MANY CHARGES AGAINST BOYLAN,

And He is Committed for Trial on Them All.

OLD DICK PYM IN COURT.

But it Was Not William Sherring, the Runner, Who Tripped Him in a Fake Race—Girl in Trouble for Keeping Bad Company.

Charges against Leonard Boylan came so fast at the Police Court this morning that he had not much time to think. He decided that he would be tried by the higher court and pleaded not guilty to three charges. The first charge heard was that of stealing about four tons of iron from Copp Bros. some time within the last two weeks.

Mr. Harold Copp swore that some dies for pressing mould-boards had been stolen from their blacksmith shop. There were about four tons in all, and as dies they were worth hundreds of dollars. The loss had been noticed the day after Christmas and reported to the police. Mr. Copp stated that the prisoner rented a small house from them. John Arthur, a clerk in the employ of Copp Bros., swore to discovering the loss of the dies, and stated that on last Tuesday morning as he was going to work he saw some dies in front of the Hamilton Rag & Metal Co's. premises, which he recognized as being the property of the firm he worked for.

Mr. Epstein, of the Hamilton Rag & Metal Co., swore that he bought two loads of iron on Monday morning and two loads on Tuesday morning of this week, from the prisoner, who told him he had got it from some foundry in the country. He paid Boylan forty and fifty cents a hundred pounds, and the amount the prisoner received was about $40.

J. McAdzett, a carter, testified that the prisoner engaged him to haul some iron from a vacant lot on Hughson street, near Cannon street. Market Clerk Hill swore that he had weighed two loads of iron for Boylan, who gave the name of Burns. Detective Coulter stated that he had, brought the prisoner from Brantford, where he had been caught by the police there. Chief Smith did some hustling to get this man, and it was owing to his prompt efforts that the Brantford people were enabled to catch Boylan so quickly.

Boylan would not testify in his own behalf, and he was committed for trial.

The next charge was that of stealing seventy-five brass stair rods from Mr. Alex. Thomson, furniture dealer, York street. Boylan appeared to be very much surprised, and pleaded not guilty in a very decided manner.

Mr. Thomson swore that he went with Detective Coulter to the prisoner's shop on York street, which adjoined the premises formerly occupied by witness. They found the above mentioned stair rods and a great number of other articles, such as bed springs, tables, hinges, which Mr. Thomson identified as his property. Detective Coulter also gave testimony as regards finding the goods in prisoner's shop. Mr. Thomson had reported to the police several times that the back door of his factory had been broken open during the night. The Magistrate committed Boylan.

The prisoner's troubles did not end here, for the police were ready for another charge, that of stealing an overcoat, and a blue coat and vest from Mr. Charles Smith. When asked how he would plead Boylan said: "Oh, put him in the box and I'll tackle him." Mr. Smith testified that he lived at Robinson's Hotel, on Merrick street, and that the clothing had been taken out of his room at different times, and he had seen the prisoner with the coat and vest on, last Monday. He knew the prisoner intimately, and had bought the overcoat from him, as Boylan was a tailor. The prisoner proceeded to cross-examine the witness vigorously. He claimed that the coat had not been paid for, and that Smith had violated an agreement that he had made when the coat was bought. Witness stated that he had not broken his agreement in any way and had paid four dollars on the coat in weekly payments, according to arrangements made with prisoner.

The Magistrate informed Boylan that he had no right anyway to take the coat away under such conditions.

Detective Coulter swore that he had found the overcoat in Brantford, where the police there had taken it away from the prisoner. The blue coat and vest had not been found. Prisoner was also committed on this charge.

Violet Marcy, a young girl about 16 years of age, was charged with vagrancy. She has been keeping bad company, it is said, associating with such girls as Aggie Davis and Alice Ball, whom the Magistrate committed on a similar charge a few weeks ago. Inspector Hunter, of the Children's Aid Society, swore that she had been frequenting the house of a colored man named Stanton, living on Rebecca street, and had lived there at times. Stanton admitted that the girl had been at his house, but said that she had asked to stay, because she was afraid to go home, as her father was drinking. P. C. Bainbridge testified to arresting the girl at Stanton's house, and said that there were some more colored people there at the time, and a number of glasses were on the table containing something which looked like beer. The girl's mother said that Violet had always been a good girl to her, and only stayed away from home when her father was drinking. She had worked and brought money home to her mother. Several witnesses swore that they had seen the prisoner going into Stanton's house. The Magistrate remanded her for a few days, to inquire into the case further.

