OFFICIAL.
LONDON, Jan. 8.
The Governor, Newfoundland:
The British headquarters report that enemy bombing attacks, supported by artillery, near Armentieres, were repulsed. British artillery considerably damaged the enemy lines at various points.
The Russians report the capture of Chortysk. An Austrian asphyxiating gas attack northeast of Czeronow was repulsed.
London, Jan. 9.—The complete evacuation of the Gallipoli Peninsula has been successfully accomplished. All the guns were got away, except seventeen, which were destroyed. Our casualties were one wounded. General Monro states that the successful accomplishment was due to the assistance of Birdwood and Davies and the assistance of the Navy under Admiral De Robeck.
The battleship King Edward the Seventh struck a mine and was abandoned. On account of heavy sea, she sank. Two men were injured.

CHAIRMAN OF LABOR PARTY EX-PRESSES OPINION.

LONDON, Jan. 9.
John Hodge, Chairman of the Labor Party in the Commons, expressed the opinion to-day that the political crisis was over, and that there would be no general election. The division in the Commons on Thursday night settled the question, he said. The Labor Party was evenly divided. If Arthur Henderson, William Price and Geo. H. Roberts, the Labor members who resigned from the Ministry, had voted, instead of abstaining, there would have been a majority of labor in favor of the bill. "I do not consider the vote of the Labor Congress as constituted as being representative of trade unionist opinion," Hodge said that he and quite a number of the Labor members would continue to support the Government on the ground that it was absolutely essential to present a united front to the enemies of Britain. So far as can be ascertained, the Government has no intention of delaying the Compulsory Military Service Bill. The second reading of the measure in the Commons has been announced for Tuesday.

BATTLESHIP KING EDWARD THE SEVENTH SUNK.

LONDON, Jan. 9.
The sinking of the King Edward VII is announced by the Admiralty in the following statement: The King Edward the Seventh struck a mine, and was abandoned. She sank shortly afterwards. The ships company were taken off without loss of life. Only two men were injured.

THE GALLIPLI PENINSULA.

LONDON, Jan. 9.
It is officially announced that complete evacuation of Gallipoli Peninsula has been successfully carried out. General Sir Charles Monro, according to an official announcement, reports that only one British soldier was wounded in the evacuation; that there were no casualties among the French, and that all the guns were saved, except seventeen worn-out ones which were blown up. General Monro states the accomplishment of this difficult task was due to the assistance rendered in this operation by the French Ministry of War, Admiral De Robeck and the Royal Navy.

ANGLO-FRENCH TROOPS OCCUPY MILOS.

BERLIN, Jan. 9.
The Anglo-French troops have occupied the Greek Island of Milos, according to Athens despatches to-day, which report the Greek public indignation over the seizure.

FRENCH ARTILLERY DESTROY MILLS.

PARIS, Jan. 9.
The following statement was given out this afternoon by the War Office: The night was relatively calm. To the north of the Alsace our artillery destroyed mills at Chailion, and to

RELEASE OF CONSULS.

PARIS, Jan. 8.
A despatch to the Havas Agency from Athens, under date of Jan. 6th, states that Jean Gullermin, the French Minister to Greece, has announced that the Consuls of the Teutonic Allies, arrested at Salonika, have been released. Greek newspapers, the despatch adds, remark that this action has satisfied the Greek Government. On January 4th the French Ministry of the Interior announced that the Austrian, German, Bulgarian and Turkish Consuls who were arrested

Light, Heat, Comfort!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dazzle the moths until the candle drew them. I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, filled with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is—well, mere child's play."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerfulness—all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an individuality.

We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our showroom and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. Our new RADIO X-Lamp and GASTHEAM Radiators fill all light and heat requirements.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Jan. 9.
The British official last night reads: We explored a mine near La Bassée this morning. A German aeroplane dropped two bombs behind our lines north of the Somme, but failed to do any damage. Unimportant artillery engagements occurred at various points on the front, during which our guns secured the range of a party of German infantry. Several direct hits were obtained on an enemy battery southeast of Armentieres. In the region south of the Somme German rocket store was destroyed.

GERMAN SUCCESS.

BERLIN, Jan. 9.
The War Office announces to-day that near Hirstein, south of Hartmannswillerkopf, the Germans were successful in the conquest of the trenches, which, on Dec. 21st, fell into the hands of the French. Twenty officers, 133 Chasseurs, and 15 machine guns were captured.

AUSTRIAN AEROPLANES BUSY.

CETTINE, Montenegro, Jan. 6.
The following statement was given out at the War Office to-day: Austrian aeroplanes were exceptionally active to-day. They dropped a quantity of bombs on our positions at Mount Lovcek, and three on Cetttine but without result.

