Banquet Leads Off

Varsity Guest Weekend will open on Thursday, Feb. 23 with an Appreciation Banquet in the Jubilee Auditorium. This banthey have given to the University of Alberta.

A reception at 5:30 p.m. will precede the banquet at which each of the student hosts will be introduced to his two guests. These hosts will be members of presidents of various clubs on campus.

Three hundred guests will be invited to this reception and banquet. They will be entertained after the dinner by the open-ing performance of the Varsity

Varieties show, "Not With A Bang".

The Appreciation Banquet is really a combination of two that have been held by the University in past years, quet, sponsored by the Stu-dents' Union and the Gold Key society, honors members of the Civic Banquet. The Parliamentary Dinner has been held on the first day of VGW for several years to the Civic and Parliamentary entertain members of the Alberta governments for the support Legislative Assembly. Last year's Civic reception, which was held to honor officials of the City of Edmontion, opened Homecoming Week end on Oct. 22.

Those favoring the combination felt the "Varsity Varieties" show would prove more entertaining to their "Civic" guests. They have previously been entertained by campus Gold Key, the executive of the students' Council, and the violes of their various groups, and special numbers prepared by the Jubilaires and Mixed Chorus.

The name "Appreciation Banquet" was chosen by the Students' Council from three suggested by the Gold Key society. Such a name, it was felt, did not favor one group of invited guests above the other.

A new feature at this year's Varsity Guest Weekend will be tours of the displays.

Each building containing displays will have two or three students available for guiding the visitors. The main purpose is to give the visitor an idea of the location of the various displays, their complexity, and their interest for the visitor so that the guest may plan a more effective use of his time. Guides will be available at every registration booth, as will be information of the locations of the various display areas.

A further innovation this year is the tour bus. The VGW committee has been able to secure the services of a glass topped touring bus of the type familiar in resort towns. A guide will provide information.

The bus will double as a transit system: at every building it will stop to pick up and discharge passengers.

To enable future students of Agriculture and others interested to view the University Farm, the bus will make a trip to the farm at 11:00 a.m. Saturday. Starting point will be the Agriculture Building situated at the north end of the campus.

It should be pointed out that the services of the bus are free, its cost being borne by the budget of the VGW Committee, which organizes the Weekend.

Information, guides and literature of all kinds will be available at the registration booths in each major building. Their purpose is to obtain a record of visitors, as a guide to future planning of the Weekend. Registration is free. Every guest will receive a big yellow and green lapel button, identifying him as a guest.

Along with the registration tag, each guest will receive a handbook containing a list of the displays, their locations, and times of all events SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 26: scheduled. The handbook will be in the style of a greeting card; when opened out completely, a map of the campus on the inside will enable the visitor to orient himself.
