The numerous Clothing dealers of Charlottetown are just now telling in glowing words about their under-selling, how they are almost

And naming prices that no other store on earth can match. Now, if it were not undignified in "My Store," we would be tempted to remark that "talk is cheap." Mark our word,

Trade is influenced less by what is said than by what is done,

And that is why so many observing and thoughtful people say

"MY STORE," is the Lowest Priced House in Charlottetown.

When in doubt I go to "My Store," none just as good as "My Store" for the money. "My Store" deals in good low priced goods, and from that up to the best, but they don't keep shoddy. Here's a piece of goods I bought at "My Store" nearly two years ago, and it's good yet.

We could go on and on, enumerating Good Words that have been said to the writer, during the past week, of "My Store," but the few mentioned are sufficient to plainly show why this is

Charlottetown's Busiest Store

Ah, but there is so many chances to hide defects in Clothing. However, when you buy of "My Store" and your purchase does not please you, get your money back, that's our way.

PRIVATE FRANK B. McRae, of the first Island contingent, writing home on April 1st, states that when the Canadians marched out of Bloemfontein for Bushman's Camp, 14 miles distant, on March 31, there were only nine Islanders equal to the task, the others being too ill and footsore. He drank on an average seven quarts of beer a day, and his weight had increased from 180 pounds to 480 pounds. A bad drowning accident occurred off Fifteen Point last Tuesday, by which a young man named Wilbert Arsenault, son of Mr. Frank Arsenault of Summerside, lost his life. He, with Wesley Allen, son of H. C. Allen, Muddy Creek, were returning from their lobster traps, and when about two miles off shore their boat was struck by a squall and capsized. Both men clung to the mast for a long time, but at last Arsenault became exhausted. Allen then held him in his arms for a long while, till he died from cold and exhaustion. Allen then held on to him for a half an hour after he died, but finally had to let him go. The accident occurred at 1 p. m. and it was not till 5 o'clock that Allen was rescued by his brother, Webster Allen, who seeing an object in the water, went to the scene and found it to be his brother. When picked up he was unconscious and almost lifeless. He was immediately taken home and cared for and after consciousness returned he told the sad story. The brave efforts of Allen to save his companion are highly commended on. At last accounts the body of Arsenault had not been found.

AT OTTAWA.

(Special Correspondence to THE HERALD.)

OTTAWA, May 28.—Last week's debate about the machine has been followed by a period of comparative peace. Certain departmental bills and the Criminal Code have been before the House, and the rest of the time has been spent in supply. The Queen's Birthday was duly observed by the suspension of business. But members did not all get a chance to rest. Sir Charles Tupper addressed the Toronto school children at Toronto on Empire Day. Mr. Fox delivered a patriotic address to students at Ottawa. Sir Charles Herbert Tupper and Mr. Wallace spoke in Nova Scotia, and Dr. Montague was one of the speakers in an Ontario celebration.

ANOTHER CALL FOR FUNDS

We are now within five weeks of the end of the fiscal year. Yet after four months had been nearly four months in session Mr. Fielding has brought in a new set of supplementary estimates for the year just expiring. This is the fourth series of supplementaries for 1899-1900, and the total amount of money called for is over fifty-five millions.

The following statement will be found instructive: Amount voted last year in the main estimates for 1900 $46,288,550.

Voted last year in the first supplementaries for 1900, $5,497,845.

Voted last year in the second supplementaries for 1900, $12,451.

Voted last year in the third supplementaries for 1900, $86,018.

Asked for this year by the fourth supplementaries for 1900, $3,490,247.

The total amount of these five sets of estimates for the current year is $55,377,200.

Of this sum $47,232,839 is charged to current accounts and over eight millions to capital.

FOR PRESENT REQUIREMENT. The demand presented this week for money required to help the Government through the month of June, goes to show that our ministers in taking their votes last session for the current year's services made wonderful wild estimates.

The Paris exhibition wants $20,000 more than was expected last year.

Mr. Sifton finds his immigration funds short $75,000. Dr. Borden needs $130,155 more than he expected to be sufficient to put him through the year.