RELEASE OF CONSULS.

PARIS, Jan. 8.
A despatch to the Havas Agency from Athens, under date of Jan. 6th, states that Jean Gullermin, the French Minister to Greece, has announced that the Consuls of the Teutonic Allies, arrested at Salonika, have been released. Greek newspapers, the despatch adds, remark that this action has satisfied the Greek Government. On January 4th the French Ministry of the Interior announced that the Austrian, German, Bulgarian and Turkish Consuls who were arrested at Salonika, would be brought to Versailles and from there conducted to the Swiss frontier.

HEAVY FIGHTING IN MONTENEGRO.

PARIS, Jan. 9.
An official communication received here on Saturday by the Montenegrin Consulate, says: The Austrians undertook an important offensive with considerable force against our northern front on the 8th, extending from Tara to Rugova. The attacks were particularly furious around Mojkovac and in the direction of Soukida Pass, Berane and Prozor, where the enemy engaged twenty battalions, supported by strong artillery and numerous machine guns. Fighting continued well into the night and resulted in heavy losses for the enemy and considerable losses for us. We maintained our positions, except the villages of Godacha and Godoevo, to the left of Touriam, which the enemy occupied. The struggle is still continuing desperately. On the other fronts, intense artillery duels are taking place.

NORWEGIAN STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, Jan. 9.
The Norwegian steamer Bonheim, 1,155 tons gross, has been sunk. Fifteen members of the crew have been lost.

ITALIAN STEAMER SUNK.

PARIS, Jan. 9.
The Italian steamer Brindisi with some hundreds of tons of supplies and 425 Montenegrin recruits from America, touched a mine yesterday near Sangiovanni Di Medua. The ship sank immediately, and 200 passengers perished.

PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.
The second Pan-American Scientific Congress closed to-day with a declaration by its President, Ambassador Suarez, of Chile, that the nations of America were united in the noble desire of seeking the political unity of the Continent, so that the nations which compose it may thus lend one another mutual support, and afford themselves better protection against foreign danger.

NEWSPAPER MEN VISIT NAVAL BASE.

LONDON, Jan. 9.
Under an escort of officers assigned by the Admiralty, a correspondent of the Associated Press and a party of foreign journalists were given the first opportunity to visit one of the great naval bases on the coast, where cruisers, destroyers and submarines are assembled for their watch over the North Sea, and from which point big ocean-going submarines are sent on forages to the Baltic and Dardanelles. It was an impressive sight of consolidated power and alert readiness, with its long lines of gun-scarred cruisers stretching seaward, headed by the famous Arethusa, and back of them a vast flotilla of destroyers, then a countless number of submarines, which have recently performed such brilliant work from the Dardanelles to the Bosphorus and throughout the Baltic. The day was fine, with rain falling, sailors in oilskins, the North wind cutting the sea into foam, and sea-gulls everywhere. The little fishing village of the coast had been transformed by the war into a vast naval rendezvous, with storehouses stretching half a mile, prepared to receive and armament and stores to sea. Here, also, were the mother ships ranged in long lines along the quay, ready to receive their fighting children each time they came in for raid or battle. The huge establishment was vibrant with energy, and in the harbor, mine-sweepers were coming back from their work, hydro-aeroplanes were manoeuvring from the deck, their craft black with smoke from the funnels of the cruisers and destroyers, told of their readiness to dash out to sea after an enemy craft. The Arethusa and light cruiser squadron had just returned from a cruise in the German coast, in search of the German fleet, which was said to have ventured out from the Kiel Canal. Nothing had been seen of the German ships, and the British officers—the same who had now received their stars for this famous night raid—were derisive in regard to the idea that the Germans would venture forth. One of the officers in command of the torpedo tubes when they fired the deadly missiles which struck the German cruiser Bleucher and sent her to bottom in the great fight last January. He pointed out these same tubes and told how they had worked. First we let off that one, he said, and then this one. It was this one that hit the Bleucher amidships. She was lying there 1500 yards away. The thing that impressed me after we hit her, was the deathly stillness. It was terribly still until the great big ship threw up her bow and turned clean over and sank. Yes, this is the one that did it. He patting this terrible death-dealing engine affectionately as though it were his child, as, in truth, it has been since it laid the Bleucher low. Scars of the battle were all over the ship, which the officers pointed out with the pride that a Heidelberg student displays when he exhibits his wounds. The deck alley amidships had been shot away by melleinte shells having exploded in it. This had been rebuilt. One dent in the side armour was pointed out, which was as big as a wash-bowl. The upper works were literally peppered with shrapnel, but scars were now neatly bandaged with two-inch riveted steel plates, so that the saucy Arethusa was again as good as ever. The party now went aboard the latest and best of big destroyers, which are ranged in great battalions with steam up. They are very fast, some of them making 37 or 38 knots, even touching 42 knots on a measured mile while all of them regularly do 35 miles on active duty. Lying close to them were submarines of the D and E type, the latter being the sea-going craft of great radius, which are now making distant undersea voyages to the Baltic and the Dardanelles. Smaller vessels have the outlines of an eight-oared racing shell, but the big new ocean rangers are as ugly as some submarine monster, with a steel fin running fore and aft, and a cannon's hump amidships for the deck. One of the commanders pointed out their fine qualities. They can stay under water for 72 hours, he said. Yes, three days, without any inconvenience to the crew from lack of air. D boats are good for runs of 24 hours under water, but E boats make 72 hours just as easily during these long deep-water runs. They tread their way through Skagerrak or skirt around Tenerife and past Gibraltar with as much ease under water as though afloat. The direction and proximity, or distance from land are all determined with mathematical accuracy by science and navigation, and steering goes on as easily under water as above. There were many famous sea-fighters among the destroyers, including the Lance, which helped to sink the Koenigslute of Harwich, and was also in the Heligoland battle. In fact all these ships had seen battle service, unless they had just come from the yards, and the Arethusa was a broad fact which showed she had gone from the shipyard into battle. Yes, said one of her officers, we got out of the yard on Saturday, we were in the fight by Wednesday, had sunk a battleship, and were back again the next Sunday. How is that for a record?

