transportation requirements of CUSO, will enable this organization to double its existing programme and to be able to have 400 volunteers at work in the developing countries by this September.

I believe that an active working partnership between CUSO and the government can be achieved and maintained, a partnership which will preserve the independence and the vitality and the voluntary character of CUSO, while at the same time lending the stability and resources of the government.

I should like to acknowledge and commend the outstanding leadership that CUSO has received from a great many Canadians. I should particularly like to commend the Chairman of CUSO, Dr. J. Francis Leddy, President of the University of Windsor, for the outstanding leadership that he has given this organization. I hope that Canadians will continue to give substantial financial support to CUSO.

I can think of no finer way in which a young Canadian man and woman can serve his fellow man and the cause of international peace and brotherhood mers, than by participating in this type of programme.

I know that young Canadians will come forward to offer their services and vigorously support this voluntary programme. Our objective is to make it possible for any qualified person for whom a worthwhile position can be found in the developing countries to serve abroad for a period of two or three years. The qualifications for service do not necessarily include
