have no blg game, require non-residents to pay $25, the same rate hich is required in Idaho and Montana, where deer elk, goats and other big game may be obtained.

Maine, which has excelient big , game hunting, exacts $15, and Utah but $10, while South Carolina, which offers but little besides game birds, until recently required $25, and made the license good only in the county in which it was issued. Maine and New Brunswick both have Moose and deer and offer much the same opport- i unity for hunting, but the fee in New Brunswick is $30, or exactly ; twice that in Maine.

One or the chief objections to non-residents license laws and one of the features which usually causes the greatest hardship, is the requiring non-residents who own; land within the state to secure licenses. To meet this difficulty several states have made special ex-ceptions to their laws. Montana Montana exempts taxpayers and New Hamishire those who own real estate within the state to the value! of $500

It appears that in the nine states and four provinces 3.336 nonresident big game licenses were issued in 1903 at a cost of $72,294 that Maine issued more than onethird of the fees, and that New-Brunswick stood second in point of he n-e receipts. "he total amont of fees received i . Maine in 1903 were $25,455.
