THE COMING VOCAL TYPE WRITING MACHINE. It is a day dram—perhaps idle and fanciful—but still a day dream with many ingenious people that a rocal type-writing machine will some day be given to the world. The elements of success or so radical a departure in labor-saving appliances also de evict in important investigations. ing appliances size dv exist in important inventions. What is needed is a working combination of them in delica e in chanism. "If," as a successful inventor remarks, "some genius can be found to co struct a machine of the proper sensitiveness and directy, the problem of how to dispense with writing and type-setting in given cases will be permanently solved. Success will not in any one since involve the introduction of original discoveries, but only the application in combina ion of principles already practically operated. I have an idea that a machine with winting applicatus to delicately coning appliances alce dy exist in important invenwith winting appreatus so delicately con-structed that the j ring of the human voice would release its no ive power and start the mechaniciam to working is the thing needed." The nearest approach to the vocal type-writer is Mr. Edie n's phonegraph. This is really a more difficult and comprehensive machine more difficult and comprehensive machine than the one imagined, since it has not only the patience to be talked to but the virtue of talking back. Ten years ago when Mr. Edis in set himself to work on this device he was confronted with the apparent impossibility of reproducing tones with absolute distinctness to that they might be recognized as coming from the person speaking tham. This diffic lty has just been overcome in his "perfect phon graph," according to the assurances he has given a contemporary. The sender of a message now need merely talk into the receiver, a ter setting the machine in motion, in his usual and natural tone of voice, then withdraw the "phonogram" and mail off to his in his usual and hasural tone of voice, then withdraw the "phonogram" and mail off to his friends his verbatim utterances. Each phonogram will cost but little more than ordinary letter paper, and will be made in several sizes, gram will cost but little more than ordinary letter paper, and will be made in several sizes, so set to contain messages varying in length from 860 to 4,000 words. Upon arriving at its destination the message will be placed in the apparatus of the receiver, and will at once speak out its communication with a "distinctness" and clearness equal to that of the human voice, at the same rate of speed as that at which it was dictated. The phonogram does not wear out by constant use; every message therefore may be repeated any number of times, and may, when some with, be filed away ready for reproduction, if necessary, in 100 or 1,000 years. The creation of so marvelous a machine strikes the human understanding as ignossible. Disbelief in it and increduity are strengthened by the contemplation of the wonders it would work in correspondence, in the teaching of languages and in the preservation of records and of the strikes the human chine. But Mr. Edison has never been charged with being an unprofitable visionary; he has usually carried out his published promises to the public and the recentific world; so that, in the absence of abundant proof to the contrary, it might be well to grant that there may be a pessibility of his machine working. At the same time it is difficult to do so. The faithful reproduction of all the tones of the human voice from a printed message cannot be regarded as among the things easy of accomplishment.—[The Age of Steel. AROUND THE HOUSE.

CAUTIONS AGAINST FIRE.

ADVICE AS TO WHAT YOU SHOULD NOT DO-VALU ABLE HINTS.

The leading insurance companies of New York have published the following practicable and intelligible cautions against fire:— Don't allow stoves or heaters on your premises which are not securely set on stone, cemented brick or metal, and be sure that all woodwork near the stoves or pipes is carefully protected with metal. Don't allow any loose jointed gas brackets on your premises, which could be swung against woodwork, or any gas brackets without wire screens or globss, if hay, straw, light materials or curtains are near them.

Don't allow the electric light or wires on your premises which are not properly pro tected.

Don't allow steam pipes to be in contact with wood or inflammable material.

Don't allow any kerceene oil lamps to be filled after dark. Filling lamps near a fire is dangerous.

Don't forget to keep the lamps filled and wicks in good order. When the oil is low it generates gas, which is liable to explode.

Don't allow benzine, gasoline, naphtha or explosives in your place. Your insurance policy

Don't allow ashes to be put in a wooden box or barrel in your building. Always have an iron ash can. Don't allow any oily waste or rags to be thrown on the floor, but only in a metal can, with cover, and have them taken out of the building every night; they are self-igniting.

Don's allow any greasy or oily rage or papers to be mixed up with clean clippings or a larger amount of clippings to remain in your place (even if clean and in bales) than is absolutely unavoidable. Don't allow sawdust to be used on floors or in spittoons. It causes many fires, ignited by cigar stumps or cigarettes.

Don't allow sawdust to be used for catching o'l drippings from machines or elevator gearing. Sand is safe.

Don't allow matches to be kept loose, or in paper boxes, but only in metal or carthen safes.
Those lighting only on the box are safest.
Don't allow smoking on your premises where any combustible goods or materials are

Don't fa'l to have your fire buckets filled, and test hose and fire appliances from time to

Don't all w your stairs or hallways to be blocked up or used for storage, or rubbish, hay, straw, etc., to accumulate or remain on your premises.

Don't fail to have all the elevators or hallways provided with good trap-doors or hatches, and have these shut at night. Don't forget to close your iron shutters at night.

Don't forge: that neglect and carelessness are the cause of more fires than all other things, and enforce rules to guard against them
