HE'S LEARNING.

One morning early the mistress of the house entered the kitchen and saw a plate and knife and fork, the former of which had evidently contained rabbit-pie. Strongly suspecting that a certain ad of the maid's had slipped off it, she said to her: "Mary, what became of that cold rabbit-pie that was left?" "Oh," answered the girl, "I didn't think it was wanted, mum, so I gave it to the dog."

"Indeed," said her mistress, sarcastically, "does the dog use a knife and fork, then?"

"Not very well yet, mum," was the unabashed reply, "but I'm teaching him to."

PLANS OF NEW YORK BROUGHT TO LIGHT

Dr. F. C. Winder of the Royal Netherlands Geographical Society, who has recently carried out extensive investigations concerning early explorations of the region about the present site of New York City, has brought to light an earlier plan of New York than any previously known. According to an account of this discovery, published in The Geographical Journal, the map appears to have been based on a survey made in 1660, and shows a regular series of intersecting streets, proving that, even at that period, the whole plan of the city had been laid out, even to the modern townships. This map, which was found at the Villa Castello, in Florence, is the only one thus far known about the period of the Dutch sovereignty from the period of the Dutch sovereignty called "Duke's plan," preserved in the British Museum, formerly the earliest one known, appears to be, in fact, only an inferior British copy of the Dutch map.

NOT SURE

Two business men were lunching at a club yesterday.

"Oh," said one, "my partner formerly always opposed my views, but now he agrees with me in everything."

"How do you account for it?" asked the other.

"Don't know," was the reply. "I'm not sure whether I convince him, or only make him tired."

CLEMENCEAU WILL EXPLAIN TREATY

Germany Must First Prove Good Faith, Pichon Declares.

Paris, July 15.—The committee of the chamber of deputies appointed to consider the peace treaty has decided to invite Premier Clemenceau to explain the treaty insofar as it concerns the left bank of the Rhine.

Stephen Pichon, the foreign minister, today addressed the committee on the league of nations. He explained the necessity of a means of permanent arbitration, the independence of which would be always in evidence. Concerning the admission of Germany to the league, M. Pichon declared this would only occur after Germany had proved her good faith by executing the conditions of the treaty of peace, including the restrictions of her military forces. The minister said in favor of amendment of the league of nations covenant, so as to include the proposal of Leon Bourgeois for a permanent and naval staff for the league, in order to ensure its complete efficiency in the control of armaments and military establishment.

BRITISH TO WITNESS GREAT NAVAL PAGEANT

Reuter Cable. London, July 15.—One of the great features of the peace celebrations will be the naval pageant at South End, which, owing to its proximity to London, would attract tremendous numbers of visitors to the metropolis. The public would be enabled to inspect the fleet for the first time since the outbreak of war. Altogether there will be hundreds of warships arranged in four parallel lines. The leading line will extend from the pier in an unbroken sweep eastwards, and will include many of the most famous battleships and battle cruisers of the war.

Place 25,000 Black Bass In Waters Near Waterloo

Special to The Toronto World. Kitchener, July 15.—A. E. The fish placed in the park lake numbered ten thousand, while the remainder were placed in the Grand at Conestoga.

FRANCE GRATEFUL FOR SOLDIERS' WORK

Alsace Will Teach Children to Love Country and Institutions.

Paris, July 15.—President Poincaré, at the conclusion of the victory parade Monday, sent to Premier Clemenceau a letter expressing the country's gratitude to its soldiers.

"The popular feeling," President Poincaré wrote, "has made no distinction between the champions of right; the popular feeling knows that all the devoted co-operation, grouped around the government of the republic and the allied governments, was needed to avert the most dreadful danger that ever menaced liberty."

"France may well be forever proud of the part she took in this universal war. Her army from first to last took part in the operations on the most extended and dangerous front; they had ever against them the most powerful and best organized of the enemies; they accomplished prodigious deeds; they suffered the most terrible losses; they sacrificed to the future all they could give of the present."

"By them France has deserved that her national day henceforth shall be a date of glory for humanity. As I have in this divine moment the incomparable honor of representing the country, let me ask you to transmit on my behalf to the French armies the passionate expression of the public gratitude and admiration."

During the day President Poincaré received messages of congratulation from King Albert of Belgium, King Alexander of Greece and others.

The school masters of lower Alsace sent a message expressing their joy at being reunited with their mother country, and promising to teach the children to "love France and her institutions."

CONFLICTING REPORTS

Failure to Get Satisfaction Ends Inquest Being Called.

"Truth that is all the truth may be met and fought outright; the truth that is half the truth is a difficult matter to fight."

The above old saying exactly describes the present sad position of Mrs. Tweedale of 3 Lansdowne avenue, who is suffering the agonizing uncertainty of how her ten-year-old, motherless grandson came to be drowned at a Y.M.C.A. camp at Maple on July 5 last, after being nearly thirty-six hours away from his home. As Mrs. Tweedale said last night, "I don't know if she could not ascertain the facts as to the drowning, she would be satisfied. As it is, all she knows is, the boy was dead. Now, many stories have been told her, each at variance with the others, but in none of them has one ray of light been shed as to how the drowning occurred, and why the truth of the matter has been hidden from her. If it had not been for the energy displayed by the dead boy's grandmother and his paralyzed father, his body would have been sent to the grave with a mystery as to the actual cause of his death forever hanging over it. An inquest has been opened to enquire into the matter, and some light may be thrown upon the cause when some of the boys' fellow-campers and the Y.M.C.A. officials appear before the coroner."

A Bright Boy.