The Yukon is running away with very much more than the minister of the interior dreamed of when he made his appropriation. For river improvements and telegraph lines in that district, $84,000 is asked in addition to the original vote. Dr. Borden asks for another $5,000 for militia in the Yukon, and for expenses of Yukon government $25,000 extra is demanded. The Postmaster General calls for $75,800 in addition to what he at first considered sufficient.

WHERE SENATOR COX COMES IN.

But the most mysterious Yukon bill is one for $20,853, which is to be passed by the Bank of Commerce for commissions on government business done at the Dawson agency. This claim covers two fiscal years, and the strange part of it is that while more than half the money is represented to have been due last year, no mention of the money was made in the sessions of 1898 or 1899 in connection with the estimates of either year. The bill includes charges of $66,715 for commissions on revenue collected by Government officers and placed in custody of the bank. A part of the revenue was paid out for government services in the Yukon district, and the bank is allowed another $17,530 for paying the cheques and drafts in this connection it may be remarked that Senator Cox, President of the bank of Commerce, who seems to have had great good fortune in this business, in the same gentleman who shared with the Toronto Globe Company, the chief benefit of the Crown Next Pass railway contract, which is said to have given these capitalists a clear million dollars.

MR. BLAIR'S MISCALCULATIONS.

Another item in this latest supplementary estimate is a sum of $900,000, which Mr. Blair wants to help to pay through with Intercolonial expenditure on current accounts. After he has consumed all that he had voted at the beginning of the fiscal year. In addition he asks the House to vote him $355,131 charged to capital. He has already secured a vote of $241,800 on Capital account in the main vote, and $699,718 in his first supplementary estimate. It is seen that Mr. Blair is a very expert performer in intercolonial construction at a cost of $1,995,949. Opinions vary as to what part of this vote on capital account is actually expended on operation services. A large part is for rolling stock, for strengthening bridges, and for other things. Mr. Blair's predecessors claim to have paid for out of income. It is expected that with the help of this outlay, which is not charged against this year's income, Mr. Blair may declare a handsome surplus for the year.

A FELDING MYST.

The Finance Minister has been exposing one of his fielding mysts. When he made his budget speech Mr. Fielding claimed that Canada had secured a great concession by the British preference tariff. Sir Richard Cartwright went further and contended that the Canadian preference tariff was a sequence of the preference Canada had given to the mother country. This was the claim. But before introducing the legislation required in connection with the arrangement Mr. Fielding brought down the papers connected with the negotiations, which were supplemented by Sir Charles Tupper. The statements of Sir Charles and Mr. Fielding agreed perfectly, and showed that the whole matter had been adjusted eleven years ago.

THE TRUE HISTORY.

Sir Charles was the High Commissioner in 1889. He called the representatives of the other colonies together and it was decided to have this matter of colonial stocks upon the treasury officers. So successful were the representations that the imperial government agreed to a committee from the treasury to hold, the Colonial office, the Bank of England and representatives of the colonies, of whom Sir Charles was one. A bill was prepared, and was approved by the Home Government. Before it passed parliament the Australian colonies were in the midst of a sudden and alarming financial panic. The time was considered inopportune to proceed with the matter, and Sir Charles explains that he did not care to demand the concession for Canada alone, thus shutting out the Australian colonies, because for the time they were in sore trouble. The matter stood until the Australian crisis should pass, and until the credit of these colonies should be restored. Then came the change of government in Canada, and four years more elapsed. Sir Charles congratulates Mr. Fielding on the successful issue of the event, and says that he still believes great good will come of it. When it came down to details, Mr. Fielding did not even hint that the tariff preference had anything to do with the matter.

NO COMMISSION YET.

It is now eight days since the Premier got the West Huron and Brockville enquiry away from the Committee of Privileges, but the promise that a commission of judges would be immediately appointed to take up this and other investigations. No appointment of judges have yet been made, but it is believed that the Premier is in communication with some of the members of the Ontario bench. There is a suspicion that Sir Wilfrid will set his coons to work hunting up old cases of Tory wrongdoing, and that he will postpone the elections are over. But these are mere surmises. It must be remembered that the Huron and Brockville inquiries were the original cause of action.

NOTE.

