

the cause of truth, and he will be honored and distinguished, and in death pronounced faithful, confident that the judgment will be ratified by the unseen Master. Faithful, although his social integrity and Church observance were never allied to any deep spiritual feeling; faithful, though what he gave to Christ was little compared with what he kept back for himself; faithful, though he expended little to bless the world compared with what he expended in personal and family indulgences; faithful though he was never so eager in the service of Christ as in the pursuit of his own gain; faithful, though he never sacrificed apparently his pleasures or his ornaments or the smiles of men or suffered anything for the Master, whose universal law of service is, "If any man will be my disciple let him deny himself"; faithful, though he was never like those men in days of yore held up as patterns of service, as though Christ did not require from us the same kind or amount of service that he once demanded; as though He could be satisfied with a different and inferior service; but we know that Christ is unchangeable, and He has given but one law to all His servants. The spirit and essence of His demands are the same for all time.

3rd. Good and faithful service has respect to the MANNER of service. The shape or form which a service takes is a very important feature, because thereby we fulfil the particular and specific end of our being. Every man has his mission and his ministry; every life has its service. Each has his sphere in which to move and act, and no one can do the work of another. Nor can any one with the Bible and providential arrangements open, be at a loss to know what line of action to pursue. The path open to one may be closed to another because he is not qualified to enter upon it. As in the universe of matter the atom has its place as well as the planet, or as in the universe of life the insect has its place as well as the seraph, so in the Christian Church each has his sphere and all have their work. The one talent can and must be employed as well as the ten, though each is responsible according to his capacity and position. It is honest, personal service the world needs. The Church must give; the Master demands. Every one must seek to answer the Divine idea of his life and powers.

SECOND—THE REWARD OF CHRISTIAN SERVICE.

"Well done." The question may be asked: "Is it fitting