The dead boy, Arthur John Tweedale, had just completed his tenth year, and is described by his schoolmaster, Mr. Harrington, as a specially clever and bright boy, with a brilliant future. His father was motherless, and with his father badly paralyzed, lived with his little sister under the loving care of his grandparents. He was a favorite with everyone, and a special interest in the boys' camp was taken by Mr. Tweedale, a near neighbor, took a special interest in the boys' camp, and had been studying hard for an examination. Mr. McConnell thought that a week-end at the "Y" camp at Maple would do him good, and made arrangements with Mr. Graham, who had charge of the camp, to accommodate the boy. Mrs. Tweedale was, however, opposed to the boy leaving home, but she thought it was too young to go amongst a set of strangers. She made an appeal to Mr. McConnell not to press the boy to go to the camp. She was, however, persuaded against her better judgment, and on Friday afternoon, July 5, the boy took his seat in Mr. Graham's motor car and for the first time in his life was parted from his mother and grandmother, who, when she kissed him "good-bye," little thought that within 36 hours he would be lying in his grave.

Only Established Fact.

That young Tweedale safely at camp is the one established fact in the story, but what happened to him between Saturday morning, July 5, and the time—variously given as twelve and four o'clock of the same day—may be known to some people, but his relatives are quite ignorant on the subject and can obtain no information on the matter. Nothing has been told them and nothing has been found out. If the dead could only speak how many loads of anxiety could be at once lifted.

About 4:45 on Saturday afternoon

A gentleman from the West End came to the Tweedale home and told the lad's grandmother an accident had happened. Mrs. Tweedale at once said, "The boy is dead." "Yes," replied the official. "He is drowned." He then went on to say the boy had been missed by the camp in charge of the camp at 12 o'clock—a search had been instituted for him immediately, as it was thought he might have gone for a walk in the woods and had got lost. His clothes, however, had been found on the bank of the bathing pool and his dead body found in three feet of water.

It took some time to find the body, it was said. The pool in its deepest parts was searched by the other boys of the camp, but eventually, so the story said, the grappling iron caught the boy's leg and he was dragged out of three feet of water. The official added that the body was being brought to Toronto by motor car. He then left the house.

Y. M. C. A. Would Pay.

About an hour after this a phone message was received by the heartbroken grandmother from the Y.M.C.A. saying the body was at the West End premises and that the association would pay for the burial if the boy's relatives would have the funeral from an undertaker's parlors. This they refused and asked for the body to be sent to his late home. This request was immediately complied with. With the body came the death certificate signed by Dr. Wellesley of newmarket, certifying death due to heart failure and drowned upon it the words, "After an inquisition this is to certify that A. J. Tweedale has died in your city." The Y.M.C.A. officials came and the medical man who had attended the boy course arrived, and at once ascertained that the boy's heart was as sound as a bell, and he doubted if it were possible to have failed him without some contributory cause. All Saturday evening and again on Sunday, Y.M.C.A. officials came and went, but not one word could be got out of them as to the cause of the drowning except, according to Mrs. Tweedale, they could not agree in any detail as to how the boy was drowned or found and when or where he was last seen or who saw him.

Post-mortem Held.

As no information was forthcoming, Mrs. Tweedale determined to go further with the matter and have a post-mortem examination on the body and demand an inquest. She was told this would cost her $25, but she paid willingly. Dr. A. J. Harrington of Bathurst street was appointed to hold the post-mortem. His report states he found all the organs normal and healthy, and his conclusion is that the cause of death was "That the lad was alive when he entered the water and that death was due to suffocation by drowning."

The next step was to demand an inquest. This was granted and the body removed to the morgue. The inquiry has been twice adjourned owing to the necessary witnesses being absent. Mrs. Tweedale has demanded that all the boys of the camp at Maple, and the officials in charge, be summoned and compelled to state to all they know concerning the boy's death. "Let me know only the truth and I shall be satisfied," she says.

Dispute "Onus of Proof"

In Kitchener O.T.A. Case

Special to The Toronto World.

Kitchener, July 15.—Peter Bruler of Breslau pleaded not guilty to having liquor in his house for sale in the court here this afternoon. Crown Attorney Browley maintained that the onus of proof rested on the defendant, according to the O.T.A. Case. Bruler's solicitor, the defence, claimed this only applied to the O.T.A.

Magistrate Weir in delivering his decision stated there was no suspicion attached to the defendant and dismissed the charge. License Inspector Winstanley declared he would appeal the case.

Jasper Park Camp on LAC BEAUVERT

Horseback Riding over Mountain Trails

On Mount Edith Cavell Glacier

THE Dominion Government in creating the Jasper National Park has set aside for the enjoyment of the people one of the loveliest regions in the Canadian Rockies—a territory starred with beautiful lakes, snowcapped mountain peaks and gigantic glaciers. The area of the park is approximately 4,400 square miles. The desire of the many travellers along the Grand Trunk Pacific line to stay over and inspect the beauties of the Park has led to the establishment of a novel enterprise in the form of a camp hotel on the shores of Lac Beauvert. The official count of the mountain peaks to be seen from the Jasper Park Camp is one hundred and fifty. From the Camp, with its floored tents and big canvas dining hall, trips are made to the famous Maligne Canyon, to Pyramid Lake and to the top of Fitz Hugh Mountain. One of the more distant trips to be taken is to the foot of Mount Edith Cavell. This trip is made by saddle horse and is one of about sixteen miles. At the foot of this mountain nestles a beautiful lake, with a hanging glacier which has slowly moved down and filled the valley at the head of the lake.
