

British Infantry behind barbed wire fence coolly awaiting a charge of German Cavalry.

British Defenders of Belgium.
British marines fighting from the trenches near Lierre during a German attack. The fire of the British guns was deadly.

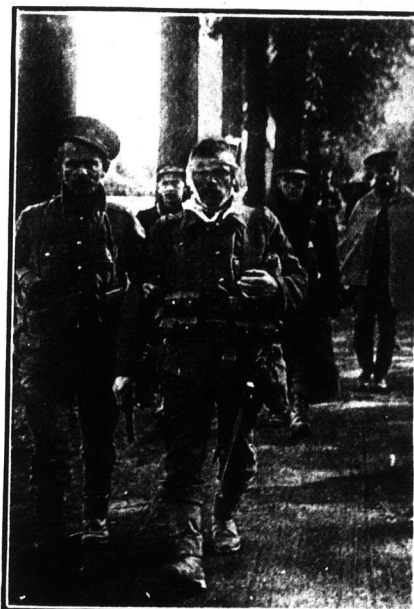

Wounded British Sailor being conveyed to hospital in motor bus. The bus window has been smashed by shrapnel but otherwise is in good condition.

General Botha, premier of South Africa and Commander-in-Chief of the South African forces.

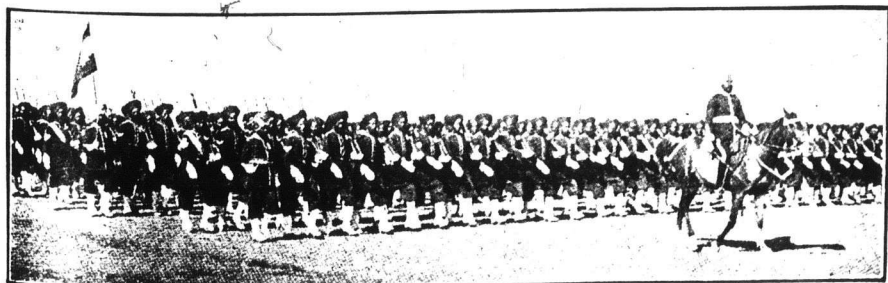

Graham White (centre), in charge of the Aviation Forces of Great Britain, and Lieut. Porte (right), who is to command the transatlantic flier "America," which was recently shipped over from the U.S.

Wounded British Marine, instead of going to hospital rejoins comrades in trenches.

British Marines carrying ammunition into the trenches near Antwerp. A detachment of the British Marines landed at Antwerp a few days before its evacuation.

A typical Indian Regiment of Infantry.

British Naval Reserves in Belgium.
British Marines going to take up their position in the trenches outside Mons where the Germans suffered a severe repulse.