

the hon. member for Broadview (Mr. Church) for having joined me in protesting on that occasion. Were we right or were we not? Who was irresponsible? Was it the members of parliament who foresaw what was going to happen?—namely the downfall of the United Nations, to be replaced by a new organization, the Atlantic pact, which I hope will work well.

I have been invited to speak, Mr. Speaker, and I do so, although I do not intend to speak for any great length of time. The time of reckoning has come. We were good Canadian citizens and we were patriots in saying then what has happened since.

I want to be protected. As the United Nations organization has proved to be a failure and as some great nations of the world, especially our powerful neighbour, the United States of America, the countries of the British commonwealth, France, Benelux, some Scandinavian countries, Portugal and others are joining together for defence and protection, I will be for it. I want to give the Atlantic pact a chance. I do not want to stay behind. In these troubled times we need some protection against nations that may invade our country at any time. But I do not want the rule of brass hats; and I hope that the Minister of National Defence (Mr. Claxton) will tell the generals, who have been touring the country exciting the people and speaking as warmongers, to stop doing so. I hope that the work of the united nations who have signed the Atlantic pact will be effective, that in the near future the atmosphere will be cleared, and that we shall have peace throughout the world.

Mr. Speaker: Is the house ready for the question?
