FORMER RESIDENT BOOSTS SAINT JOHN

James F. Shirey, Here After Long Absence, Sees Great Future For City

Among the visitors to Saint John last week was James F. Shirey, an old time resident of this city. Mr. Shirey was born here and at the age of 18 went west 48 years ago, finally locating in Chicago, where he now occupies an important position as building repair superintendent for the Chicago Board of Education. He spent the week reviewing old time memories and noting the many changes that had taken place during his absence.

Mr. Shirey said that he sees a vast improvement in Saint John since he left here, especially the miles of paved streets and the extensive building improvements in the outskirts of the city. He was much impressed with the magnitude of the great dry dock and Courtenay Bay development and the rapid growth of East Saint John. When he left, he said, there was not more than twenty houses in that section, which now is quite a town. "You have a beautiful city here and I see great improvements on every side," said Mr. Shirey, "and I think Saint John has a great future before it." Detective Murray of Boston, whose death was announced a few days ago, was a nephew of Mr. Shirey.

AS HIRAM SEES IT

The Settlement—It's curious what'll take up a feller's attention when he's settin' round not able to do much. I was watchin' 'em playin' tag in the sun this mornin'. They was about half way between a musketeer an' a midgit in size—an' quite a little swar'm of 'em. They was leggin' one another—an' doin' quadrilles—an' they never seemed to get tired—like some of them there Charleston critters. I got to wonderin' what they was made fer—an' after a while I got round to wonderin' what our humans was made fer. Jist then an' old peddler come along an' got talkin'—an' he said he didn't know what the world was comin' to—the people was so bad. I tried to cheer the old feller up a little—but as I didn't want no soap or needles or buttons or socks or things like that out of his pack—I guess I didn't change his mind any. I guess he went away wonderin' what I was made fer.
