The Christian Era.

The Christian era which we now use was fixed by Dionysius (surnamed The Little), a Roman abbot and one of the most learned men of the sixth century. Its epoch or commencement, is the first day of January, on the fourth year of the one hundred and ninety-fourth olympiad, the seven hundred and forty-third from the foundation of Rome and four thousand seven hundred and fourteenth of the Julian period. It is usually supposed to begin with the birth of Christ, but there are various opinions with regard to the year in which that event took place. The system accepted by the Christian world is that of Usher, which makes the date of the birth of Christ four years before the Christian era. The time for the Christian era was introduced in Italy in the sixth century and began to be used in Gaul in the eighth century, though it was not generally followed in that country until a century later. From extant charters it is known to have been in use in England before the close of the eighth century. Before its adoption the usual course in Latin countries was to distinguish the years by their number in the cycle of indication, or tax levying era.—Philadelphia Press.

THE JOURNALISTS' CREED.

(By Walter Williams, of the School of Journalism, University of Missouri.)

I believe in the profession of journalism.

I believe that the public journal is a public trust; that all connected with it, to the full measure of their responsibility, trustees for the public; that acceptance of lesser service than the public service is betrayal of this trust.

I believe that clear thinking and clear statement, accuracy and fairness are fundamental to good journalism.

I believe that a journalist should write only what he holds in his heart to be true.

I believe that suppression of the news, for any consideration other than the welfare of society, is indefensible.

I believe that no one should write as a journalist; that bribery by one's own pocketbook is as much to be avoided as bribery by the pocketbook of another; that individual responsibility may not be escaped by pleading another's instructions or another's dividends.

I believe that advertising, news and editorial columns should alike serve the best interests of the readers; that a single standard of helpful truth and clearness should prevail for all; that the supreme test of good journalism is the measure of its public service.

I believe that the journalism which succeeds best—and best deserves it—fears God and honors man; is stoutly independent, unmoved by pride of opinion or greed of power, constructive, tolerant, but never careless, self-controlled, patient; always respectful of its readers but always unafraid; is quickly indignant at injustice; is unwavering in the appeal of privilege of the citizen or the mob; seeks to give every man a chance, and as far as law and honest wage and recognition of human brotherhood can make it so, an equal chance; is profoundly patriotic, while sincerely promoting international good will and remembrance of world-comradeship; is a journalism of humanity, of and for to-day's world.

The waitress was pretty and conscious of the fact.

The diner was frivolous and forward.

"Pretty tough to be peened up here on a nice day like this," the diner observed.

"Yes, sir," the girl returned.

"You are too good-looking to be doing this work."

"Have you ever thought of bettering your condition?"

"Oh, yes."

"It's awfully warm in here."

"I, huh."

"Don't you suffer from the stuffy atmosphere?"

"Half losing her bright eyes and assuming a pensive air, the girl tartly replied:

"No, only from the hot air."

IRON IN WATER.

It Takes Only the Least Bit to Make Itself Felt.

Half a part per million of iron in water is detectable by taste, and more than four or five parts make water unpalatable. In some mineral springs iron is the constituent which imparts a medicinal value to the water, but ordinarily it is undesirable. More than 2.5 parts per million in water used for laundering makes a stain on the clothes. Iron must be removed from water from which ice is made or a cloudy, discolored product will result. An iron content of over two or three parts per million in water used in the manufacture of paper will stain the paper.

Iron is harmful in water used for steaming, for it is in equilibrium with acids which made the boiler become discolored, with the result that the free acids corrode the boiler plates, but the amount of iron carried in solution by more water is so small that the damage it does to steam boilers generally amounts to little.

Waters having a high iron content have in some places, where they have been used as city supplies, caused an immense amount of trouble and expense, for they favor the growth of crenothrix to such a degree that the water pipes become clogged with the iron sheaths of that organism. The removal of iron from water is sometimes easy and sometimes very difficult.—United States Geological Survey.

