Questions and Answers. Miscellaneous.

Cousins.

If A and B were cousins, what relation would their children be; also what relation would A and B's children be?

AN INTERESTED READER.

Ans.—The children of A and the children of B would be second cousins. The children of B and A would be somewhere between first and second cousins, but as there is no three-quarter mark, they are generally termed second cousins, also.

Lice or Eczema.

Have a horse in good condition which scratches its mane and tail when possible. It has been doing so since last spring, and in every other way appears to be perfectly healthy. How can it be cured?

W. A. C.

Ans.—If the horse is not troubled with lice, this is eczema. Clip the horse, then give a thorough scrubbing with warm soap suds, and rub with cloths until dry. Then dress once daily until the itchiness ceases, with a warm solution of corrosive sublimate 1½ drams to a gallon of water. Of course, after clipping, it will be necessary to blanket the horse and keep him in comfortable quarters.

Hired Man's Time.

If I hire for eight months on January 10th, when is my time up? Also, if nothing is said about Sundays at time of hiring, can I claim any, or have I to stay every Sunday? How many working days in the month, and can I claim public holidays?

J. B.

Ans.—It will be necessary for you to put in eight calendar months, so that your time will be up October 10th. You are required to do necessary chores on Sunday, although it is often practiced to give the man every other Sunday off, unless, of course, the nature of the chores does not permit of this. You can legally claim public holidays.

Frost-proof Wall.

Have seen in one number of "The Farmer's Advocate" an illustration of a wall that was frost-proof. Would you please re-publish it, as I did not have time to read it then, and I can't find the number now. I think it was along about the first of June. I think your paper is a farmer's friend, because I have gotten a good lot of valuable information from it.

N. McL.

Ans.—This article appeared in "The Farmer's Advocate" of June 5th, 1913. The brick or tile of which the said wall is constructed, are 4 x 8 x 12, each with two hollow spaces some two inches square. The spaces extend through the blocks so that, in laying, the hollow end of one will abut the solid part of the next, which adds strength to the wall. These spaces contain "dead air." This wall is laid inside an outer wall consisting of four-inch brick, and between it and the tile wall is an air space of three inches, which is continuous to the roof. The two walls are plastered on the sides toward the air-space, and braced together with strong, galvanized-iron wire, bent Z-shape.