ESSENCE OF GINGER WINE.

Having had considerable correspondence with parties in the Old Country, I have at last succeeded in obtaining the genuine and original recipe for the "Essence of Ginger Wine," which I now offer at 15 cents per bottle. This recipe has been safely guarded for a great many years. It makes an ideal Christmas drink for the young and the old. The contents of one fifteen-cent bottle, mixed with three quarts of hot water, in which has been previously dissolved one and a quarter pounds of sugar, makes the Ginger Wine ready for use. It has been previously prepared. PETER OMARA, The Druggist, 46-48 Water St. West, dec31t

Another Promotion.

Sergeant Harry Noonan, who left here with D Company, Newfoundland Regiment, has been recently promoted to the rank of Company Sergeant-Major, word to that effect having been received a few days ago by his mother, Mrs. E. Noonan, Cochrane Street. He is still with the troops at Ayr, Scotland. Harry was a very popular young man in St. John's and his many friends will be glad to hear of his continued success. Since joining the regiment he has received four promotions. We congratulate Sergt.-Major Noonan and his mother as well.

SATURDAY, Jan. 8, 1916.
Fire started at 2 a.m. in a house owned by Monsignor McCarthy in which Mr. Charles Penny keeps a store. This place was burned before alarm was made as it was untenanted. Eight houses were burned including a store owned by Rorke & Sons. Among the buildings were Hogan, the butcher's; Brocklehurst, druggist; and McCarthy's Hotel. These buildings caught fire in the order named. Rorke's store contained a large stock of cattle feed, vessels gear and a little coal, with part insurance. Hogan had no insurance and his losses are heavy. Brocklehurst was fairly insured. The calm night, fair supply of water and willing workers under direction of Judge Janny, police and fire brigade saved the town. Loss $25,000.

CORRESPONDENT.

The Catholic Church at Sydney Burned.

It Was a Fine Edifice and Will Take $30,000 to Replace It—Insurance on the Church Was $9,000.

Sydney, January 3.—The Catholic Church at Low Point was totally destroyed by fire yesterday. It is thought the fire originated from the furnace, but this can only be a matter of conjecture. The flames were first noticed in the vestry about two o'clock, and they made such rapid headway that all attempts to deal with them were fruitless. When Father McNulty saw that the church was doomed he directed all efforts to saving the Glebe house, which was only a short distance from the church. By great efforts on his own part and the part of the parishioners, the dwelling was saved.

The loss to the Parish is quite heavy, as it will take from $20,000 to $30,000 to put up an edifice giving similar accommodation. The insurance on the church is $9,000.

Steps will be taken to have the church replaced at as early a date as possible. The church destroyed was erected about ten years ago during the pastorate of the late Rev. Father McNulty and was a neat and commodious edifice. The blaze was quite a spectacle and could be plainly seen from North Sydney and the upper parts of the harbor.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Dan Delmar, the talented Irish tenor, who finished a three months' engagement at the Crescent Theatre, leaves for his home in New York by the s.s. Stephano. Mr. Delmar's popularity during his term at the Crescent was evidenced by the largely increasing attendance at the popular picture house from the date of his first appearance there. The many friends he has made during his stay regret his departure, and express the hope that he will again be heard in St. John's theatres.
