One clothing firm, at least, in Toronto has found an effective way of reducing the cost of living. It occurred to Pascoe & Horn of the Kent Building, southwest corner of Yonge and Richmond streets, that the enormous rent and other expenses incurred by the occupation of ground floor premises could be saved by moving upstairs, with a view to saving the cost of the building. This is the reason why Pascoe & Horn, on the second floor of the Kent Building, can offer the usual $25 weekly of high-grade suits at $15. Their clothes are in all respects equal to those that require the other $10 to cover ground floor expenses.
