

HARD TIMES CAUSE RECORD IN INSANE

New York State Institutions
Received More Patients in 1921 Than Ever Before.

(New York Times.)
More persons were sent to insane asylums in this State last year than in any previous year, according to the report of the State Hospital Commission yesterday.

At the end of 1921, patients in the thirteen State hospitals for the insane numbered 98,736, an increase of 1,445 over the number there a year ago and 6,642 more than the rated capacity of the hospitals.

Homer Folks, Secretary of the State Charities Aid Association, said he believed the number of persons who had gone insane from the use of alcohol during 1921 was fewer than normal, and that the increase was due partly to economic conditions and partly to war casualties. Many soldiers who had apparently been suffering from shell shock developed nervous trouble during the year, he said, to such a degree that it was necessary to care for them in hospitals.

"Unemployment and distress due to economic conditions," he said, "add to the mental strain, pushing over the line of insanity many who had previously been close to the border."

Mr. Folks doubted that the increase indicated that communities were guarding themselves more closely against the insane by shutting up unbalanced persons previously allowed at large.

"The most effective way in the long run to relieve taxpayers burdens for the support of State Hospitals is to institute measures which will speed the recovery of patients," the report says. "The value of the suitable employment of patients has long been recognized. Yet large numbers of the inmates of State hospitals sit idly by, left to degenerate and become permanent burdens upon the State. An occupational director, trained teachers should be employed in each hospital."

Last year 13,228 visits were made to these clinics, representing 2928 new persons, or first visits. Of these persons more than half, or 2,661, were people from the community coming for preventive treatment; the remainder, or 2,667, were patients on parole or discharged patients who were aided by keeping in touch with the clinic in re-establishing themselves in community life. The cost of this preventive and after-care work is extremely small as compared with maintaining patients in State hospitals. Every dollar spent in this way is a saving of many dollars in State hospital appropriations, besides the saving of individuals to lives of usefulness and happiness."

The report further urges that the work of the clinics be more thoroughly organized and more widely extended and that the following steps be taken in this direction:

1.—The appointment of a Director of Prevention and After-Care for the purpose of organizing and improving the work of the clinics.
2.—Establishment of additional clinics to cover every part of the State. An additional physician should be added to the staff of every State hospital to develop out-patient work.
3.—Social service is necessary to adequate treatment in mental cases, so it is recommended that each State hospital be allowed an additional social worker for preventive work.
4.—Allowance of funds to permit the holding of periodic district conferences by State hospital clinic physicians and social workers in order to compare methods and increase volume of work.

F. S. A. McMULLIN IS NEW PRESIDENT

The Trades and Labor Council held a largely attended meeting last evening in its hall at Prince William street with F. A. Campbell, president of the council, in the chair. The meeting was addressed by Rev. H. A. Goodwin on mothers' allowances and the need for a juvenile court. He urged the council to continue its efforts to have a mothers' allowance act passed.

J. A. Sinclair, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board, and James Sugrue, a commissioner of the compensation board, both addressed the council on the Workmen's Compensation Act, pointing out the advantages of the new act over the old one. They also dealt with the working of the act itself.

Following the speeches and reports an election of officers for the ensuing year took place and resulted as follows: F. S. A. McMullin, president; James Sharp, vice-president; George R. Melvin, recording secretary; A. D. Colwell, secretary; Charles Brown, guard; Percy Moore, M. Day and C. H. Stevens, audit committee.

ORCHESTRA AT HOSPITAL.
The orchestra of the Y. M. C. A. of the Gorman street church provided a fine programme of music for the patients of the East St. John County Hospital last night and had a most appreciative audience. The programme was a bright and entertaining one and the members of the orchestra led in the singing of the choruses of several numbers. The members of the orchestra were as follows: Dr. F. L. Bonnell, Stanley Mead, Leslie Greig, George Hoyt, Paul Brown, Charles Burpee, Fred Burtin, Jack Holman and David Henderson. Heartily thanks were given the members of the orchestra.

AGRICULTURE IS IRELAND'S HOPE

Commerce Monthly Reviews
the Situation in That Country.

Ireland's future prosperity lies primarily in supplying food to the great industrial centres and consuming markets of Great Britain and the continent, the National Bank of Commerce says in the January number of its magazine, Commerce Monthly. Ireland's advantage is in agriculture, and the greatest possibilities for industrial development lie in the manufacture of foodstuffs from home-grown materials.

"The predominance of agriculture is the fact that by the fact that in 1918, the last year for which values of Irish exports are available, 61 per cent. of the total value made up of articles of an agricultural character, while agricultural products of indubitable domestic origin formed approximately half the total," the bank points out.

"Live stock raising is by far the most important industry in Ireland and live animals the greatest single item of export. For the most part the stock are raised for the English market and are exported alive. But it should be possible to export cattle in a much more profitable form than that of animals on the hoof. The fact that all this live stock is slaughtered abroad means the loss to Ireland of the profits of the slaughtering, packing, and related industries, and of the important industries, such as tanning, which depend upon the waste products of their raw material. Moreover, approximately half the cattle exported are in the lean state, despite the fact that Ireland has some of the richest pastures in the world, so that the profits of preparation for market, as well as those of slaughter are lost."

"There has recently been an attempt to develop an Irish meat trade which, unfortunately, through lack of sufficient capital, has not been able to continue. As far as operations were carried on, the limited resources at the disposal of the pioneer large-scale company, there was every indication that the meat and by-products of cattle slaughtered in Ireland could be sold profitably in Great Britain and other markets. A development of this meat trade seems to offer the most favorable opportunity of any plan yet offered to strengthen the industrial structure of the country and at the same time benefit the agricultural interests."

"The situation of the sheep trade is much the same. In the case of pork products the development of a meat trade has proceeded much further. Concerted action by the bacon curers has resulted in great improvement of the breed of pigs and the quality of the product. Bacon curing is an important industry, centering at Cork, Waterford and Limerick, and even before the war exports of bacon and ham were considerable.

"Dairying is another favorable field for development. Much has already been accomplished in organizing the butter trade but there is still opportunity for great improvement. The growth of the cheese trade in the latter years of the war was also an encouraging feature.

"In the field of industrial activity Ireland is severely handicapped by the lack of cheap power. The annual production of about 90,000 tons of coal must be supplemented by imports from Great Britain averaging $200,000 tons a year. The high moisture content makes difficult the successful application of power to power production and the methods of winning power must be greatly improved before it can compete successfully with imported coal for industrial use.

"Not only must coal be imported, but a very large proportion of the raw materials used in the principal Irish industries is of foreign origin. In the linen industry much of the flax is imported and practically all the steel used in Belfast shipyards comes from Great Britain. Although part of the wool manufactured in Ireland is of domestic origin, even this has usually been spun in English mills and there is a large importation of foreign wools and yarns. The fast and entire dependence upon foreign materials breeds the great brewers and distillers of Dublin use a large proportion of foreign grain. In sum, except for the manufacture of food products, as in meat packing and dairying, Ireland is dependent upon other countries for both fuel and raw materials, as well as for markets for the finished product.

The trade figures suggest a second method of industrial development in Ireland which is fundamentally sound, namely, to supply the domestic market with some of the many articles now imported, particularly where the raw material is at hand. In such cases there is at least the advantage over foreign competitors of eliminating ocean freight on the finished product. There is also the great advantage of the present sentiment of Irish consumers strongly favoring domestic goods.

"By these two methods, supplying the foreign market with manufactured food products, and the domestic consumer with articles from Irish raw materials, Ireland can make industrial progress. But the domestic market is not large, and as industrial development for foreign markets depends primarily upon the supply of agricultural products the conclusion is inevitable that it is primarily in agriculture that Ireland will find its future prosperity."

I. O. D. E. CHAPTER
AIDS THE WORTHY

The Valcartier Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire undertook to assist many worthy causes when it met last night at the residence of the vice-regent, Mrs. D. L. MacLaren, who presided. The sum of $100 was voted towards the salary of the kindergarten teacher at the East St. John Hospital and $10 to the Victorian Order of Nurses to complete the regular payments made during the year. It was decided to contribute towards the travelling expenses of a soldier's wife coming to St. John from England and to continue making baby garments for the use of the V. O. nurses in their public health work. A committee was appointed to fill in the blanks of a questionnaire and present it at the January meeting of the provincial chapter in St. John. The chapter recorded its protest against the name of St. John having been omitted from the list of the ports of Canada published in the latest issue of "Who's Who." It was agreed that the chapter should assist in bringing Miss Lang, the national educational secretary, to St. John. Nominations for the officers for the coming year were received and one new member was elected.