Richard Pym, an eccentric old man who made himself noted by participating in the last Herald road race, and who spends a lot of time wandering around the streets, playing a concertina, charged Wm. Sherring with assaulting him. According to Pym's story, he was challenged on the Market Square on New Year's day to try a test of speed with a young man who some one said was Sherring, and when the word was given to start this young man put out his foot and Richard fell down with sufficient force to raise a lump over the organ of combativeness. After telling this story, Mr. Pym looked down from the witness box and discovered that Sherring was not the party that assaulted him at all. The Chief asked Pym a few pertinent questions as to how he made his living, to which Pym replied that he did little odd jobs of carpentering, but as he was a clever musician, he made most of his money by playing the concertina. The Magistrate said that he had also heard of Pym, and told him that in this country this method of gaining a living was not looked upon as being just the proper thing, and warned him that if he persisted in it, it would lead him to the Police Court, and in a different role. Pym said he was old enough to know his own business. He was trying to follow in the footsteps of Paul, and run the race of life in a way that would bring him great reward. He asked the Magistrate how he could get redress, and was told that he had better get the proper parties who had assaulted him, and was advised that perhaps Paul could help him in the matter.

SPECIAL JANUARY SALES

Whitewear and Linens Also a Great Reduction Sale.

Two notable events start to-morrow (Saturday) at Hamilton's favorite shopping place, "The Right House." One of them, the sale of linens and whitewear, is the result of weeks of careful preparation and forceful buying months ahead for this special January sale. Having abundant capital and our buyers going to the direct sources of supply and the fountain heads of manufacture, we are enabled to purchase in large lots at prices much lower than those who are forced to buy at second hand. Thus we are able to share with our customers the advantage of these lower prices, and economists will readily perceive the wisdom of buying at The Right House during this January sale. The Reduction Sale is one of the methods we periodically adopt of clearing out various seasonable goods in order to ensure fresh stocks at all times. In some cases the quantities are limited, in others, patterns, shades and sizes may be incomplete and various other reasons make it essential that we lower the prices of the goods so as to clean the stocks up. It's distinctly to your advantage to avail yourself of these opportunities. Come to-morrow and see the goods for yourself, the qualities and prices will talk eloquently enough to convince even the most doubtful.

FOR BEACH VOTERS.

Here is a Chance to Take a Hand in Your Affairs.

In view of the interest taken by the township of Saltfleet Council in Beach matters during the season just closed it is expected that all owners of property there will turn out in full force and cast their votes in the election on Monday next. Cars will leave the Radial Railway station as follows: 9.10, 11.10, 1, 2.30 and 4.15, and will be met by rigs at the Beach crossing to take voters to the polling booth. For the benefit of voters the following list of candidates is given:

For Reeve—Thos. A. Carscallen, Robt. H. Dewar.

For Councillors—Geo. Corman, Rufus Glover, Fred Henry, Capt. Lee, O. M. Nash, Major Ptolemy.

It is to be hoped that every Beach owner will turn out to vote at this election.

Genesee Club Supper.

The Genesee Club held a banquet at the Arlington Hotel on New Year's Eve, and about one hundred sat down to supper. A jolly time was spent, Mr. J. Midwinter was the Chairman for the evening, and he officiated in his usual happy manner. Speeches were made by aldermanic candidates Basquil, Kingdon, A. R. Whyte and Fearnside. Songs were sung by Messrs. Frank Dwyer, F. Burdette, T. Macartie, J. McGrogan, and a song and dance was given by Mr. George Mortimer.

Their Entire Stock is Marked Down.

Not only have R. McKay & Co. reduced their carpet stock, but the entire curtain and housefurnishing stock has been included, as they are anxious that the stock shall be $20,000 lighter by Feb. 1st. They offer $1.50 lace curtains for 89c. per pair; $10.00 brussels net curtains for little over half price, $5.95; $6.00 Swiss tamboured curtains for $1.95, just one-third of their value; 25c. silkalines for 15c.; 10c. art muslins for 5c.; 40 and 50c. oil window shades for 25c.; curtain poles for 5c.; curtain ends for 15c., etc. More particulars and further reductions in their large ad. on the sixth page.

Vote for the re-election of Hugh S. Brennen as Trustee for No. 6 Ward.

—An effort is being made to secure the La Dell Concert Company by a few of the influential citizens of Hamilton. If the effort bears fruit Hamilton will have in store one of the finest concert treats of this season, as the company is creating a furore among musical circles of the eastern provinces.

BEHIND THE FOOTLIGHTS.

A FANTASTICAL PICTURE.

The Groom and Bride Belong to the Fads and Follies Burlesque Company and the Bridesmaid Was of the Wine and Women Co.—Rev. J. J. Morton Was the Clergyman.

One of the most bizarre attractions ever seen in the city was put on in the Star Theatre last evening at the close of the performance of the "Fads and Follies Burlesquers." A wedding, real and genuine, had been advertised to take place, and a very large crowd was present. The last act which this company put on is a musical farce, in which all the members take part, and as soon as this was over the curtain was lowered, and the stage settings arranged suitably, the company grouping themselves so as to give the happy couple and the officiating clergyman the centre of the stage. The scene when the curtain was raised was certainly a striking one. In the foreground was Mr. John Lord, the groom, and by his side was the manager of the show, Mr. Lew. Rose, acting in the capacity of best man. In the centre was Rev. J. J. Morton, of this city, prayer-book in hand, and on his right was the bride, Miss Carmelita Meek, becomingly gowned in blue silk. She was assisted by Miss Emma Burt, of the Wine, Woman and Song Co., playing in Toronto this week. The costumes worn by the company were their stage attire. The chorus girls wore the customary suits of tights and fleshings, of every shade of color; the funny men, of course, were ridiculously made up.