FLAXSEED NOW A WONDERFUL HUMAN FOOD

as deodorized and used in Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal. It's the most nourishing seed grown. It has always been used as a wonderful food for stock, but since Dr. Jackson's discovery of a method of deodorizing it, it has become available as a delicious human food, 25 per cent of it being used in Roman Meal. This food is guaranteed to relieve constipation, "money back." It also nourishes better than meat and prevents indigestion. Ask your doctor. At all grocers, 10 cents and 25 cents.

When Tissot Was Satisfied.

A charming story is told of Tissot, the great French painter. While in England on one occasion he painted a beautiful religious picture and, meeting a woman from Paris, asked her opinion of his work. Characterizing it as a work of real art, she gave a remarkably just and candid appreciation of the various merits of the painting.

"Are you satisfied?" asked a friend. The artist answered in the negative. He entirely repainted his picture, working night and day. When it was finished he sent for his fair critic, who pronounced it admirable, and then she remained silently admiring it with smiling criticism.

"Are you satisfied?" once more asked the friend. "No," replied Tissot as he began to work on the picture for the third time. When the lady saw the new painting she gazed at it for some moments with evident emotion and then, kneeling, she sank softly to her knees and began to pray.

"Are you satisfied now?" whispered the friend. "Yes," answered Tissot.

ANOTHER NEW INDUSTRY FOR HAMILTON.

The W. T. Rawleigh Co., who have factories in Freeport, Ill., Memphis, Tenn., Winnipeg, Can., and warehouses at Chester, Penn., Oakland, Cal., and Toronto, Can., are going to build a factory in Hamilton, making the seventh new factory for that city this year.

The Rawleigh Company manufactures proprietary medicines, extracts, spices, soap, perfumes, toilet articles, polishes, stock remedies, poultry supplies, dip and disinfectants, etc., which are sold direct to the farmers from wagons by over 1,900 dealers in the United States and about 300 in Canada. The first building will be 120 feet long by 40 feet deep, four or five stories high, and work will be started on this shortly.

The Caged Emperor.

After Elba Napoleon became a bogey to the whole world as well as to the British Government, which had the guarding of him, "Lord Bathurst believed," says Norwood Young in "Napoleon in Exile: St. Helena (1815-1821)," "that Napoleon spent his time in concocting plans for escape."

"Where could I go to, allowing that I got out of the island? Every place I could arrive at I would find enemies to seize me." This panicky dread of Napoleon's escape from St. Helena led to England's annexation of the uninhabited island of Ascension, 700 miles distant. The even more distant island of Tristan d'Acunha was similarly taken possession of the following year, because it was thought to be too dangerously near the Napoleonic influence.

UNEXPLORED GEORGIA.

Huge Swamp Has Strange Race of Whites, Negroes and Indians.

One would scarcely think there were any blank spots on the map of the United States, but in Georgia there is a vast area, nearly seven hundred square miles of it, which has not been officially explored. On the government map of Okefenokee, there are many parts marked "impenetrable" and "unexplored." In the depths of this swamp live white people, colored people and a few Indians. Nearly all the Indians and colored people have so mixed races as to make it almost impossible to locate many full-blooded Indians.

Swamp used to hide in this great swamp. Later many deserters from the Confederate army, and men who escaped enlistment went into the swamp and their descendants are living there to-day. They call the swamp ground "trembling earth."

Only the experienced natives can go about in it. The white men living there, are of mixed race. They hunt and trap and fish, and also go outside and work with the cypress lumbermen.

Amphibious Forces.

The use of naval forces on land is, of course, by no means novel, but not very many know that it is a direct reversal of the policy adopted in the early days of the navy. Under Cromwell's rule army officers were placed in command of war vessels, and the great Admiral Blake was a colonel in the new model army before he went to sea. Another notable soldier to be placed in command at sea was General Monk, first duke of Albemarle, who justified the transference by winning two great sea fights against the Dutch.—Dundee Advertiser.

To Shaving $10,000,000.

