You Must Do More

It is not enough that you stop the cough, you must go back of the effect and remove the cause. Thousands subject to colds and coughs find that

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

In 1883 Ella Wheeler, a girl from Wisconsin then in her 28th year, published a small volume of poems that she daringly titled "Poems of Passion." Better known to the latter-day world by her married name Ella Wheeler Wilcox was probably the most widely known writer in the United States.

Her own story of her life, published last year as "The World and I," is a very human document and reveals her as in every way a womanly woman. Such education as she gained was largely self-won, and she learned in the hard school of experience what she later voiced in song.

But when the hand of death touched the poetess and the husband with whom she had spent 32 years of happy wedded life was taken from her side, Mrs. Wilcox proved herself capable of a more exalted strain and her poetic genius rose to greater heights in "Sorrows of Sorrow and Triumph."

The life of Ella Wheeler Wilcox was a happy one, and happy even in the days of her great bereavement. Both she and her husband were attracted to the study of psychic phenomena and later became convinced believers in the possibility of communication with the spirits of the departed. In prospect of death they had agreed that whichever was taken first should strive most urgently to deliver a message from the other world. After a period of anxious waiting Mrs. Wilcox believed that it had been through the medium of the Ouija board and that it required her to go into war service. She went first to England and then to France, joining the Red Cross work, nursing in hospitals and, what was her most memorable service, talking to the soldiers at the rest camps and even at the front, and counselling them to maintain moral purity and to keep devotedly to high ideals of life and conduct. In that service she acquired the malady that closed her brave life, but doubtless she welcomed the dread messenger that summoned her to the reunion that was the one craving of her heart.

Wonderful Glass Process

The financial correspondent of London Morning Post states that a company, with a capital of $2,250,000, under the title of the British Window Glass Co. (Ltd.) has been formed to acquire the sole rights for the manufacture and sale of sheet and window glass in Great Britain made under the secret processes and inventions of M. E. Fourcalt, of Charleroi, Belgium. It is stated that the process, which was invented in 1906, has revolutionized the production of sheet glass. The company is arranging to acquire 10 acres of land at Queenborough (England) and intends immediately to erect thereon a factory capable of producing with the first unit of plant erected, over 24,000,000 square feet of window glass per annum, while subsequent extensions will have a capacity of four times that quantity.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep.
