ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

HOW THE TWINS HELPED PA BUNNY

"It must be yours," said Mrs. Bunny firmly. "Jimmy Christmas!" he said suddenly. "Why, I could have bought a grand lamp at the store for $2. And now I haven't any lamp and I haven't any $2, and I haven't enough money to stay at the park. I'll have to take the family home again." And Mister Bunny felt perfectly dreadful.

"Say," he said, when he got back to the place where Mrs. Bunny and the children were waiting for him, "well, have to go home. I lost some money and we can't—"

"That's all the further he got, for Mrs. Bunny stopped him by waving a $2 bill right under his nose.

"Here it is, then," she said pretty sharply. "And a good thing it is for you, sir, that your son, Ben, had such sharp eyes. He found it lying right there on the grass beside him. Carelessness will never make you rich, Mister Bunny."

"But I didn't lose it here," said Mister Bunny in a dazed voice. "I lost it—I lost it over at—"

"It must be yours," said Mrs. Bunny firmly. "Two people wouldn't be likely to lose $2 at the same time. Go and ask Mister Zip."

"Why, no, Mister Bunny," said the fairyman with a mysterious little smile. "Nobody said they lost it. If they had they would have come right to me, I'm sure. Maybe I lost it myself. But if I did I missed it and it serves me right. You keep it and if anybody claims it I'll let you know we put it there."

Mister Bunny was so happy he did a little jig on his hind legs and went back to his family, after thanking the fairyman.

Nancy and Nick and Mister Zip laughed and laughed. "It worked fine," said Nick, "and he never suspects we put it there."

"I hope he's learned a lesson," said Mister Zip soberly.

"Pa, give me 10 cents," said Mrs. Bunny. "I want to take a chance on a lamp."

Pa handed it out, for what could he say?

And didn't she win one first thing? Mr. Bunny stared. "Isn't that just like a woman," he said.

at the breast without fatigue or strain. The recent great increase in the deaths of infants is mainly due to impure milk, and the remedy lies in breast feeding. Breast milk is the purest milk, and the only safe food for baby, so mother should always try to breast-feed baby with the help of Lactagol before experimenting with artificial foods.

MUNICIPAL GOLF COURSE IS URGED

Board of Trade Would Use Tucker Park for This Purpose.

A suggestion from the Board of Trade that the Tucker Park be converted into a municipal golf course for the convenience of tourists was received by the City Council yesterday afternoon and referred to the Commissioner of Public Works for a report. A communication from the Provincial Minister of Health, Contracts were awarded for pipe and castings for the East St. John water extension, and several matters of routine were dealt with.

The report of the committee of the whole, recommending that the Sterling Realty Co. be notified it was not the intention of the city to build a retaining wall at 104 Metcalf street; that the repairs outlined in the report of the city engineer be made to the "Belgian" warehouse; that the National Parks Association be notified that it was contrary to the policy of the city to expend money on lands which it did not own, and that no action be taken in connection with a complaint that George A. Kirpatrick had fenced off a portion of his lot, was adopted.

Golf Course.

On motion of Commissioner Harding, the amount for repairs to the police station was increased by $180.90, bringing the total up to $786.66.

A communication from Ted and Teed, asking that some decision in the appeal of the McLaughlin Motor Car Co. be made by the council, was referred to the Mayor.

The Board of Trade wrote suggesting that a municipal golf course would help to keep tourists in the city for a few days, and asking if it would be possible to use the Tucker Park for a golf course, or if the former golf course on the Millidge land, could be secured. The letter was referred to the Commissioner of Public Works for a report.

A communication from the Health Week committee asking that the council assist in making Health Week, October 5 to 11, a success, was referred to the Hon. Dr. W. F. Roberts, Minister of Health.

Bills for street lighting amounting to $2,705.38 for the month of June from the Clive Power Commission, were ordered paid.

On motion of Commissioner Wigmore, the tenders of Vroom & Arnold for 6 and 8-inch pipe at $56.85 per ton; T. McAvity & Sons for 16 gate valves at $18.80 each and Union Foundry and Machine Works for 2% tons of special castings at five cents per pound, were accepted.

