of 9-3; Ald. Harley, Wenige and Drubeing the three opposed.

"I'm hear to be heard," exclaimed Ald. William Wilson, jumping to his feet as the Stanley street controversy was broached. And he was heard. "We don't want any clash tonight, if we can help it," he added, "but certain ones have contended that this issue is closed, and I would like to know how it was settled."

"It certainly is settled," volunteered the mayor. "The city engineer has been given power by the council to proceed accordingly." accordingly."
"Your worship, has the city purchased the street railway?" inquired

Ald. Watkinson.

Not Purchased Yet.

"Not that I am aware." rejoined the mayor, "unless, of course, No. 2 committee has done so, acting independent-Ald. Watkinson.

"What right then has the street rail-"What right then has the street rall-way to interfere,"asked the alderman.
"If you go ahead with this you are go-ing to put the city in the hole. The street raflway has been waiting for a long time for an opportunity like this."
"My ruling is that this clause per-taining to Stanley street is out of

"I don't care," persisted Ald. Wilson.
"I want the feeling of the council on this matter. You're putting this your own way. I want fair play tonight."
The vote to sustain the chair, however, was defeated 7—5; Ald. Wenige, Bridge, Drake, Harley and Watkinson
yoting for the mayor.

Reckless Expenditure.

"The civic administrations in the past have been noted for reckless expenditures," declared Ald. Wenige, as the case progressed. "If the city engineer follows out this proposed scheme the city will be repairing the pavement for the next four years. This fight against the street railway has been hanging fire for years now and it is up to this council to carry it through."

"What is the city solicitor's opinion?" queried Ald. Ashton.

"That he is proud there are men with backbone enough to stop the city buying rails for the street railway company," retorted Ald. Wilson.

At this juncture Ald. Bridge contrived a hearing with the information that he had noticed in other cities paved on each side with crushed gravel between the rails, and the result was satisfactory. Ald. Harley followed with his firm opinion that now was the time for a show-down with the railway. "Let us make a test case of this," he stated. "If we decide not to pave the entire street we are going behind. Take a chance. The bylaw, 916, is very plain. We should go ahead and pave in the cheapest manner, and if the railway company refuses to do its part we can recover."

Delegation Present.

Although other aldermen were on their feet to speak, the mayor pointed out that a delegation of Stanley street ratepayers in front of whose property the payement is proposed, was patiently waiting to be heard.

It was also be described by preceding the election, by request of the nominee, who is in Calgary.

The meeting, however, refused to accept the withdrawal and insisted that her name stand for election. There is still a possibility, however, that Mrs.

vouchsafed one of the council.

"I do not suppose there is a street leading into town that bears the traffic like Stanley street," declared J. F. Sherlock. "We paid for the road we have now which was to have been macadam, and all we got was a lot of sand and gravel rolled down."

with the old story—no money. We should establish a precedent. We should give the street railway proper notice or else we will have no recourse under bylaw 916. They owe us $6,000 now for Rectory street, and it will be the same with Stanley street. The city has not the money to spend. $17,000 or $18,000, tearing up tracks for the street railway. I think further, that the rate-payers are under a misapprehension. They would get a very satisfactory

Ald. Wenige, rising to launch a vigorous reply, was shouted down by Ald.

Assets of Million. Assets of Millon.

"The street railway was notified," persisted Ald. Wenige, after an interval, "for seven years now, and this year again. They claim they have no money. Now is the moment to call their bluff. It's a peculiar thing that a corporation, quoted with assets of a orporation, quoted with assets of a ton or so, cannot pay a debt of eight or nine thousand."

"Let's make it a hundred thousand," suggested Ald. Wm. Wilson. "What's a few thousand."

The latter had the last word before the vote was taken. "Harley says we don't know what we're doing. That's an insult to the whole board of works. If can tell him that I built more roads than he ever did or knows how."

The vote was taken, with the result that the city engineer will be instructed that the city engines will be instituted to proceed to pave Stanley street to within eighteen inches of the track, while the rallway company will attend

When the storm subsided, the smoke of contest slowly receded from view, and the final roll call was taken at last night's meeting of the city council, it transpired that Ald. Wm. Wilson and his supporters of the proposed Stanley street paving project, had ridden to a glorious victory.

"That the city engineer be instructed to pave Stanley street, to within 18 to pave Stanley street, to within 18 to pave Stanley street, to within 18 to pave Stanley street, and the street reil-tuches of the track, and the street reil-tuches of the kingdom of God allowance," was the motion that passed of the kingdom of God allowance, we say:
