Last week the burials in the Catholic emetery, Montreal, of parties who died from smallpox numbered 41, and in the Protestant cemetery one. In the previous week the numbers were respectively 35 and one. This makes the total number of fatal cases since the disease broke out 162. The number of new cases reported shows the epidemic is spreading rapidly into new districts. The absolute necessity for the most active measures to meet the epidemic is now universally recognized, and no doubt will be adopted
