The sale of over $15,000 worth of fur garments in Dincens' fur clearing sale during the past three weeks affords a signal proof both of the high class qualities and styles of the fur-wear offered and the decided reductions which were made in the prices—because these were the real factors that influenced buyers. Of the lines remaining there are a number of ladles' fur scarfs in a variety of different furs, and most fashionable designs, which are extremely attractive at Dincens' final clearing prices, and a few choice specials remain of ladles' raccoon, Bokhara and Astrachan jackets.