The cost to the community of shaving was calculated some years ago by an ingenious statistician, who estimated that there were 7,000,000 shavers in the United Kingdom; of three classes—those who shave themselves; those who are shaved daily by a barber; and those, like the majority of the working classes, who submit themselves to the razor only once or twice a week. Charges for shaving range from 2 cents to 25 cents; and the expenditure on shaving must reach $10,000,000 yearly.

Law and the Queen.

The quaintness of many provisions of British law is curiously illustrated in the status of the queen of England. So far as her majesty's private business is concerned, she is not regarded by the laws and customs of England as a married woman at all. She is the only woman in Great Britain who does not come within the scope of the married woman's property act. The idea in all this is that affairs of state consume all the time of the king, and therefore no responsibility for the queen's private business rests upon him. If the queen contracted debts in her husband's name he would not be responsible for them as any other husband in the United Kingdom would. The king cannot be sued for debt, but the queen can be. Should the king die, some authorities hold that the queen could not marry again, in case she wished to, without the license of the king's successor.—New York Tribune.

HEZEKIAH'S MEMORY.

It Was Subjected to a Severe Test, But It Stood the Strain.

I once heard of an old negro named Hezekiah, who, it was said, had the most wonderful memory ever known to man. Indeed, it was so great that the devil, it was said, was envious of it and often dreamed of how much better he could conduct the affairs of his dominion at home and abroad if he only had Hezekiah's memory.

Hezekiah had let it be known that if at any time anybody ever caught him forgetting anything that somebody could have his power of memory. This is where the devil saw his chance and laid his plans. So one day the "old scratch" dressed himself in citizen's clothes and approached Hezekiah where he was plowing in his field. Each greeted the other and passed the compliments of the day, then presently the devil said:

"Hezekiah, of all the good things that there are in the world to eat, what one thing do you like best?"

After a moment of reflection Hezekiah replied, "Chicken."

Without further words the devil turned and walked away. He stayed away from Hezekiah for twenty years. Then one morning somewhat as before he approached him as if he was there at work in his field. He looked at him for a moment and said, "How?"

Hezekiah looked up, scratched his head, smiled a little, and replied, "Fried."

CHILDHOOD CONSTIPATION

Baby's Own Tablets will promptly cure constipation of childhood. They act as a gentle laxative, regulate the bowels and stomach and are absolutely safe. Concerning them Mrs. A. Crowell, Sandy Cove, N.S., writes: "I can strongly recommend Baby's Own Tablets to all mothers whose little ones are suffering from constipation. The tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

Nothing to Wear.

There are women who live to dress, and the more frequent and radical the changes are the better they like it. If their pocketbooks can stand it, no great harm is done. But the great majority of women can't afford to keep up with this pace. The result is that some stay at home because their clothes are not in the latest style, many are made unhappy, and others keep up with the procession, it matters not what may be the cost.

If a man can wear the same dress suit for 8 or 10 years and not look like a freak, why is it not possible to design an evening gown for women that will be in good style as long as it may be worn? It is absurd to hear a woman say, "I haven't a thing to wear, when she may have a half-dozen gowns all in good condition."—Frances Fear in Leslie's.

Quits.

Little Maude would tell "whoppers." One day her aunt thought she ought to be cured of this habit, so she spoke seriously to the little maid, who promised to mend her ways.

To point the moral aunt told the tale of the shepherd boy who was always calling "Wolf!" until no one could believe him. Then one day the wolf really came and ate up all the sheep.

"All the sheep?" interrupted Maude. "Yes, every one of them," replied aunt, decidedly.

"Every single one?"

Auntie nodded.

"Well," said Maude slowly, "I don't believe you, and you don't believe me. So there!"—London Answers.

Turner's Little Afterthought.

An English critic's reference to Turner's fine picture "The Wreck Buoy" reminds a faithful newspaper reader of a curious anecdote in connection with it. When Turner first sent this picture to the Royal Academy it was hung among several brilliantly colored pictures. On vanishing day Turner found the effect of his dull gray rendering of a stormy sea altogether spoiled by its bright surroundings.