Commissioner Bullock presented a report from the city collector that in his opinion the reglazing and rehang of the windows in the upper story of No. 4 shed did not come within BEET STING KILLS FARMER. Illinois Man Dies Fifteen Minutes After Being Stung.

Kankakee, Ill., July 23—Frank M. Lane, an Ottawa County farmer, died from poisoning fifteen minutes after being stung above the right eye by a honey bee. Mr. Lane was a bee farmer and had been stung many times previously apparently without serious result.

Food For The Baby

"When will it start to eat?" Mr. Mann asked continuously of the doctor, after the first Mann baby was born.

"You just leave that up to the mother," the doctor would say.

For at least six months the mother's breast is a baby's best meal. No attempt should be made to wean it until at least the seventh or eighth month. If this happens to fall in the summer season it should not then be attempted. As the mother is still capable of supplying baby's wants. The best way to tell if a baby is getting enough milk is to weigh the

London Letter on Topics of England and Continent

(From Correspondent of Times-Star.)

London, June 19—It is strange how expert the Parisians are in some times overlook the most obvious things. This curious purblindness has landed all three parties in the present House of Commons in a somewhat embarrassing dilemma. All three recognize that there must soon be another general election; the Liberals and Conservatives, because they are tired of power without office, and Labor because it is sick of office without power. The issue must be settled who is to govern the country. At the same time, all three parties, Labor because it believes passing it will help its cause and the opposition it might damage them, are pledged to 21 as the age of electoral discretion for both sexes. These conjunctions involve some awkward consequences, about which some politicians are at last growing distinctly uneasy.

French President's Perquisites.

M. Millerand, on his resignation, has to give up a number of pleasant little "petits benefices" that make the life of a President an attractive one in an entirely material way. He has two state houses, the Palais de l'Elysee and the Chateau de Rambouillet, and wherever he is in residence the "perquisites" arrive daily by train. Vegetables come from Versailles, fruit is sent from Fontainebleau, and game from the state forests. In addition, the state pays all his stable and garage expenses, and there is a presidential train, which has been maintained since 1898, when Felix Faure managed to get the grant for it made in order to entertain the Czar. The President's salary is £24,000, of which half is regarded as an expense allowance.

Queen Alexandra.

It has now been definitely decided that Queen Alexandra will not come to Marlborough House this season, but will spend the summer quietly at Sandringham. This does not imply that there has been any change for the worse in Her Majesty's general health, which happily remains satisfactory. Nevertheless, her medical advisers have urged her to avoid undue strain or fatigue. Naturally, her presence at Marlborough House would bring a host of friends and visitors, many of whom would be difficult for her to decline to receive personally. It is felt that her kindly nature might prompt her to overlook her strength. With the return of favorable weather, the Queen hopes to resume her daily drives in the beautiful country that surrounds her Norfolk home.

Chessboard Suits.

As part of the "Brighter London" movement, I suspect, a regular epidemic of draughtboard suits has broken out at the West End. The remarkable feature of the manifestation is that it is the grave and reverend seniors, and not the light and frivolous juniors, who are generally sporting the effect. It would be out of date before it was assembled, and unrepresentative of many millions of new electors. So, that way, there would have to be two quick general elections once more.

Royal Ascot.

This week I experimented on a cheap trip to Royal Ascot. My expenses included a taxi to and from Waterloo, a modest buthool to keep oneself in fashionable company, a return ticket by one of the first-class only racing specials, the fee for admission to an enclosure, a programme, and a lunch as quiet as the luncheonette. There was not quite enough left out of a five-pound note to endow one of the Royal Ascot bookies with 10 shillings squandered on one of those gleaming silken luxuries known as "hot favorites." But it was a most enjoyable outing and enables me to contradict, with absolute authority, the gloomy rumor that grey toppers have gone out of fashion. There were moments when I seemed to be the only man who was not wearing one.

Wonderful Dresses.

