make us shrink from ourselves as we are, and long with a passionate longing to be indeed more like Him. It will make us see how in the crowding cares and pleasures of this life we have lost sight of the One Great Reality, the life in Christ—and we shall strive with humble penitence and thankfulness "to make our calling and election sure."

LIVING CHESS.

THE New Zealand Patea Mail, of June 8th, has the following: "The chess tournament with living pieces, dressed in character, came off at Garrison Hall, Dunedin, on 25th ult., and was a great success. Over 1000 persons were present. After a flourish of trumpets, the herald delivered a knightly and somewhat grandiloquent challenge, and threw down the gauntlet of the King of the White army. The herald for the King of the Red responded in similar strain of defiance, and took up the gage. Presently the procession entered, and took their places on the gigantic chess-board. The spectacle was most imposing, as the performers were some of the most prominent and beautiful of Dunedin's citizens, and expense had not been spared in the preparation and adornment of courtly dresses. The colors chosen were white and crimson for the respective sides. One knight was clad in veritable coat of mail. The ladies carried dainty spears and shields, wore patches, and had their hair powdered. Crowns, sceptres, shields, and trumpets glittered in all directions. All the pawns, and many of the other characters, were ladies—who were not selected for their homeliness. One pawn, who reached the eighth square and took the Queen, was crowned, and had a peculiar Dunedin oath, which caused great amusement, administered by the White Bishop. She was to suppress dummymism, open Dunedin harbour, and make everyone contented. A gentleman from one of the theatres acted as costumier, and won much praise. The White Army won the day, and the Bishop of Dunedin returned thanks to the performers and all concerned, and promised that the entertainment should be repeated next week. It is proposed that the price of admission shall be less than the four shillings charged on the first occasion. The proceeds of both entertainments will go to the Rev. Lloyd Keating's Mission Church, North East Valley, Dunedin, and the enterprise has been both suggested and promoted by Mr. Keating.

One Dunedin jeweller lent £1000 worth of jewellery for the tournament and the dresses used were estimated to have cost several thousands of pounds. Photographers are vying with each other for the privilege of obtaining a picture of the striking spectacle.

which is sufficient to establish the fact that

Eagar's Phospholeine

is a remedy of more than ordinary merit in the cure of CONSUMPTION and other Wasting Diseases:

[COPY.]

HALIFAX, N. S., June 25, 1883.

M. P. Eagar, Esq.

Dear Sir,—I feel that it is due to you that I should say publicly what I have said privately very many times, namely, that I firmly believe your PHOSPHOLEINE was the means of restoring a near relative of mine to ordinary health. The patient was apparently in the last stages of Consumption, but with the concurrence of skilled physicians your PHOSPHOLEINE was tried, and I am happy to say, with results that I certainly did not anticipate. My friend is to-day in the enjoyment of excellent health.

Believe me,

Yours very truly,

GEORGE W. HILL, Rector St. Paul's.
