I never thought
MACARONI
Could be so Good

This is what people are saying of Catelli's. It is so smooth and rich, and has such a delicious flavor, that it seems to be a different dish altogether.

CATELLI'S MILK MACARONI

is made in a big Sunlit factory—of the genuine Semolina flour and pure, sweet milk. It is dried in special dust proof rooms by means of clean air, kept at special temperature.

If you know Macaroni only as a tough, stringy dish, strongly flavored with cheese, you have a treat in store when you use Catelli's Milk Macaroni in some of the deliciously inviting styles given in our new book—"The Girl at Catelli's".

KRONSTADT PRISON FOR FORMER CZAR

Petrograd Committee Will Demand Transfer to Fortress—Is Guarded With Care
Petrograd, June 12—On account of the influx of summer residents at Tsarskoye Selo additional measures have been taken to guard Nicholas II. and his family from possible indiscretions. The ex-Czar is permitted to take exercise for only two hours daily, morning and evening. A military escort follows his movements at a distance not exceeding twenty-five paces. His children take their outing separately. The ex-Czar and his wife have appeared at a window twice daily at the order of an officer of the guard, who is able to see them, and a triple cord of troops surrounds the palace grounds.

At yesterday's meeting of the labor section of the Petrograd committee, it was resolved to demand the transfer of the ex-Czar and his family to the prison at Kronstadt. Two socialist ministers who have returned from that town describe the local prisons where the ex-ministers were confined and formed an impression that no undue hardship would be suffered.

THE BAKING OF BREAD.

In "How to Save Bread," one of a series of articles written at the request of the British Food Controller, E. J. Spriggs, M. D., F. R. C. P., writes that one important way of saving wheaten flour is to use other kinds of corn in making bread, so that the wheat flour is not wasted. The writer advises the admixture of oatmeal with wheat flour, and gives a recipe for baking bread with four and one-half pounds of oatmeal, and three ounces of salt are put in a bowl. Make a hole in the middle and add water. Sprinkle a little sugar upon four ounces of yeast and stand it in a pint of water before the fire till it froths to the top of the water. Mix it in with the flour and water. Knead thoroughly for half an hour. Set in front of the fire to rise for one hour. Divide into loaves and pound each, knead each loaf a little, put into a tin, and set before the fire for another half-hour. Bake in a fairly brisk oven for an hour. The thirteen and a half pounds of flour and meal gives about seventeen and a half pounds of a nice bread, which is of higher food value than ordinary bread, and contains more of the body building protein.

said: "You must be pitiless to the odious nation that is responsible for all our evils. Never again shall we have relations with such a people."

The jailers observe to the letter the teachings of the imperial bandit. British prisoners are forced to work under the fire of our guns, and for the slightest peccadillo are bound to a stake and deprived of food for whole days.

A repatriated French ambulance worker says he buried with his own hands at the Mecklenburg camp thirty-two British who died of ill-treatment and hunger, five succumbing at the stake. Such victims often are left without sepulchre. He also cites a case where a surgeon excused a British prisoner from work, but the fieldweb, notwithstanding, ordered him to work. The prisoner, refusing, was tied to a stake and died during the night.

Disease is rampant among the British prisoners, and the Germans do not try to alleviate the misery.

At the Camp Meeting

At a camp meeting where hats were used as collection baskets, the preacher said: "Let us sing while the hats are coming in."

The pianist, after some fumbling with the pages, turned to him and said: "I can't find it."

"Beg pardon," said the preacher, not understanding.

"Why," replied the pianist, "I can't find that song, 'While the Hats Are Coming in,' in my book."

GERMAN "PEACE OFFER"

THREATENED RUSSIA

Declared That Its Rejection Would Mean Extension of Berlin's Military Objects

London, June 12—It was after General Dragomiroff had curtly rejected the peace proposals made to him by German military emissaries about the middle of May, according to a Reuter dispatch from Petrograd, that the German commander in chief on the Russian front sent wireless messages to all Russian troops proposing an armistice, by which, as he vaguely suggested, Russo-German military operations could be suspended without Russia's defection from her allies.

The German commander declared in his message that his country, with her allies, was ready to meet the frequently expressed desire of the Russian soldiers' delegates and end the bloodshed by concluding a peace honorable to both sides, thereby re-establishing the former neighborly relations and giving economic support to Russia. The message invited Russia to send plenipotentiaries if she wished to know the German conditions, but at the same time to abstain from demanding the publication of these conditions so long as she considered herself bound by the secret treaties made by her government for the purpose of "destroying Germany and her allies."

The message then specified the objects for which Germany's enemies were declared to be fighting. These were said to include the possession of the German colonies, Alsace and Lorraine, Trieste, Constantinople, the partition of Asia Minor, and the levying of a heavy indemnity upon the Central Powers.

The radiogram closed by affirming Germany's continued ability to fight on all fronts, instancing previous simultaneous operations in Volhynia, Roumania, on the Isonzo and the Somme. Consequently it was declared, she need not denude the eastern front of troops, and threatened that if the Central Powers were forced to continue the war with the consequent vast military outlay their military objects inevitably would become more extensive.