It was worth twice as much to view the costumes. Never has even Royal Ascot been more resplendent, not because it is more fashionable than ever, but for the simple reason that present-day fashions are more brilliant. I gravely doubt whether women ever dressed more wonderfully. The slim silhouette and bare-arm style regaled supreme, and the royal couture had a curious full-evening-dress effect. Broad sunlight on bare arms and shoulders looks wrong somehow—satisfactorily if not morally. I simply cannot describe the marvelous "confections." Two gowns that stuck in my memory were a clinging black satin adorned with bright orange designs and a pale pink trimmed with gleaming silver. Shoes and stockings were all the hues of the rainbow.

France's New Politics.

Though the new regime in France is away from extreme and towards moderate policies, the change of personnel is one of impetuous and headstrong southerners for more cold and calculating northerners. Both the new President and the new Premier are of the southern type of Frenchman. The new Latin succeeds the Old Roman: Miss Ethel M. Dell's favorite type makes way for the more volatile psychology of Alexander Dumas. Both M. Doumergue and M. Herriot have a dash of D'Artagnan in their make-up as well as a suggestion of the portly Porthos in their physique. They are of the lineage of dynamic men, though they graduated in very different schools of public service.

Local and Imperial.

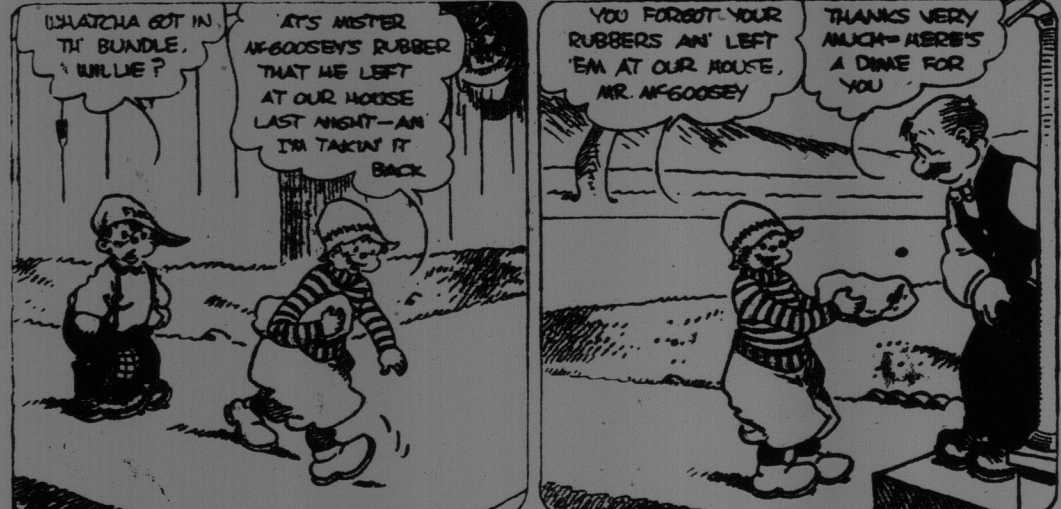

M. Doumergue is a barrister-administrator who graduated in the school of French colonial imperialism. M. Herriot is a journalist-lecturer who graduated in the school of municipal provincialism. M. Doumergue is a Calvinist, and the first Protestant to be President of the republic. Just before the war, he had a brief spell as Premier under M. Poincaré's presidency, but the rumor is quite mistaken which attributes to him any sympathy with what is now known as "Poincarism." He is comparatively little seen on the boulevards or in the Paris salons and cafes, and is a bachelor of solitary habits.

LAST OF THEM LICENSED.

The Sub-district Board of Health will not take action against any proprietors in St. John city and county for not obtaining licenses this year. The two that have been most dilatory in making application for license in their applications yesterday afternoon were just in time to stay legal proceedings. All of the hotel licenses have now been issued. A full list has come from the business of issuing licenses is now about 100.

The lower Niagara river was believed to be un navigable between falls and Lewiston until 1855.
