

THE PRETTY NURSE'S MARRIAGE CHANCES.

(N. Y. Sun.) An observer who has kept count both through the newspapers and by private statistics says that the trained nurse stands head on the list of women who make good marriages through their business associations...

"It's the uniform," says one. "White is so becoming and gives a young woman such a look of spotless innocence. Besides, the cap is very fetching and a wonderful help to a girl who has not pretty hair or who has not the knack for arranging it prettily."

"It's because she appears when the victim is in a helpless condition. She helps him out of a physical hole, and natural gratitude serves to rivet his interest," says another.

"And a third holds that it is because the nurse looks so radiant, so healthy and capable that she proves seductive to the man she is nursing, or in whose family she is nursing. She understands the laws of hygiene, is superior to nerves, and is able to keep things in the household in a state of order and helplessness—picture to incite any man's admiration."

But whatever the secret, the trained nurse continues her conquests, transforming her patients and her patients' uncles and fathers and brothers into bridegrooms with amazing facility. Even the nurse who is a professional man later, and who declares that the only advantage in nursing men patients is that they pay her better and have no long hair to comb, will veer around and suddenly annex some well-to-do patient for better or for worse.

The apparently confirmed bachelor on the street when his relatives believed sure to leave all his property to them will succumb to the magic of the trained nurse before the interested have time to object. And the married man who falls into good hands when she marries it is as though fate would make amends for the drudgery filled days of her probation at the hospital, or recompense her for the weary, protracted vigils and forbidding duties of the training school, the hard knocks that were hers before she got up to the $30-a-week and never-sitting-up-at-night salary of the certain training school read like this:

do it, and don't think you are old. No one nowadays is old. It is unfashionable.

The favorite sticking age for women is 25. This is proved by the fact that the number of women marrying themselves as between 20 and 25 is far larger than the number of girls returned 10 years before as between 10 and 15. The former must naturally be the survivors of the latter. Here is a little mystery of which the solution must be found in the intricate mazes of a woman's vanity.

The present King of England, when Prince of Wales, once asked a pretty woman her age. She replied: "Just 25."

"Five years later he met her again and asked the same question. "Just 25," she again replied. The prince smiled and said: "Five years ago you made the same answer."

"All your highness," was the rejoinder, "surely you don't think I am a woman who says one thing to-day and another thing to-morrow!"

"There is no reason why a woman should be obliged to tell her age in court. If she is wise she will not. And what is your age, madam?" was the attorney's question.

"My own," she answered promptly. "I understand that, madam; I mean how old are you?" "I am not old, sir," with indignation.

"I beg your pardon, madam; I mean how many years have you passed?" "None; the years have passed me." "How many of them have passed you?" "All! I have never heard of their stopping."

"Madam, you must answer my question; I want to know your age." "I don't know that the acquaintance is desired by the other side." "I don't see why you insist upon refusing to answer my question, and I am rather curious to know why I should tell you how old I was if I were asked."

"But nobody would ask you, for everybody knows you are old enough to know better than to be asking a woman her age."

And the attorney passed on to the next question. The objection made by women to letting their age be known is not approved by the ladies of Japan, who actually display their cycle of years by the way in which they arrange their hair.

Girls from 9 to 15 wear their hair interwined with red crepe in a semi-circle around the head, the forehead being left free with a curl at each side. From the ages of 15 to 20 the hair is dressed very high on the forehead and gathered up at the back in the shape of a butterfly or fan, with twirlings of silver cord and perhaps a decoration of colored balls.

Beyond the milestone of 20 a woman twists her hair around a shell pin placed horizontally at the back of the head. Quite differently, again, a widow arranges her coiffure, and the initiated are able to tell at a glance whether or not she desires to marry again.—New York Sun.

SLEEPY SHEEP. Some Noted Instances of Sleeping in Church. "Shut the doors!" cried Father Anny one day to the Suisse on duty, when he observed the Archbishop of Paris asleep during his discourse.

"Shut the doors," the shepherd is asleep, the sheep will get out!" quipped a man preaching at Sidney Smith, "as if they thought sin is to be taken out of a man as Eve was taken out of Adam, by casting him into a profound slumber." So at any rate thought the South, who, preaching one day at Whitehall, observed King Charles II. and several of his attendants asleep. Stopping down, he cried out to one of the delinquent quacks, "My lord, I am sorry to interrupt you, but if you snore so loud, you will wake the King."

