A Young Woman Terminated Her Honeymoon

Was Tied. She Can't Love Her Husband and Only Married to Please Her Relatives.

The briefest honeymoon on record is one that lasted about five minutes. The New York Journal tells the story

On Dec. 26, at 1 p.m., Charles Lewis took Sadie Friedman to be his wife. Legislature. It is expected that the The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Schneider, and the clergyman had scarcely finished congratulating the young couple when the bride turned to her sister, Mrs. Fritz, who was the only witness to the marriage, and said "Celia, I won't live with him. I never thought I loved him, and now I am sure of it." So far as the honeymoon was con-1896, showing that the importers are cerned it ended in the young wife's

The total rev- sister and brotner-in-law talked so much about the delights of having a happy home and being the mistress of a household that my head was completely turned. They even convinced me that I would never get another offer of marriage, and insisted that it was my duty to my parents to marry under such advantageous circumstances. The first thing I knew I found myself at the home of the min-ister, and before I realized what had happened we were man and wife. "Then I felt the misery of my mistake. I had married a man I did not love, and I decided to end it right there rather than prolong the agony and have it follow after we got settled.