Mr. W. B. McInnes, the member for Nanaimo, has resigned to go into British Columbia provincial politics. He was elected to the House of Commons in 1896, and fought Mr. Blair with all his might on the Crown Next contract, the young man taking with him some reputation as an independent liberal. Mr. Richardson, who is a still more independent, is still with us.

The Queen's Birthday.

The Queen's Birthday passed off very quietly in the city, most of the population having left the city, to enjoy the day in private fishing excursions, etc. Over two hundred went to New Glasgow alone. The celebration was postponed till the following evening, and it proved to be the grandest ever held here. The display of bonfires was the most brilliant and at the time of the relief of Lady Smith at Mafeking. There were flags everywhere, each store and residence vying to outdo the other in the display. From roof to roof along Queen street were stretched, Union Jacks, Royal Standards, English, Irish and Scotch ensigns and every variety of flag—but all British. Across the streets at different points were also stretched rows of electric lights which greatly added to the brilliancy of the scene during the evening. At 8.30 p. m. amid the thundering of cannon and the screech of sky-rockets, the celebration began with a procession which consisted of—

The fire department, drawing the Salvage Corps wagon, beautifully decorated, with a little girl inside representing her Majesty, and several little boys representing the army and navy; His Worship the Mayor and City Council in bonnet and armor; the Salvation Army band; the Artillery band; the 1st and 2nd Co's, Engineers; part of 82nd Battalion (with band); Boys Brigade No.

1 Co. with banner section; The Boys Highland Brigade; No. 3 and 4 Co's Boys Brigade; The League of the Cross band and society; College students from St. Dunstan's (with band) and Prince of Wales students. After passing the principal streets the procession brought up on market square, and formed a circle round a monster pile of barrels and boxes which was set on fire. The bands played patriotic airs and Col. Moore mounted on a beautiful bay horse called for cheers for the Queen, Lord Roberts, Baden-Powell and other generals, and was responded to with a hearty good will. Then the Boys Brigade and the League of the Cross boys formed a procession and marched round the ring and were put through different manoeuvres, which showed that they had all been carefully trained in the art of drill. The Boys Highland Brigade, clad in the full uniform of kilts, plaids, and tartans, and with rifles on their shoulders, was one of the principal features of the evening and their manly bearing and splendid marching won the applause of everyone. All this time the air was filled with rockets and the scene as colored fire were lighted seemed to be a veritable fairyland. The boys round the fire then struck up "The Soldiers of the Queen," to the accompaniment of the band. As the fire began to dwindle, the bands played unifying airs, which concluded with the National Anthem, and brought to a close the greatest celebration of the kind ever witnessed here.

A MAN named Norman Arsenault, had a narrow escape from death on Friday. He was helping to load the steamer City of Ghent at Summerside, and in some way he slipped and fell between the steamer and the wharf. His companions managed to rescue him, and after remaining unconscious for half an hour he was able to return home. This is said to be the third accident of a similar character that has befallen him.

The football match on Queen's Birthday, when the Abegweits and the New Glasgow team resulted in a draw, neither side scoring. The field on which the game took place was little better than a swamp, and the players most of the time were ankle deep in mud. The Island boys, nevertheless, had the best of the game all through, and their opponents were forced twice to touch down the ball behind their own goals to prevent the Abegweits from scoring.

DEAR SIR,—It is the duty of humanity—it even becomes part of the mission of men in this world, to dress themselves in a rational and presentable manner. It leads up to the highest ideal in life. It smooths away many of the rough edges which it is our lot to meet. Therefore, make yourself presentable, not only by your sunny presence, but by the clothing you wear.

You cannot afford to wear sloppy clothing. It is a weakness of humanity to judge by appearances. Even a dog will bark at a tramp while a well dressed man will pass by unmolested.

Men are learning that they cannot afford to be ill dressed.

A young man who is careless of his personal appearance will be careless in many other respects, and this is always taken into consideration when he applies for a situation.

Robert Burns says: "The mind's the standard of the man," but the kind of clothing a man wears is an indication, to a very large extent, of his mind.

These facts we cannot afford to ignore.

This looks as if we were writing you in the interest of our clothing business—and we are, but it is also written in your own interest.

We must all be constantly reminded of the many good things necessary to bring about our happiness, else we are apt to forget them.