His Majesty thereupon awoke, and, turning to his neighbor, remarked with his accustomed good nature, "This man must be made a bishop; remind me on the next vacancy."

Good Things to Know. Leather bags can be freshened by rubbing with a cloth slightly moistened with salad oil. Polish with olive oil, heated together and cooled. Use upon the face when going to bed with a mask of this old linen or muslin put on to prevent coming off—further protecting the pillow by an old sheet thrown over them. In the morning a bath of white castile soap and water brings the face out pure and softly tinted as a child's. This is not only the best, but one of the most harmless and cheapest preparations that can be procured.

Too Much for Endurance. Baltimore American. It was in the courtyard of the Bulgarian royal palace. "Yonder come the anti-revolutionists," shouted the royal chamberlain to a servant. "Run and call the King quickly!"

Taking a card from his pocket the servant began to spell out the name. It was Karageorgievitch. "And yet," he said, bitterly, "they expect me to call him quickly. It makes me sick!"

LUMBERMAN TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE.

How Dodd's Kidney Pills Quickly Cured His Lame Back.

William N. Baskin, of Norwood, Gives Good Advice and Others are Following It With Splendid Results.

Norwood, Ont., July 6.—(Special.)—William N. Baskin, the well-known lumberman and railroad contractor of this place, tells of an experience with Dodd's Kidney Pills that is bound to be of interest to the public generally.

"For two years," says Mr. Baskin, "I was laid up with Lame Back and Kidney Disease. I would at times become weak and have to leave off work. People who knew me as lumberman and contractor on the C. P. R. and Parry Sound Railways knew how sick I was."

"Reading of wonderful cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills led me to try them. I used three boxes and am completely cured. I can say now I have not had any pains since I used Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Others who have followed Mr. Baskin's advice and tried Dodd's Kidney Pills report similar results. No form of Kidney Disease can stand before them.

A Relation by Marriage. "Children have queer ideas," said the happy father of a bright young boy to a friend the other day. "I don't, as a general thing, repeat the sayings or tell of the doings of that young one of mine, but really a thing he said to me just before Christmas is worth repeating."

"Teddie wanted to give a present to each member of the family. I encouraged his generous thought and promised him all the material aid he might need. So he made out the list of the things he intended to buy and applied to me for the money to buy them. I asked to see the list and found that the present for his mother called for a much larger sum than the one for me."

"Of course, I agreed with his idea that his mother should have the best of anything that was going, but I was rather curious to know why he thought so, and I asked him how it was his mother was to get a better present than his dad. His answer staggered me."

"Well," he said, seriously, "mamma is mamma always, but you are papa only because you married into the family."—Exchange.

Betrothed Before Birth. During the Middle Ages it was customary for princes and princesses to become betrothed and married in childhood to insure succession or political advantages. But it was only in exceptional cases that unborn children were disposed of in the same way. Such a case, however, is on record. It occurred in 1368, when Prince Sigmund, son of Emperor Charles IV., was born. On his baptismal day he was betrothed to Katharine, daughter of the Count of Nuremberg. On that occasion it was agreed that a daughter of Charles IV., with whom he was expected to be blessed within five years, should be married to a son of Count Frederic; he should so be provided. This is the youngest bridal couple on record. The hoped-for daughter came in 1373, the last year of the alotted period, and she in time became the wife of Johan III., the son of the Count, who also justified the expectations of his parents.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

LONDON AND PARIS.

Differences are Strongly Marked and Are Often Opposite.

The contrasts presented by Paris and London are rather amusingly put by Felix Peja in the Matin, of the former city. He says: "Paris does most things with the right hand or at the right hand side; London follows the left."

"Parisian coachmen keep to the right, those of London to the left. Paris grows more absorption, London by expansion. "Paris is built of stone, London of brick."

"Paris has high houses and narrow streets, London's buildings are low and its streets wide. "The windows of Paris open like shutters, those of London a la guillotine."

"Paris is collectivistic, it dwells in houses which are really caravansaries; London is individualistic, each family having its own house. "Paris has its portier, London its night key."