In a low voice the reverend gentleman began the ceremony, and as the manager had made several appeals to the "gods" to respect the solemnity of the occasion, and had impressed on them the necessity of remembering that they were in church for the time being, they kept pretty good order, but nevertheless the words of the minister could not be heard by the audience. The responses were distinctly heard. During the long ceremony the crowd shuffled restlessly, and some of the lady members of the company enjoyed themselves with frequent attacks of inward merriment.

When it was all over the crowd cheered lustily for the happy couple. Mr. Lord was so elated that he gave an amusing exhibition of high jumping. The ladies crowded round and hugged and kissed the bride, and then everybody sang "Auld Lang Syne."

Messrs. Klein & Binkley supplied the wedding ring and issued the certificate.

Rev. J. J. Morton has lived here for some years at No. 39 Park street south, and is a retired Anglican minister. The management of the Star Theatre had a busy time hunting up a clergyman to officiate. There seemed to be a peculiar prejudice existing in the minds of some of them against performing a marriage ceremony under such conditions, and it was only at the last moment that Rev. J. J. Morton was secured. He got $5 for his services.

Most people are superstitious to a certain degree, and theatrical people are not exempt from this, and it is said that the fact that the ages of both bride and groom, end in the figure two, that yesterday was the second day in the second year of this century, was regarded by them as being a luck omen. The fact that there were two people concerned in the ceremony, may help some.

Vote for Hugh S. Brennen as Trustee for No. 6 Ward and the economical and efficient management of the Public Schools.

A Splendid Chance for Home-furnishers.

After taking a rough inventory of their carpet and housefurnishings stock, R. McKay & Co. decided that it was about $20,000 too heavy, and have spent the entire week in arranging and marking down the entire stock in order to commence an immense reduction sale Saturday morning.

R. McKay & Co. are noted for the high quality and richness of their stock, and this sale presents many rare opportunities to homefurnishers, as it means reduced prices on their entire $60,000 stock. For instance, they offer 50 patterns in best five-frame brussels carpets, worth $1.40, for 98c. Best $1.25 brussels for 75c. An immense range of 40 and 50c. tapestry carpets for 29c. 75c., 85c. and $1.00 wool carpets for 59c., besides equally deep reductions in oilcloths, rugs, art squares, etc. Their large ad. on the sixth page of this paper should be read by every housekeeper and intending housekeepers, as they will store until required any carpets purchased during this sale.

Chamois Vests.

Call and see our chamois vests, in all sizes and at all prices, from 75 cents to $2.50, just the thing to keep you warm in this cold weather. We have also a varied assortment of chest protectors, from 25 cents to $1.50. Free treatment of Rose Hair Grower still going on. J. A. Zimmerman, successor to Garland & Rutherford, No. 7 King street east.

For Ladies

Who are disinclined to work we have prepared 50 sheets nicely hemmed, bleached and unbleached, 8-4 and 9-4, all 2 1-2 yards long. These are cut from our superior quality of stock sheeting, prices 48c, 65c and 75c each, also sheeting bought here for the next ten days will be hemmed free of charge. Webber Bros & Co., 36 King street west.

—Rev. C. L. Bowlby, pastor of Barton Street Methodist Church, who has been ill, is recovering, and expects to officiate on Sunday.

BRICKLAYERS' BANQUET

Presentation to President Seaman in Connection Therewith.

The Bricklayers and Masons' Union held its annual banquet in its hall, King street east, last evening. About 125 sat down. After the cloth had been removed, the usual toast list was gone through, and songs, funny stories, and speeches were the order of the evening. Mr. John Seaman, who has been elected President for the fourth term, was presented by the Union with a handsome clock, the presentation being made by Building Inspector Anderson, who is an honorary member of the Union. The committee having charge of the arrangements was composed of Messrs. Jas. Anderson, jun., John Gratton, John Connell, Albert Austin, W. McKay, and W. Yates, jun.

BIBLE STUDIES.

Rev. Dr. Harris Will Conduct Series at Y. M. C. A.

Rev. Dr. Elmore Harris, of Toronto, will give the first of a series of Bible addresses this evening at 8 o'clock in the lecture room of the Young Men's Christian Association. His address this evening will be a study in the Book of Hebrews, the "Epistle of Contrasts." Twenty minutes will also be given to the study of the Sabbath school lesson for the coming Sabbath. These studies will be open to all. Each evening's study will be complete in itself; but the greatest benefit will be derived from attendance on the whole series. These studies will be continued every Friday evening during January, February and March.
