The spirits of your fathers I Shall start from every wave!
For the deck it was their field of fame,

And Ocean was their grave:
Where Blake and mighty Nelson fell, 5
Your manly hearts shall glow,
As ye sweep through the deep,
While the stormy winds do blow;
While the battle rages loud and long,
And the stormy winds do blow.

Britannia needs no bulwark,
No towers along the steep;
Her march is o'er the mountain
waves,

Her home is on the deep.

With thunders from her native oak, 15
She quells the floods below,
As they roar on the shore
When the stormy winds do blow.

When the battle rages loud and long,
And the stormy winds do blow.

The meteor flag of England
Shall yet terrific burn:
Till danger's troubled night depart,
And the star of peace return.
Then, then, ye ocean-warriors! 25
Our song and feast shall flow
To the fame of your name,

When the storm has ceased to blow; When the fiery fight is heard no more

And the storm has ceased to blow ! 30

The battalions formed on the narrow beach at the foot of the winding path; and as soon as completed, each ascended the cliff, when they again formed upon the plains above.

The boats plied busily; company after company was quickly landed, and as soon as the men touched the shore, they swarmed up the steep ascent with ready alacrity. When morning broke, the whole disposable force of Wolfe's army stood in firm array upon the table-land above the cove. Only one gun, however, could be carried up the hill; and even that was not placed in position without incredible difficulty.

Meanwhile Montcalm had been completely deceived by the demonstrations of the fleet below the town. It was daybreak before the tidings reached him that the English had possession of the Plains of Abraham

Montcalm was already worsted as a general; it was still left him, however, to fight as a soldier. His order of battle was steadily and promptly made. He commanded the