"Paris gets up early from its bed, which is against the wall; London arises late from its bed, which is in the centre of the room. "Paris dines, London eats. "London said dinaire, has 100 regions, and but one sauce; Paris has 100 sauces and no religion at all."

"Paris is gay, London sad. "London has too few soldiers. Paris has too many. The soldier in Paris wears blue tunic and pantaloons, while the London man-of-war is clad in a red coat and blue trousers. "In Paris priests perform the marriage ceremony in London they marry themselves. "In Paris the married women are free; in London when a woman marries she ceases to be, London more homickes. "Paris works, London traffics. "In Paris the street crowds fight by kicks, in London by blows of the fist."

"The proletariat of Paris refer to the pawnshop as "my aunt," while in London they say "my uncle."

BINDER TALK. Some of the important features of the Massey-Harris Binder are: Folding Dividers—No bolts or nuts to unscrew. You merely release a spring on the outside of the binder, and the inside one folds them. A youngster can do it easily and properly. The Dividers are very rigid in their working positions and remain at whatever angle they are folded over the conveyor canvas. Floating Elevators—They literally float. The grain cannot stick or choke in the Massey-Harris elevator, no matter how much it is heaped. Simple Knotter—Capable of adjusting to take up wear. Reel—Suited for handling the crops under all conditions of weather or land. It will pick up tangled or laid grain and lay it neatly on the table. It also handles long or short grain with splendid success. Light on the draft and throughout the light on the draft and make the work easy for the horses. The beasts know when they are hitched to a Massey-Harris—it runs so easily.

Another Peaceful Blockade. Chicago Post. She indignantly—Sir, what do you mean by putting your arm around my waist? He (meekly)—Why, I—er—thought you wouldn't object. She—Well, I do, and I'll give you just three hours in which to remove it."

ABOUT THE RED-HEADED GIRL. She Possesses Qualities of Which Her Darker Sister Cannot Boast. A champion of the red-headed girl has come to the front. Not that the girl in question is greatly in need of a champion. In nine cases out of ten she is abundantly able to care for herself without assistance from any source. But this advice of "the girl with the auburn hair" defies the world to dispute the truth of these five propositions:

1. Detect the odor of a previous high ball further, quicker and with more unerring instinct than any other being on earth. 2. Nail a lie and bore deeper holes with her penetrating eye in so doing than any other thing that has eyes. 3. Make any man of a liar look like thirty cents quicker and with less effort than any other living thing. 4. Break a man's morning nap and hustle him to build the fire in the range quicker, surer and with less back talk than any other style of woman-kind. 5. She is the only known species who can throw a missile with accurate aim and who does not endanger the lives of innocent by-standers.

Minard's Liniment Cures Gargot in Cows. A GREAT FRONTIER JUDGE. He Sentenced 172 Men and 88 of Them Were Hanged.

From a sketch of Judge I. C. Parker, in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for July, this is taken: "A man who sentenced 172 criminals to death, 88 of whom were hanged; an upright judge, holding sway for 21 years over 74,000 square miles of the most lawless territory in the United States; a stern, just judge, whose name became a terror to evil doers; a very kindly, sympathetic gentleman and public spirit; a man whose few characters have been developed in our west who have played a more striking role than Isaac C. Parker, United States District Judge for the Western District of Arkansas, from May, 1875, to September, 1896. The story of his work, which is told in an article in Leslie's Monthly for July, is as thrilling as it is true."

How often he pursued his appointed task and with what aid he succeeded in accomplishing it is shown by the simple record that, during his term of office, sixty-five of his deputies were killed in fights with law-breakers.

Won the Bet. Scottish American. A London commercial, who had a very ruddy complexion, after "working" Glasgow, had some time to wait for his train at St. Enoch station, and he thought himself of a good joke. "What is the name of this station, my good man?" he asked of a porter. "St. Enoch station, sir."

A few minutes later he met the same porter and said: "What did you call this station, porter?" "St. Enoch's. Dae ye no' see the name above the hotel there?"

Looking out of the carriage window he spied his "green" friend and calling him over asked in his most polite tone: "Would you kindly tell me the name of this station, porter?" "Gang awa, ye bacon-faced old bluffer! Pit yer daft head in!" was the answer.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
