

Which Cuff Looks The Neater?

YOU can't tell—neither can anyone else, because either side of the new W.G. & R. Double Wear Cuff is the right side.

Our picture shows one cuff turned in—the other turned out.

The old style cuff can be turned, of course, but—"you can tell they are turned"—that's the difference.

The Double Wear Cuff turns easily and quickly and lies smooth and flat whichever side is up.

As the cuff of the shirt always gets soiled first, the new Double Wear Cuff enables you to wear the shirt longer and save laundry bills.

SIR ROBERT BADEN POWELL ADDRESSED CANADIAN CLUB

Distinguished Visitor Was Banquetted Yesterday Afternoon—Spoke Interestingly on the Boy Scout Movement—Theory Exemplified in the Actual War—Scouts Become More Loyal and More Beneficial Citizens.

At one o'clock yesterday the members of the Canadian Club banquetted Major General Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell. Long before his arrival at Bond's the seating capacity of the dining room was taxed to its limit. On the arrival of the guest he was escorted to the centre table by Chief Justice Sir Douglas Hazen, president of the Canadian Club, all members rising to their feet as he passed along. Sir Robert occupied the foremost seat at the table, and seated at the same table were: Maritime Commissioner A. C. Skelton, F. R. Porritt, assistant organizing secretary of the Canadian General Council, James A. Wilder, chief sea scout of America, and representatives of civic and religious bodies. After the excellent repast, Chief Justice Sir Douglas Hazen, president of the Canadian Club, introduced the speaker, alluding to his great work among the boy scouts—a movement which had since its inauguration, spread world-wide. Chief Justice Hazen stated the club was fortunate in entertaining a most distinguished visitor in the person of Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell, whose military career at Mafeking would remain as long in memory as history was recorded. Aside from his great military genius he alluded to his literary talents, to his artistic talents, and lastly to his promotion of the boy scout organization, which was of inestimable value to the rising generation, from the points of the training received in chivalrous conduct, respect for elders, and lastly the spirit of non-selfishness.

The distinguished guest alluded to what he termed a "theory" on the part of Chief Justice Hazen, who sang his virtues nobly. Personal allusion was ever foremost when visiting Canadian centres like St. John, where a cordial reception awaited such as he. At the beginning he referred to the boy scout movement in St. John, and of his former visit to the city. Relative to the scout organization on his former visit he noticed a vast comparison this time from the point of quality, yet lacking quantity, but he hoped that in the near future quality and quantity would go hand in hand. On his last visit he carried a theory, this time he returned with a theory, a theory exemplified in the actual war to great advantage, that of the boy scout movement.

Surfing it to say, added he, that the scout movement was supplementary to training in the schools, which lapses into actual work on basic principles of five points.

In detail he exemplified the theory of each point, and in turn the practice, and lastly the benefit, so attained by such practice. The boy scout organization surrounded the youth with environment, which adjuvanted the good, which was latent within—so that in time he bettered himself, and became a loyal citizen with a character, in which was coupled the activity of a generous heart and an active brain.

The training was within (not without), but implied from without by his actual contact with nature and the great out of doors. With the training was coupled health, bodily development, and the instillation of the patriotic principles, which made each boy feel that he was responsible for civic, as well as personal duties. This he believed could only be attained by such a movement, far ahead of the cinema show, and should any other issue be of more benefit to a community, he was willing to be dictated to, and if better—willing to conform to those principles as advanced.

The hobbies of the youth were found out individually, and his talent, in a certain line developed to perfection, so that in the end he became a more loyal and a more beneficial citizen of the state.

He next turned to the actual experience he had observed in the Scout movement. On the very first day of the war, thirty thousand sea scouts with full equipment, food, etc., were encamped on the sea coasts of England. Soon after, nearly every scout had volunteered his services to his country, and were stationed along the coasts of England, Ireland and Scotland to do patrol duty, some on water as signallers, some as cooks, others in different lines of activity. The parents of these boys never asked for their release, but felt contented to allow them their freedom, and as men to man they volunteered to do a noble duty for the cause of the Empire and civilization. (Applause.)

Turning to Canada, Sir Robert felt that a brilliant future awaited the Dominion. The flower of Canadian youth fell in the cause of right; and what organization could more beautifully train the rising youth to fill the vacancies caused by the removal of their elders? He cautioned all that in the future Canada and the Motherland should be bound together inseparably; and this was to be accomplished by the "Wide-awake" and "Doing." Both classes must arise from lethargy, and hand in hand turn to the cry of the spirits in Flanders—that Canada might be a greater and a better country. Time for such a purpose was not to be squandered, and action must be quick, as dangerous rivals or competitors lurked all around us. The spirit of the Boy Scout movement for such grasping of opportunity was already taken up by Lord Jellicoe and Sir David Beatty; and in conclusion the gifted speaker resounded a warning for hearty co-operation of all, in fact, material aid, and money, to the Boy Scout organization of all Canada.

As the speaker resumed his seat, the assemblage applauded him long and loudly, and it was felt that Sir Robert's message in this city had reached attentive ears.

Chief Justice Hazen then called upon James A. Wilder, head sea scout officer of the American Boy Scouts. Mr. Wilder detained the assemblage but a short time, but reminded the assemblage that his mission east was to convey to Sir Robert Baden-Powell the kindest regards of all America—that land of sentimentality which was severed from Canada by an imaginary line over three thousand miles long—yet minus a single fortification. (Applause.)

He referred to Sir Robert as a genius in the Scout movement, and laughingly remarked that he believed he had perused every book written by Sir Robert on the Scout movement, yet he never found a change from the principle laid down by him in his first attempt at organization.

Referring to his little navy, he stated he had 12 patrols, 81 pirate ships, and the rest whalers. (Laughter.)

Continuing, he expressed the wish that Canada would boast of a larger Boy Scout mobilization in the near future.

At the conclusion of the address, Chief Justice Sir Douglas Hazen accorded to each speaker a hearty vote of thanks for their addresses and a welcome to their city at any time they might choose to come.

THOUGHT IT WAS A BOIL Doctor Said Abscess.

Mr. Gleason R. Young, Kingscort, N. B., under date of Feb. 9th, 1918, writes us as follows:—"About five months ago, a lump came on my jaw bone. I thought it was a boil, and after it had been there quite a while it began to get larger. I went to a doctor and he said it was an abscess, and lanced it. He gave me a wash for it, so I went by his directions until it healed up, but it commenced coming again, and in about three weeks it broke itself. I thought it would get better, but it didn't. A neighbor advised me to get a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, so I sent and got a bottle, and by the time it was all gone, the abscess had disappeared, and now it is all better."

Burdock Blood Bitters will heal and dry up sores, ulcers, and abscesses, no matter how large or how long standing. If you have never applied it to a cut, wound, sore or ulcer, just try it and see what soothing, healing, cleansing power it possesses. It takes out itching, stinging and burning, and promotes the growth of healthy flesh. So, too, when taken internally, by its power of eliminating all impurities from the blood and making that vital fluid rich, red and pure, it cuts off the origin and source of the foul matter that goes to make boils, pimples, sores, ulcers, abscesses and the like, and at the same time the purified and enriched blood creates healthy tissue where there was formerly, perhaps, a sore full of pus.

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for 40 years. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"It's Either a 'Dunlop' or an Imitation!"

That phrase came into dealers' minds through the coming of other bicycle tires. As "Dunlop" were the basic tires, naturally other tires had to be more or less patterned after the original. But no man living can make a pattern of Quality. You can still get the "original" tire with its wealth of unmatched features. Why buy the imitation—the experimental tire?
