CANADIAN NORTHERN POORLY ORGANIZED

Will Need Much Stronger Traffic Organization for the Future.

CONCLUDES TESTIMONY

Road Has Exceedingly Good Eastern Territory, Says the Witness.

That the C.N.R. system was not well organized or well equipped was firm of Coverdale and Colpitts, consulting engineers, who assisted in the preparation of the Loomis-Platten report. He made this statement when the hearing of the C.N.R. arwhen the hearing of the C.N.R. arbitration proceedings was resumed yesterday before Sir William Meredith, Hon. Wallace Nesbitt and Mr. Justice Harris. W. N. Tilley, K.C., counsel for the Dominion Government, was examining witness when this statement was made. "I am not casting any reflection on the C.N.R. system," added Mr. Coverdale, "but I repeat it will need a much stronger traffic organization to put the system on a proper competitive basis in the near /future."

"Do you consider the C.N.R: as properly equipped in the east?" asked Mr. Tilley.

"Yes." said the Witness. "I do. think the Canadian Northern has an exceedingly good eastern territory.' He said the single track between Port Arthur and Winnipeg could handle the traffic with 75 trains a day, but he added that the great de-fect of the C.N.R. was that it had short-hauled everywhere by other roads. The average revenue freight haul on the C.N.R. compared with the average revenue freight haul of other lines as set out in the Loomis-Platten report, was as follows: C. 472 miles. G. N. R., 1915, 246 miles; 1916, 270 miles. N. P. R., 1915, 293 miles; 1916, 334 miles.

Upholds His Contention. Reading from the report, Mr. Coverdale supheld his contention regarding the increase in the freight themselves when facing the Amaleaverage haul over the five-year peraverage haul over the five-year period ending 1916, and which, in our judgment. is a reasonable expectation, it would increase its 1916 average haul by 109 miles, or about 38

"According to the plan as laid out in our report it was thought that the C. N. R. could do without making any improvements in Nova Scotia," answered Mr. Coverdale.
Figures Perfectly Absurd.

Referring to the figures as given by Mr. Coverdale of $300 as the average of maintenance of way of a mile of branch track over three years old, and $800 a mile of trunk track over three years old, Mr. Tilley declared that the figures were perfectly ab-'On what grounds do you base your figures?" he asked. "On 26 years' experience," answered

Mr. Coverdale. Regarding the taking of the road as it stands today, he said that he did not agree with Mr. Tilley that any attempt to operate it curred with the view expressed in the report that the Panama Canal would be a factor in the C. N. R. business from Vancouver.

Coverdale Evidence Finished. This concluded Mr. Coverdale's evidence, and Nathaniel Duke, general traffic manager of the Delaware and Lackawanna Railway, was then called, who was examined by Pierce Butler counsel for Mackenzie, Mann and Company. He outlined his connection with various railway enterprises dur ing the past thirty years or so. One was of an incident that occurred in his father's house, which convinced him that since 1907 the Germans had been preparing for war. His father was a banker in Paris, and a director of the Deutches Bank, visiting on business one day, dined with them. He and two brothers, one since killed
